A number of people equivalent to more than two artillery regiments have been killed in Connecticut motor vehicle accidents in the past fifteen years. Records of the state motor vehicle department show that 2,301 deaths occurred from such causes in the period from January 1, 1910, to the first of the present month. This includes 21 fatalities listed for the past month—a decrease of ten from the total for July, 1923.

The fatal accident total for the period of this year up to August 1 stands at 145, as against 108 for the corresponding period of last year, and various safety agencies are cooperating to keep down the total. In none of the years since 1913 has the total of fatal accidents in Connecticut been under the 200 mark and, at the present rate, this year's total will far exceed that number. In other words, scores of people now enjoying good health are almost certain to become victims of such tragedies before the end of this year, unless greater care than has been exercised up to this time is shown by the operators of motor vehicles. The department's analysis of accidents reported to it, as required by law, shows that the great majority of automobile accidents in which lives are lost are preventable; indeed that many of them are the result of failure to exercise ordinary precautions, such as looking in both directions for approaching trains, before going over a railroad grade crossing.

General accidents reported during the last month reached a total of 2,353, which was at the rate of nearly eighty a day. The total for July, 1923, was 2,173. New Haven reported 248, Hartford, 226; Bridgeport, 200; Waterbury, 130; New Britain, 81; Meriden, 49 and New London 48. New Haven and Hartford each had three fatal accidents during the month. In all of the cities named, the total of July accidents exceeds the total for July, 1923.

MEN DISCUSS SIN AT "Y" MEETING

Sunday afternoon an interesting discussion was held at the local Y. M. C. A. when the topic discussed was "The sin of omission." The men present took part freely in the discussion, and among other points brought were the following. Many men are aware of the results of the sins of commission, but they seem to fail to realize that there is such a thing as a sin of omission. In the parable of Jesus telling about those who ministered and those who did not minister, the words, "inasmuch as ye did it not" are very significant.

The Almighty seems to make no distinction in the punishment meted out for sins of commission and sins of omission. In business life the sins of omission are all too frequent, not only on the part of the employer but on the part of the employed as well. Words of commendation on the part of employers would tend to encourage the employee, but too often they are withheld. On the other hand the employee at times omits to give his best in service, and thereby he becomes guilty of the sin of omission. In the home life kind words are all too scarce at times. The husband or child could make the wife and mother very happy by thoughtfulness in telling her how they appreciate what she means to the home.

Parents at times fail to commend their children or to encourage them, and of course too many children fail to appreciate and express their gratitude and thus they too are guilty of the sin of omission. If more Christian men would only warn, in a kindly way, the young men who are starting in the wrong direction, they might lessen the number of wrecked lives.

BUILT UP NOTABLE SAVINGS INSTITUTION

There is in Connecticut an especial reason just now for mentioning with emphasis the salient facts in the career of Costello Lippitt of Norwich, which has just come to its honorable close. He was born 82 years ago in this city which its sons lovingly call the "Rose of New England," to whose traditions and record they cling with pride. He was educated in its notable schools. He completed his general education at Wesleyan. Then he entered the life work he had deliberately chosen, that of banking. There must in his case have been some hereditary or pre-natal influence which unerringly indicated that he was fitted for that work. At any rate, he proved in a continuous, unremitting, untainted service of 60 years that this was his work, that in it he was a master.

In a city small as to population and removed from large financial centers Mr. Lippitt has built up one of the notable savings institutions of New England. For years it was the second in amount of deposits in the state, and even now it stands third. Norwich is, to be sure, one of the wealthiest cities per capita in the country, but that was not the cause of the stability and strength of the Norwich Savings society. Its prosperity was due in no small measure to the integrity of the man who was the central figure in its management. He was implicitly trusted by the people of his city, his county and the state. He was for a term treasurer of Connecticut, but he had little taste for mere politics, or, for that matter, for public office of any sort that could be called political. He preferred service directly related to banking or to the handling of trusts. He was always faithful to the many trusts placed in his hands.

DOLLAR DAY STORES CROWDED ON SATURDAY

Once again Norwich gave proof that it is the trading center of eastern Connecticut, for on Saturday, officially known as Dollar day, hundreds of people came into Norwich from New London, Baltic, Taftville, Jewett City, Fitchville, Montville, Westerly, Stonington, Lebanon, Willimantic, Plainfield, Central Village and numerous other towns, to take advantage of the many bargains offered by the leading local stores.

The slogan of shop early needed no boosting for the bargain hunters and the slogan "Advertising Pays" was clearly demonstrated as a truth, when people lined the sidewalks in front of stores to await the official opening.

The bargains were plentiful in all lines, but the steady demand had cleaned out most of the barrelfuls before night, some of the big bargains advertised in the Dollar day special section being sold out early.

All day long people continued to come into the city via automobile, trolley and bus and traffic was unusually heavy for the good natured traffic cops on the main lines. Everything was kept moving smoothly, both in the automobile and traffic lines.

DRIVER ARRESTED AFTER COLLISION OF MACHINES

An Overland five passenger touring car owned by Ivan L. Malvin of Stonington and driven by Kenneth Smith, 23, Stonington, who it later developed was not a licensed driver, and a Nash five passenger touring car owned and operated by Maurice Kelley, this city, collided Sunday afternoon shortly after 5 o'clock at Washington and Sachem streets, near Chelsea Parade. Mrs. Matthew Sullivan, an elderly woman, riding in Mr. Kelley's machine, was slightly bruised and shaken up. She was taken to her home. The running board and front door of Mr. Kelley's machine were damaged.

Smith was arrested by Officer William Ryan and booked at police headquarters for violation of the motor vehicle laws of the state in driving without an operator's license. He was released on bonds of $300 for his appearance in the city court this (Monday) morning.

YOUTH HELD FOR CRIMINAL COURT ON BURGLARY CHARGE

On a charge of burglary Tony Anthony, 17, of this city, was bound over to the criminal term of the superior court when presented in the city court Saturday morning. It is alleged that he entered the store of Bishop, Bidwell & Co., and carried away two boxes of cigars, valued at $6.

Anthony admitted in court that he broke into the store around 4 o'clock Saturday morning and that he was caught on the railroad tracks of the New Haven road by John McGrath, a railroad detective. The goods were identified by Foreman Moore of the company.

A Polish woman arrested on a complaint that alleged that she kept a cow in the same lot and in the vicinity of a well owned by a neighbor, appeared in court. By the deed of the property the well on her land may be used by her neighbor. Due notice was given her by City Health Officer Dr. Brophy to keep her cow away from the well. She was warned that another violation of the law would result in a fine of $25 and costs.

Judge Libby announced that beginning September 1st, all violators of the traffic laws concerning beacons and crosswalks would have to appear in court the same as other violators of motor vehicle laws. City Attorney Lee Roy Robbins also said that after September 1st he would not recommend that the charges be nolled on payment of $3. Stiffer fines are promised those who continue to disregard the automobile regulations of the city.

Warren Hill of Norwich Town and Homer F. Hunt were fined $75 and costs amounting to $85.63, respectively, both being charged with speeding. According to the testimony of Mr. Hill he was riding along in his Ford near the Backus hospital when Mr. Hunt drove past him. He then stepped on the gas and passed Hunt. The two cars sped down Broadway headed for the city. When near the top of Broadway himm a whistle cut the air and they both stopped and were arrested for speeding.

State Policeman Anderson of the Groton barracks, testified to being in Norwich Friday for the purpose of issuing licenses to new drivers. He was out on Broadway with one applicant when he noticed a woman driver ahead, run her machine up onto the sidewalk and then he saw the two cars coming toward him at a fast rate. He then blew his whistle for the two racers to stop, which they did, some three hundred feet further on, it taking some time to slow down.

After fining Hill and Hunt, Judge Libby informed them that the city streets were not race courses.

American Education week will be observed this November 17-23. Copies of programs may be had by addressing the commissioner of education, Washington, D. C. A leaflet containing suggestions regarding the observance of the week will be issued by the Bureau of Education in September.

PENNANT CHASERS BATTLE HARD DURING PAST WEEK FOR ADVANTAGE

New York, Aug. 24.—Individual flares lit the major league sky as both New York teams struggled to retain their first place positions during the week which ended today.

Washington, launching a new offensive against the Tigers and Yanks, won its seventh straight game today and advanced to within one point of the champions as the latter lost to Detroit which still haunts the two leaders despite a disastrous week. Other teams are distanced.

The Giants hold a four-game lead over Pittsburgh, thanks to the aid of Brooklyn which beat back the Pirate threat in three straight games and converted spectacular pitching into 14 victories in 17 games before being halted today by the Cards who won a doubleheader.

The double defeat left the Robins three and one-half games below Pittsburgh and only one-half contest ahead of Chicago. The Reds trail three games behind the Cubs but St. Louis, topping Philadelphia and Boston, is ten games back of Cincinnati.

The star of Dazzy Vance mounted to a new altitude during the Brooklyn rush. On Saturday against the Cubs in his tenth consecutive victory and his twenty-second triumph in 26 starts this season, he established a National League record for modern times by fanning 15 men, and increased his strikeout total for the year to 194.

Rogers Hornsby, batting champion of the National League, challenged Vance for attention by making nine consecutive hits against Philadelphia and New York pitchers. His orgy not yet checked, has included four home runs in the last four days.

Hornsby's home run total of 20 is second in the National league only to Fournier, who made two and rests at 23. Cy Williams, last season's home run leader in the National, increased his string to 17 by hitting three during the week. Ruth came out of a 13-game lull to get his 39th today.

CARDS POUND DODGERS PITCHERS FOR TWO GAMES

St. Louis, Aug. 24.—St. Louis took a double header from Brooklyn today 7 to 6 and 17 to 0. Hornsbys twentieth home run in the ninth inning of the first game broke a tie and won for the Cardinals. The Robins were swamped in the second game, the Cards getting 25 hits off Roberts and Osborne.

Leo Dickerman who started the first game for the Cardinals, was hit on the arm by a pitched ball in the second inning and forced to retire. Cooney was forced out of the game in the seventh inning when he dislocated his thumb trying a runner at third base. The s

New York, Aug. 24.—The Detroit Tigers took the final game of the year in New York by a score of 7 to 2. Dutch Leonard made his second start of the season for Detroit and held the Yankees to 6 hits, Babe Ruth's 39th homer with Dugan on base was the only scoring done by the New Yorkers.

Cincinnati, Aug. 24. — Cincinnati went on a hitting spree today and won both games of the double header with Boston, 9 to 0, and 8 to 3. Second inning. Score 2 to 1 in favor of team in the field. The bases are full and none are out. Ball is hit to shortstop.

How should the shortstop play the ball.

Under such conditions, the infield should play half way back and it is presumed that the shortstop is in such a position when the ball is grounded to him. This permits of a double play. If the shortsop is able to make a double after getting the ball, he should throw to second and the double be completed at first. This would tie the score and leave the man on third with a base hit decided to score him. In the early stages of a game, this is the proper way to make this play.

MOOSUP LOSES TO FAST WEBSTER TEAM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Webster, Mass., Aug. 24.—The St. Joseph ball club of this city won an easy victory from the fast Moosup team here this afternoon, 6 to 3. The locals banded on Davis in the first inning and pounded him for three hits and four runs, winning the game in this inning. The locals scored twice in the seventh inning.

Although the visitors outhit the locals they were never dangerous, threatening only in the ninth inning when they scored their three runs. Mills of the visitors secured four hits in five times at bat. The score:

TAFTVILLE A. A. BEATEN AT BALTIC; SCORE 4 TO 3

The Baltic A. A. team by a rally in the eighth inning Sunday afternoon nosed out the Taftville A. A. and won 4 to 3. Papineau, for Baltic, pitched good ball with the exception of the third inning when Taftville scored their three runs. Baltic scored one run in the first inning and three in the eighth when Pepin weakened for a short time. Red Charron of the Herrups of Hartford played with the Baltic team and it was his hitting and base-running that figured largely in the Baltic victory. The batteries were: Papineau and Laffey for Baltic; Pepin and Liberte for Taftville.

STRYKER IS LOANED TO SPRINGFIELD CLUB

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 24.—Sterling Stryker, star Worcester pitcher who led the Eastern league last season, has been loaned to the Springfield club for the remainder of the season. Bill Doughan will join the Panthers in the deal.

The players will return to their respective clubs at the close of the season. The deal is to take effect immediately.

Catcher Mike Wilson, of the Bridgeport club has been fined $25 by President Dan O'Neil for striking Umpire Stafford after being called out on strikes a week ago.

Collett-Sweetzer Win Mixed Title

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 24.—Miss Glenna Collett, of Providence, and Jess Sweester, of New York, won the two ball mixed foursome finals over a 36 hole course today at the country club of Fairfield at Sasco Hill, defeated Miss Marion Hollins, of Westbrook, L. I., and Francis Ouimet, of Boston, 3 up and 1 to go.

Willimantic, Aug. 24.—"Cannonball" Jones of Hebron underwent his first baptism of fire in admirable fashion Sunday afternoon at Recreation park pitching for the Thread Makers in a Connecticut State league contest, but was nosed out, 2 to 1, by the invading New Britainites chiefly because of the facts that he was accorded poor support at critical stages and the inability of his mates to hit behind him with any degree of consistency.

The Besse Lelands registered once in the very first inning. Green hit one in the direction of Hamel at third but Jones went away out of his position in an attempt to field the slow drive. As a result, Green reached first safely and was credited with a hit. Dunlap sacrificed the third sacker to second. Mickey Flaherty attempted to nick the runner off second. His throw was low and accordingly Green hoofed it to third, to score when Zielke bit behind the second sack, the ball landing safely in close proximity to three fielders who raced after the ball. Harlowe was ejected from the game in this inning by Umpire Nichols after he had whiffed the breezes. The New Britain left fielder objected too rigorously to the ump's decision on the last strike. "Artie" Johnson went to the position made vacant by the hasty exit.

The Hardware Citvites concluded their scoring in the third. With one away, Green led off with a single to center. Dunlap skied to left. Johnson singled to right and Green came all the way home, White fielding the drive poorly.

Willimantic's run came in the seventh and was earned. Adams initiated festivities with a hot poke to second which was too fast for Dunlap to handle. He went to second on a wild pitch and to third on an out at first, scoring on a one base blow by Flaherty.

The local lineup was somewhat patched due to the fact that Saturday night Manager John P. McQuillan received a call from Springfield from the Trauske brothers and Kamyk, members of the local infield, to the effect that they would not be able to appear in this city yesterday. Accordingly Hamel was placed on third, Normandin on short and Hart on second. The last-mentioned, a former state hospitaller, gave a ragged exhibition and was shunted to center field, Sharpe coming in from that pasture to cover the keystone bag. He finally was removed from the game in favor of Mathewson.

Hamel's play at third was brilliant. The New Britain team played flawlessly afield. Jones had the better of Scott in the hurling duel, no earned run being chalked up against him.

Hamel started the best double play seen here this season with the bases clogged in the fourth, when he clutched Scott's hard poke, and threw to Flaherty for a forceout at the plate and Flaherty threw to Adams for the final out.

The banner crowd of the season was in attendance, most of the fans who passed the turnstiles evidently wishing to witness Jones in action. Jones was taken off the Hebron sand lots. He pitched for Fitchville prior to his engagement with the Thread Makers.

Both teams had several chances to score but with men on bases both hurlers tightened. The score:

KNIGHT WINS SHENECOSSETT INVITATION TOURNAMENT

New London, Conn., Aug. 24.—Shooting excellent golf here today, Fred Knight, of Philadelphia defeated Thomas Palmer, of Miami, and Shenecossett in the finals of the championship flight of the men's fifth annual invitation golf tournament at Eastern Point. He won the morning round 2 up and finished the 36 holes 2 up and one to play. A birdie 3 at the 17th hole finshed the match, Knight playing a pretty approach shot dead to the pin.

During the morning round Knight opened a cut on the index finger of his right hand but in spite of this shot four birdies and two eagles during the 35 hole play.

Palmer also shooting good golf went the morning round in par 72 but was two down at the finish.

Knight in addition to winning the title also returned medalist by defeating Edwin Fitler, of Whitemarsh Valley in the play-off of their par 72 tie. Knight turned in a 76 while the best Fitler could get was an 82.

AMERICAN POLO STARS BEAT ENGLISH COMBINATION

Port Washington, Aug. 24.—A picked team of American polo stars administered a sound beating today to an English combination that included two of the international stars preparing for the challenge matches with the United States. The Americans won by a score of 14 to 6 in a spectacular six-chukker match before a crowd of 9,000 at Fleischmann field.

The attack of the American players was led by Earl Hopping, one of the international team substitutes who scored six goals.

The Americans ponies seemed superior and their hitting was more accurate than that of the British.

Major Horndall and Major Kirkwood, two of the British regulars, showed flashes of brilliance but the team work of the invaders did not equal that of their opponents.

FOREST HILLS TO BE SCENE OF TENNIS CONFLICT

New York, Aug. 25.—All roads frequented by followers of American lawn tennis lead today to Forest Hills, L. I., where the forty-fourth annual tournament for the United States national championship in singles will provide the centre of interest for patrons of the sport during the whole of the week.

Never before has any tennis tournament held in the United States partaken of such a strong international flavor as has been given the singles title competition this year by the entry of leading stars from Australia, Canada, France, Cuba, China, Mexico, Japan and Spain. The Davis cup teams from all of the countries named have been entered in the tournament so it is apparent that the American racquet wielders will have to extend themselves to the utmost in order to retain the national title in the United States.

The American stars who will battle against the strong foreign contingent include such famous players as W. T. Tilden, 2d, four times champion and present holder of the title; W. M. Johnston, twice champion; R. N. Williams, 2d, who held the title in 1914 and 1916; C. H. Fischer, who ranked No. 7 last year; E. J. Griffin, one of the leading players of the Pacific Northwest; Kirk Ried, New York state champion; W. M. Washburn, N. W. Niles, H. G. M. Kelleher, and a member of others whose names are familiar to all followers of the game.

MARRIED MEN GETTING THE KINKS OUT OF THEIR SYSTEM

The East Side Married Men held an extensive practice on Saturday afternoon and will hold another strenuous practice this evening in preparation for their battle Tuesday evening with the Single Men. Tod Coleman, who has been supplanted by Roy Leonard as first string pitcher, will be given a chance in the box Tuesday evening and Tod fully expects to hold the Single Men hitless provided he is given any kind of support.

In previous games Coleman has pitched good ball but his support has been very ragged. Manager Cook of the Married Men is endeavoring to pull his crew together in an endeavor to win Tuesday's game. Manager Cook is a hard task-master and is hard to please as can be seen by his rating Roy Leonard as the first string pitcher in preference to Coleman. Coleman has pitched two fourhit games while Leonard turned in a one-hit game and should be given credit for his work.

The Single Men are praying that Coleman will pitch Tuesday's game for they are just waiting for a chance at revenge and what they say they will do to Coleman is a crime. Some of the Single Men, not to mention any names, say that Coleman is becoming very inflated in the cranium and is given to much boasting over his prowess as a pitcher. Of course pride goeth before a fall but it looks as though Coleman had a perfect right to be just a little boastful, for the box scores tell the story.

LARGE CROWD VISITS FIRPO'S CAMP SUNDAY

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 24.—More than 10,000 people visited the training camp today where Luis Firpo is preparing for his heavyweight battle with Harry Wills. Tex Rickard, among 1,500 who saw the afternoon workout, said that the principals had signed final articles.

Firpo, now weighing 220 pounds and in excellent condition, set a fast pace during six rounds with Bill Tate, Jack Townsend and Joe Stoessel. He will rest tomorrow and on Tuesday will begin the final graduated program which he expects to put him in his best shape by Sept. 11, the date of the fight.

BON TON MARRIED MEN BEAT SINGLE MEN

At the Fairgrounds on Saturday afternoon in spite of a drizzling rain that fell during the greater part of the game the Bon Ton Married Men trimmed the Single Men 5 to 3 in a close and interesting game. The game was a pitchers' battle between Chick Spivery and his dad, the father having the better of the argument. Pop Spivery had the Single Men eating out of his hand during the greater part of the game.

The fielding features were contributed by Kid Ruley and Phil DeBarros. Jim Greeneville was the battery mate of Pop Spivery and Earl Vera was Chick Spivery's partner. Another game is scheduled for next Saturday aftern

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

The Merchants National Bank.

Norwich, Conn., Aug. 23d, 1924.

At a special meeting of the Directors held today to take action on the death of Hon. Costello Lippitt the following resolutions were adopted and ordered spread upon the records.

In the death of Mr. Lippitt this bank shares with the town and state the distinct loss of one of its foremost citizens. He has been prominently associated with it as a director for a period of thirty-nine years being elected a Director on April 1st, 1885, and President on Jan. 15th, 1889, which position he held for fifteen years. On Jan. 8th, 1924, he was elected Chairman of the Board—this being his office at the time of his death.

He was Chairman of the Finance Committee for many years, his wealth of experience and vast knowledge of financial matters especially fitting him for these duties. In the discharge of which he gave full consideration to all, and was a firm friend of the small business man as well as the larger borrower.

While one of the most genial, considerate and courteous of men, he was, nevertheless, a strict officer in regard to the matter of detail in the affairs of the bank, and a staunch advocate of conservative policies.

The numerous offices which he held both in private corporations and in public life bear ample testimony to the esteem in which he was held by everyone in the community, and his passing will be truly felt for many years to come.

It was voted: To devote a page in the records to his memory and that this minute be spread thereon, and that a copy be sent to his surviving relatives, and that the officers and directors attend the funeral services in a body.

Attest: H. F. POWERS, Clerk.

The Norwich Savings Society.

At a meeting of the Directors of The Norwich Savings Society Saturday, Aug. 23d 1924, the following minute or resolution was adopted:

In the death of Costello Lippitt Norwich suffers the loss of one of its most prominent citizens. Through a lifetime of useful service to the community he had come to bear the responsibilities of leadership in many activities.

Especially remarkable is his long term of service in The Norwich Savings Society. Jan. 1, 1885, he came to this society and completed nearly sixty years of continuous activity. As Trustee since 1871, Assistant Treasurer in 1877, Treasurer since 1878, Secretary since 1881, Director since 1891, he devoted himself unceasingly to the welfare of this institution. His unfailing courtesy and genial personality won the friendship of all who knew him.

In memory of his services and in affectionate remembrance of his friendship the Directors of The Norwich Savings Society hereby record their profound sense of loss and extend to his family their heartfelt sympathy.

Masonic Temple Corporation.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Masonic Temple Corporation held Saturday, Aug. 23d, 1924, the following minute was adopted:

By the death of Costello Lippitt Masonry loses one of its most prominent members. For fifty-eight years he has been actively identified with all Masonic interests, giving much of his time and means toward the advancement of Masonry in this city and state.

He was elected Treasurer of this Corporation at its organization, April 29th, 1892, and has been continuously re-elected ever since. He also served on the finance committee since the formation of the Corporation. During all this time his counsel and advice has been invaluable.

To his associates he was ever the kind and courteous gentleman and their association with him will ever be to them a precious memory.

Resolved, That this minute be spread upon the records of the Corporation and that a copy be sent to his family.

E. ALLEN BIDWELL, Acting Secretary.

Norwich Free Academy.

At a meeting of the Trustees of the Norwich Free Academy held Saturday, Aug. 23, 1924, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

The death of Costello Lippitt brings to the Trustees of the Norwich Free Academy a deep sense of loss.

As a graduate of the Class of 1860, and later a Corporator for thirty years, he had been in intimate association with the school since its foundation.

In 1894 he was elected a Corporator, in 1902 a Trustee. He served as Treasurer for seven years, and since 1907 had been Secretary of the Board of Trustees, serving on the Executive Committee.

Resolved, That the Trustees of the Norwich Free Academy, in memory of an honored graduate, and an influential member of the governing board of the school for many years, hereby place on record their sorrow in parting from a beloved associate and friend, and their heartfelt sympathy with his family.

IN MEMORIAM.

In Loving Memory of our Little Son and Brother,

Jewett City, Aug. 25, 1924.

I am truly grateful for the many acts of kindness which were shown me by friends and neighbors during my recent sorrow. Their words of comfort and loving deeds will not be forgotten.

WEEKLY MARKET REVIEW

New York, Aug. 24—(By the A. P.)—Stiffening money rates combined with an outburst of profit-taking contributed to a reaction in bond prices last week. Led by Liberty Bonds, all groups participated in the downward movement which assumed larger proportions as the week progressed and gave indications of being more than a temporary setback.

General withdrawal of buying support followed a slight advance in the money quotations, which was considered significant because it marked the first turn in the easy money situation which has prevailed since last spring. Liquidation of Liberty Bonds and other high grade investment securities was traced to banks which were said to be finding better employment for their funds in the interior through a reviving of trade and the larger crop movement.

While apprehension over a further tightening of money rates in the fall was relieved partially by predictions that the German loan and other foreign financing would be floated at the peak of the market, speculative sentiment in bond trading plainly was chilled. This found a more satisfactory outlet in the active stock market and led to heavier realizing sales of semi-speculative bonds acquired on the summer's upswing.

Contrasted sharply with the preceding week, the volume of new financing declined approximately $100,000,000 to a total of $45,000,000. The market was devoid of interesting offerings although a satisfactory reception was reported for most of the small issues. Investment bankers explained that the lull in new financing was a natural sequel to the large amount of new bonds which the market was called upon to absorb in the previous week.

Although trading on the stock exchange provided few interesting features, considerable attention was devoted to a broad movement in the St. Paul railroad issues. Reports that the road's 1925 refunding program might be delayed caused a reaction but the bonds later recovered following the announcement that directors would consider the matter this week and the circulation of rumors that the van Sweringen interests were buying St. Paul stock.

Foreign obligations were strengthened early in the week by the successful conclusion of the London conference but receded later in sympathy with the general price movement and the weakness of foreign exchanges. Activity of Serbian 8s, which crossed 90 to a new high record for the year, was linked with reports that another loan might be floated here.

One of the few railroad bond issues in recent years to bear a 4 1-2 per cent rate will be the offering tomorrow of $16,000,000 Louisville and Nashville refunding mortgage bonds through a syndicate headed by J. P. Morgan and Co. Proceeds from the sale will be used partly for additions and betterments. The bonds are priced at 93 1-2 to yield over 4.80 per cent. and mature in 2003.

NORWICH TOWN

In a letter dated August 16th, from from Jefferson, Iowa, Mrs. Bert Smith who with her husband and son, also a party of friends is headed for the Pacific coast, by automobile, writes to Norwich Town friends: When riding all day and then pitch tent at night, one feels rather tired. We miss our friends at home and often speak of them, when it becomes dusk. Our party has gotten along nicely so far; but have been tied up with the rain. When it rains in Iowa, it makes a dirty mess of the roads; for such a rich state as it is reputed to be, the roads are terrible. Bert and Mr. Raymond had to plow through 30 or more miles, yesterday (Friday). The roads were just as though they had been greased and even with chains on, the cars skidded all around. We have crossed the Mississippi river and expect to cross the Missouri tomorrow; then we will be in Nebraska. Hope to make better time then; but we still have 125 miles more of bad road ahead of us. We are resting up today as we cancelled travel owing to traffic. Last Sunday, Aug. 10th, we went through Cleveland, Ohio, and it sure was terrible traffic. We have camped near Lake Erie and it is a beautiful sight to see the sunset there. Had to hire a house a day recently on account of rain.

Some of the camps have little houses with a table which closes up next to the wall when not in use, two stools, a place for a stove, a couple of curtains hung on the wall, two windows and an electric light. You cannot imagine how many tourists there are and every one seems so pleasant. On the camp grounds today there are about 100, who have come into town for a picnic.

We went out of our way a number of miles to see Niagara Falls. A wonderful sight and one long to be remembered.

It will be pleasing to us all to get settled somewhere, as a camper's life with all its pleasures, is not the most convenient way of living; on the contrary——rather hard.

Having passed several weeks at their cottage at Quonochontaug Beach, R. I., Rev. and Mrs. Gurdon F. Bailey and family, returned the latter part of this week to their home on Elm avenue. Rev. Mr. Bailey, who has been on his vacation, resumed his duties as pastor of the First Congregational church Sunday.

SEDAN UPSETS ON CHELSEA PARADE AFTER COLLIDING WITH MOTORCYCLE

Remia Bonin, No. 1160 Westminister street, Providence, is a patient at the W. W. Backus hospital suffering with a slight fracture of the skull received when the motorcycle he was driving and a Maxwell sedan driven by Mrs. James Foley, of No. 366 Central avenue, a nurse at the hospital, collided at the junction of Broadway and Williams avenue Sunday afternoon about 5 o'clock. The Sedan, a new machine, was being driven from Crescent street through Williams avenue and just as Mrs. Foley was driving across the intersection of Williams avenue and Broadway, the Rhode Island motorcycle with sidecar, headed north on Broadway, reached the intersection of the street.

The sedan and motorcycle came together and the motorcycle was thrown to the curb and turning up on its side, came to rest against a pole. In order to avoid the accident the driver of the sedan evidently turned too sharply to the right for the sedan went across the trolley tracks and onto the parade, hitting and knocking down the heavy memorial stone in the corner of the parade. The impact with the memorial marker turned the sedan over on its side within a few inches of one of the large trees on the parade.

A physician was called to attend the injured motorcycle driver and he was taken to the Backus hospital. An x-ray picture of his injuries was taken at the hospital Sunday night. His condition is not considered serious and at a late hour last night the hospital reported that he was resting comfortably.

The sedan was considerably damaged, the glass in one of the doors and the windshield being smashed, the body scratched and marred, and the mudguards being badly bent. It was righted during the early evening and removed from its resting place on the parade. The motorcycle was also considerably damaged. The accident attracted the attention of scores of passing motorists.

AUTO ACCIDENTS INCREASE DURING RAINY WEATHER

Automobile accidents reported to the state motor vehicle department invariably show an increase of approximately 10 per cent for days when there has been rain. Notwithstanding the fact that practically all drivers are aware of the danger of skidding on wet pavements and most of them feel that they know how to avoid accidents on that account, the department records show that the number of experienced operators involved in such accidents is fully as large as the total of less experienced drivers.

The federal aid highway between Hartford and New London was the scene of more skidding accidents than any other highway of corresponding length in the state after the rain storm last Sunday. This highway is noted for its many curves and grades, and analysis of the reports of accidents made by drivers involved shows that most of them were due to excessive speed on curves, causing loss of control upon meeting, unexpectedly, cars passing in the opposite direction. Several of the drivers who figured in these accidents relied upon the fact that their cars were equipped with tires that were not supposed to permit skidding or that the highway has a concrete surface, the roughness of which was depended upon to provide traction.

The motor vehicle department maintains that there is no excuse for most skidding accidents; it repeatedly issues warnings against careless driving after rain storms and against coasting down hills on wet highways, but these practices remain as the cause of a great percentage of the accidents reported. Such accidents do not improve the work of the cards which the department keeps on file of driving records of all licensed operators, and frequently become contributing factors in subsequent suspension of licenses, or indeed the particular skidding accident in itself does not have that result.

HANDS DOWN DECISION IN DEFENDANT'S FAVOR

A decision in favor of the defendant in the case of Frank I. Lathrop, of Bozrah, vs. Walter J. Magesky, et. al., of Greeneville has been handed down by Judge Charles B. Waller and filed with the clerk of the court of common pleas. The case developed as the result of an accident that occurred some time ago at Norwich Town. Judge Waller says in his decision:

I am not satisfied that the driver of the plaintiff's auto was under all the circumstances in the exercise of reasonable care in the operation of the plaintiff's auto at the time of and immediately preceding the collision. I find therefore that there was negligence on his part which essentially contributed toward the cause of the collision.

In turning out from the position at the curb where the machine was parked, reasonable care required not only should the driver give a signal, but that he should also look to discover whether another machine was approaching from the rear along the travelled portion. This the plaintiff's driver did not do.

It is not, in my opinion, the exercise of reasonable care on the part of an operator of a motor vehicle in such a situation to merely hold out the hand as a signal or to rely upon the sounding of a signal by the approaching automobile without using his eyes for the purpose of discovering the location and apparent speed of a motor vehicle approaching him from the rear.

ARRESTED HERE FOR POLICE IN HOLYOKE

(Special to the Bulletin)

Holyoke, Mass., Aug. 24—John Joseph Curran, alias Jonn J. Curry, aged 52 years, who claims to be an actor, was sentenced to the House of Correction for three months for larceny and for larceny from a building. On the first charge he was given one month and on the second, he was given two months.

Curran, up to March 1, 1923, was employed as a dishwasher in a local restaurant, but on that date he disappeared. He was taken into custody by the local police Thursday at the Connecticut State Insane Hospital at Norwich.

The most serious complaint, that charging larceny from a building, was brought by John Greaney of 581 Dwight Street, where Curran roomed, and from whose house Curran is alleged to have stolen a watch, chain and tie pin. Curran is also charged with issuing a fraudulent check for $7 to Kurnik & Kida, High Street clothiers, in payment for a pair of shoes.

HOLD ANNUAL ROBINSON MANNING FAMILY REUNION

The annual Robinson-Manning family reunion was held Thursday at the Manning ancestral old farm homestead situated on the Lebanon road now owned by E. Ray Manning. The day of pleasant sunshine was all that could be desired for the occasion. As is the usual custom those attending registered their names. There was an attendance of 135 this year, their ages ranging from the tender years of the infant in arms to the aged great grandmother. A basket lunch was served at the noon hour, after which the hours were spent in a social way, there being a very interesting game of baseball played until the score stood 9 to 17. A number of home runs were made. Nathaniel Manning, Jr., was umpire. There were also games of croquet.

MAN MARS CREATION, AND HE ALONE, SAYS PRIEST

1 Corinthians, xv 1-10 was the epistle, and Mark vii 31-37 was the gospel, for the eleventh Sunday after Pentecost, read first in Latin in offering the holy sacrifice of the mass in all the churches throughout the Catholic world Sunday, later read in English to the congregations in the local churches, as usual. At St. Patrick's church, at the 9 o'clock mass, Rev. Myles P. Galvin chose his text from the gospel, "He hath done all things well," the admission of the crowds after Christ had restored hearing and speech to the man deaf and dumb. God certainly has done all things well, declared Father Galvin; not only does He create each of the wonders of the material world, but He continues His care and watchfulness over it until it has achieved the destiny for which He designed it. Nothing in the world rebels against God's manifest plans except the highest work of His creation—man.

When the Jews of old, as narrated by the day's gospel, marveled at the Saviour's miracles, they did not recognize the fact that He was God, the Messiah, the Second Person of the Blessed Trinity. We in our day, however, realize this. Consequently when we spend our lives in sinning against our Creator and His laws, in seeking to thwart His plans for us, in declaring by word or act, "I will not serve," we are far more to be censured than were the ancient Jews who sought to do evil toward Christ. Father Galvin's hearers in the great congregation were exhorted to pray God for the grace to know what He desires each to do, then for the good will to cooperate with Him in obeying His wish and purposes, carrying out the plans of God for their eternal destiny.

Rev. Rocco J. Guerriero, who read the low mass, gave holy communion to the customary large number of men, women and elder children, having Father Galvin's assistance in administering the Eucharist.

POETRY

AFFIRMATION.

I know that they return—those we ca
dead.
I know they hover near through nigh
and day.
For oft I feel their presence and am le
By unseen hands along Life's darkene way.

I know they see with eyes more clea
than mine,
I know they vision more than Earth ca
hold.
That light to them comes not from sun that shine
Or moons that glow like balls of rudd gold.

I know they hear and that each sens is keen,
I know the whispers of my soul are hear
And carried far into God's realms unsee
On waves of love that speed the lightes word.

I know they come, though human eye
are blind,
I know a veil exists, but they can ren
Its misty folds whenever so inclined.
I know—but how I do not comprehend.

They do return—the loved ones we cal
dead,
Oh, friends who weep for those who've crossed the bar,
Accept this truth, and so be comforted.
Where love still lives, the spirit does

SKY MEADOWS.

The great still meadows of the sky
Seem full of peace, when love's distres
Strikes at our hearts like music heard
From distances as limitless
As dream; and all entranced we lie
Gazing at cloud and bird

From this minutely measured field
Our drowsy sight may lift and reach
Into the higher range of air,
And our vain thoughts, bent each to each,
May find it very sweet to yield
Their gradual yearnings there.

Our small cupped valley holds the sun
Brimmed to the edges, meadow-deep
In goldenrod and fading clover. . . .
Nothing abroad shall break our sleep
Though leagues above, and, one by one
The southward geese fly over.

DAWES DISCUSSED GOV'T BUSINESS WITH COOLIDGE

Republican Vice Presidential Nominee Informed Newspaper Men That the Conference Was Not of a Political Nature —The Agricultural and European Situations Were Talked Over —Ku Klux Klan Was Not Mentioned.

Plymouth, Vt., Aug. 25.—Charles G. Dawes, republican vice presidential candidate, visited for two hours this afternoon with President Coolidge at his father's home here discussing platform, government business, particularly the agricultural situation, and European conditions.

For the last fifteen minutes he talked with newspapermen, telling them "in so many words" why he came, what he talked about with the president and why he couldn't discuss the reparations situation or the political outlook.

Chucking his pipe to one side of his mouth, Mr. Dawes turned suddenly and before a question could be put to him by the correspondents banged his fist on the table and said:

First, we did not discuss the K. K. K. question.

Second, we did discuss the question of agriculture and more particularly the personnel of the commission which the president expects to appoint to investigate agriculture conditions. That's why I came here."

As questions were shot at him from all sides, the nominee puffed vigorously on his briar, replying smilingly with "Ask the president," "Wait until I get the stump again," "I don't know, I'm no politician," and "I have not been criticised so far for not saying enough."

Finally, pressed for a statement on the Klan situation and the reaction to his speech at Augusta in which he announced position to the Klan, Mr. Dawes declared, pounding the table as he enunciated each word.

"There can be no reaction to the right which is not a right reaction."

Then jumping from his seat and sweeping his hands out, he added: Regardless of what any politician may say about it."

The political outlook in the west, he said also was "extremely good."

The president and his running-mate held about a 35 minutes conference just after dinner, walking across the road for a while to the one-room union church. They talked for some time also just in front of the church just before Mr. Dawes left to see the newspapermen. The president, looking straight ahead and twiddling a cigar, talked very deliberately, and occasionally his quiet would turn and enter the discussion, using his arms energetically for gestures. They parted laughing.

After his newspaper conference Mr. Dawes returned and said goodbye to the president and his family, got as his car stopped just down the road to wait for some of the party the president walked up and reminded the visitor that he "had better get along to catch that train."

Mr. Dawes drove to Rutland, from where he goes to Chicago.

While the correspondents were pursuing their questoins in the conference about his visit, Mr. Dawes replied:

"You want to know the history of my visit here. Well, about three days ago the national publicity director called me and asked me if I didn't care to come up here for a visit with the president. Of course, I said I would be delighted if the president desired to see me. But I didn't hear from the president. After my speech the other day I found word from Secretary Slemp that Mr. Coolidge would like to see me and I came up, very much pleased at the opportunity to again visit with him and his family."

Mr. Dawes said his discussion today on the European situation was not of a political nature and when asked to discuss it declared he would not do so now or on the "stump" so far as the reparations plan was concerned.

When bombarded for a statement on political conditions, he replied:

"I'm no politician."

"Since when?" someone countered.

"Since 1901 when I dropped from a six-story political building and took a licking" was the quick rejoinder.

He explained he was defeated that year in a race for the senate and added he had never expected to enter politics again. While in the office, C. Bascom Slemp, the president's secretary, handed him a paper to sign, certifying the names of the party electors in Pennsylvania, required by law. He did so, John Coolidge, the president's father, acting as notary public, and capacity in which he served here a year ago in administering the oath of office to his son, just after the death of President Harding.

Mr. Dawes drove here from Ludlow, Vt., nearest railroad station, in a driving rain. He was met by the president and Mrs. Coolidge just inside their vacation home. After dinner, however, the rain stopped and the party heads came outside and in good humor posed for the photographers.

Rain kept the president indoors most of the day, after he had completed a walk about the farm early in the morning.

New Haven, Aug. 25.—Fire swept through the second floor of a structure in the rear of the Times-Leader building at 61 Orange street in the heart of the business section of the city tonight with a damage from fire, smoke and water estimated at $50,000. The second floor, where the blaze was discovered, was occupied by the Furniture Repair and Upholstering Shop. The firemen confined the blaze to that floor but tons of water poured in from the roof did considerable damage to the other floors of the building.

The top floor was occupied by the Chamberlain Hallock furniture repair shop while on the first floor were Mrs. Rooks' candy kitchen and he Bradley and Scovill House. The Times-Leader occupied the basement for the storage of print paper and many rolls of the paper were ruined by the water.

The origin of the fire is unknown. It was discovered by two firemen of Engine Company No. 12, whose firehouse is but a few feet from the scene of the blaze. Two alarms were sounded but the firemen had little trouble in checking the blaze on the floor on which it started. The building is owned by Andrew G. Smith, proprietor of the New Haven Window Shade company. The $50,000 damage estimate was made by Fire Marshal Martin J. Fleming.

GOLD BARS RECOVERED FROM STEAMER LAURENTIC

London, Aug. 25—Discovery of an unexpected storing place in the forepart of the liner Laurentic, which has been lying in 90 feet of water since she was sunk by a German submarine in 1917 on the northern Irish coast, has enabled divers to recover 250,000 pounds worth of gold bars which had been given up for lost.

The divers have been working intermittently for six years to recover from Davy Jones' locker the consignment to American bankers of 7,000,000 pounds in gold and silver bullion.

Operations had been suspended, when at the last moment another storage place was discovered.

The whole consignment of treasure in the Laurentic has now been recovered and, despite the perils attending what is claimed to have been the greatest salvage feat on record, there was only one accident in which a diver suffered a broken leg.

Rome, Aug. 25—Premier Mussolini has approved a circular drawn up by the National Fascisti directory regarding the discipline and organization of the provincial fascist federation. HUNTING FOR MISSING PARTNERS OF GRAFF

New York, Aug. 25.—A packet of love letters and a heap of fresh furnace ashes today spurred detectives in their hunt for the missing partners of Aaron Graff and the murderer who stuffed Graff's body into a tin box in a Greenwich Village basement, where it was discovered last Friday.

Squads of workmen with spades, and acetylene torches dug and burned their way through the walls and floor of the basement without producing any additional evidence.

Tenants of the apartment house which surmounted the basement furnished detectives, however, with one bit of information that may lead to the hiding place of John Lugosy, a carpenter and caretaker who was a partner in Graff's in the radio business.

Lugosy mysteriously disappeared August 9, quitting the house and the tenants who had complained about the unpleasant odor emanating from the basement.

According to the detectives' informants, he was "a bug on mystery stuff." An Austrian by birth, he had confided to acquaintances that he was a confidential agent of the Austrian government.

Lugosy professed interest in mysterious crimes, the detectives were told. He was inclined to cloak himself in an air of mystery, to use the jargon of secret agents and to speak of himself as one familiar with the underworld.

Police are now in possession of two packets of love letters. Early in their search for Graff's slayer they found a bunch that had been written by a Pocomoke City, Md., girl to Charles Ross, a third partner in the radio cabinet venture who has been missing since last May 31.

Today's find of evidence included a packet of ardently inscribed missives addressed to Lugosy. Police refused to reveal the contents or the name of the authoress. They disclosed, however, that Lugosy's admirer sought to entice him to leave his wife and children.

The ashes were found in the furnace of the basement where Graff's body, crammed into a sealed tin can was discovered after the financier of small business ventures had been missing since August 1.

What the ashes represented had not been determined tonight. That they were human ashes was not a part of the homicide squad's theory. It was considered possible that the articles of clothing missing from Graff's body had been burned.

PREPARING FOR THE TRIAL OF KID McCOY

Los Angeles, Aug. 25—The McCoy-Mors death and jewel robbery case marked time today while lawyers for the prosecution and defense of Kid McCoy slug the first legal trenches in the battle centering about one charge of murder, three of assault with intent to commit murder and four of robbery chalked up against the former pugilist.

McCoy came into the court to plead on the charge that he had shot and killed Mrs. Theresa Mors, divorced wife of an antique dealer, Albert W. Mors, but the prosecution introduced a motion to add the name of McCoy's sister, Mrs. Jennie Thomas, to the list of witnesses on the grand stand indictment. The defense objected to this and the arguments, with the plea went over for three days.

Meanwhile, federal officers still are trying to find trace of the missing Mors jewels, which New York authorities say were smuggled into the United States, and concerning which Albert A. Mors denies all knowledge.

Regular life in the county jail is bringing the color back to McCoy's cheeks and he appeared in court neatly clad, and cheerful in deportment.

"Among our losses were five officers killed. The enemy fled, leaving his dead and wounded behind. The Spanish column is maintaining its new positions."

Plea For Mercy For Loeb And Leopold

Made by Attorney Darrow in Closing Argument—Wept As He Entreated.

Chicago, Aug. 24 (By the A. P.)—Pleading for the future, for posterity, for the progress of law and for "that time when we shall realise that mercy is the highest attribute of man," Clarence S. Darrow, 67 year old philosopher of the courts and foe of legal rigidity, ended today his three-day argument for the lives of Nathan F. Lopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb.

Mr. Darrow brushed tears from his eyes several times as he entreated for "that noble quality of mercy with which we may eventually overcome cruelty and hate and malice with kindness and gentleness and love." He disliked his own tears and disposed of them with as little show as possible.

There was visible emotion among many of the spectators and Judge John R. Caverly flushed as he pressed a pencil to his lips. Neither Leopold nor Loeb moved, but they centered on their aged lawyer looks of unwavering interest, and the former touched Mr. Darrow's sleeve as he passed him going out of court.

He indicted the age in which he lived for cruelty. He indicted war for callousing the hearts and sympathies of men. He indicted the educational system under which "young, plastic minds" are given the pagan philosophies of all times. He spoke with scorn of the tendency of jurists and lawyers to move in ruts of legal terminology in utter disregard of the advances of science and the advancement of thought.

He pointed to the "weird mentalities" of his clients and the "irrational, mad and horrifying' crime which they contrived as the product, even the responsibility, of ages gone.

He characterized as "an ancient superstition, and nothing more," the theory that hanging is a deterrent to crime.

"Hanging grew up in the age of barbarism from which we are so lately come as an exhibition—not as a punishment," he said.

He brought together in impressive design mulit-colored threads of legal history, philosophical criticism, scientific accumulations in the field of the psychology of youth, and a liberal portion of old fashioned soliloquy. He reached to the scriptures for inspiration and support, and quoted poetry at intervals in a studied attempt to bring his appeal to the heart of Judge Caverly, who must decide the penalty for the kidnapping and murder of Robert Franks.

"I am pleading for life, for charity and kindness and for humanity," he said.

"I am pleading for the overcoming of cruelty with kindness and love."

"Your honor stands between the past and the future. I know that the future is with me, and I am pleading for it. I am pleading for a time when hatred and cruelty will not control the hearts of men, when we shall realize that mercy is the highest attribute of man."

"I do not know how much salvage there may be in these two, poor, diseased minds," he said. "It might be merciful for your honor to tie a rope around their necks and let them die now."

"It might be merciful to them, but certainly not to those who come after them."

The salvation of youth is the highest attribute of the state, Mr. Darrow argued, and characterized the hanging of several Chicago boys after jury trials as "a shame and disgrace."

The attorney denounced as "poisoned perjury" the testimony given by one of the investigators for the state's attorney that Leopold shortly after his arrest had expressed a hope of escaping the hanging by "pleading guilty before a friendly judge." Mr. Darrow said he mentioned this because he wished Judge Caverly to know that the defense had every confidence in him.

He explained, too, that his reference to war was because armed conflict had always been followed by an era of crime. He spoke of numerous veterans of the World war who had landed in courts after their return from the trenches, where "honorable, upright boys had learned how cheap was human life."

There were tears in Mr. Darrow's eyes as with faltering voice he pictured the crumbling homes of the parents of the boys, and the effect of the crime upon the future generations of their families. His voice broke again when he reached his peroration.

"I know," he said, "that your honor stands between the future and the past. For me the future means the hopes of the young. I plead for life, charity, kindness, sympathy and understanding. And the future is with me.

"Your honor may hang these boys; but if you do you will make it harder for every boy and girl in this land and for the babes as yet unborn.

"I am pleading that all life is worth saving and that mercy is the highest attribute of man.

"My greatest reward, hope and compensation will be that I have done something for the tens of thousands of boys who must follow the path that these two poor young Jews have trod."

In a stillness that was broken by not even the muffled clicking of "silent" typewriters of telegraph instruments in the press seats, Mr. Darrow added this verse from Omar Khayyam:

"So I be written in the book of love,
I do not care about that book above;
Erase my name, or write it as you will,
So I be written in the book of love."

As Mr. Darrow concluded, court was adjourned until tomorrow, when Attorney Benjamin Bachrach will make the final pleas for the defense.

CONVENTION OF MOTION PICTURE THEATRE OWNERS

New Haven, Aug. 25.—Composers of the so-called popular songs were severely criticised by J. M. O'Toole, national president of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America, addressing the quarterly session of the board of directors of that organization here tonight, when he charged they were debauching high class music into jazz, taking away its original soul and lofty emotion and making it drunk and dizzy.

The criticism was part of President O'Toole's annual report to the directors. The session was held at the farmhouse of Louis M. Saal, national treasurer of the organization. The charge came during a discussion by Mr. O'Toole of the music tax question, there being at the present time a controversy between the music publishers and motion picture and theatre men over whether or not a royalty should be paid every time a copyrighted song is sung or played.

"The United States government being imposed upon," said President O'Toole. "The privilege to copyright should be, and is open to only original creations. But the songs now being copyrighted are nothing but imitations or medleys. The song "Over There" cannot be called original for it is but an imitation of the well known bugle call. Present day writers are going so far as to jazz up hymns. They are debauching high class music into jazz, are taking away its original soul and lofty emotion and are making it drunk and dizzy."

A motion picture head stated that it was not the intention of his organization to take away interest in jazz music, but that the debauchery of good music should not be allowed to be copyrighted.

GOSSIP OF ANOTHER LOAN TO FRENCH GOVERNMENT

New York, Aug. 25.—Negotiation of another loan to the French government may follow the expiration of the credit granted last March by J. P. Morgan and company, to the Bank of France for the purpose of stabilizing the franc, bankers indicated today.

Terms of the Morgan advance, permitting the revolving use of all or any part of the $100,000,000 provided for repayment within six months which would bring the maturity in September. Probable flotation of the $200,000,000 international loan to Germany early in October, it is believed, would preclude the sale of a French loan at that time. Wall street heard today that the Morgan firm might extend the original credit until later in the year when the advance might be placed on a permanent basis through the sale of a bond issue.

Bankers who previously have participated in financing for the French government admitted today that France might find it advisable to arrange another loan—perhaps for as much as $150,000,000—for exchange stabilization and other fiscal requirements. They indicated, however, that its sale would follow that of the German loan and depend to some extent on bond market conditions.

Americans Rescue Italian Aviator

On Board the U. S. S. Richmond, Off Greenland, Aug. 25.—(By The A. P.)—The United States cruiser Richmond, after having been tossed about on the bleak North Atlantic Ocean for 52 hours, and after hope had been given up for the safety of Lieutenant Locatelli, the Italian aviator, and for his three companions, picked up the marooned men from their damaged plane shortly before midnight Sunday.

All of the members of the party were well, but were exhausted from the trying ordeal through which they passed. Locatelli's plane was damaged beyond repair, and it was destroyed by gunfire from the Richmond. The cruiser, with Locatelli and his companions on board, is proceeding toward Labrador to re-enter the naval patrol for the continuation of the flight of Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith and Lieutenant Erik Nelson from Ivigtut to Labrador.

Locatelli, who started from Iceland for Greenland last Thursday with Lieutenants Smith and Nelson was forced down by motor trouble at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon. After repairs had been made to the plane Locatelli was unable to make a take-off from the water. The plane drifted from the point near the Labrador coast where it came down in the water and was found 125 miles due east of Cape Farewell, the southermost tip of Greenland.

The discovery of the damaged plane was due to Signalman Willis Pinkston, who, from the bridge of the Richmond, caught sight of green flares sent up from the plane. The flares were repeated at intervals and the Richmond was able to steer her course by them and finally ran alongside and took off Locatelli and his companions.

THANKS FOR RESCUE BY THE AMERICAN NAVY

Washington, Aug. 26.—The warmest and deepest thanks for the rescue by the American navy of Lieuytenant Locatelli, missing Italian aviator, off the coast of Greenland, was conveyed in a message received by the Italian embassy late today from Premier Mussolini.

According to a tentative schedule the American fliers, commanded by Lieutenant Smith, are expected to leave Ivigut tomorrow on the flight that will land them on the North American continent. It is regarded as certain that the fliers will go direct to Indian Harbor, Labrador, from Ivigtut where tthey will take on fuel, and, in all probability, then jump to Cartwright Harbor.

Indian Harbor is classed by the air service as a restricted harbor, small in size, and, in the opinion of officials there, will not afford the protection from storm that is available at Cartwright, 40 miles south. The stop at Indian Harbor, however, is held to be necessary, since no fuel supply will be available for the machines at Cartwright.

The stretch from Indian or Cartwright harbors to Hawke Bay, according to the schedule, will be covered Thursday and then south to Pictou, (N. S.) harbor, Friday, when, it is expected the fliers will continue to Boston, arriving there late that afternoon.

The stay in Boston will be prolonged so as to afford time for the aviators to remove the pontoons from their machines and replace them with landing gears. This task, however, is to be completed in tome for the fliers to arrive Sunday over New York city on their way to Mitchel Field, Long Island, where it is assumed they will change motors and overhaul their planes.

Washington is scheduled to receive the fliers the following Tuesday and on the next day they are expected to leave for the Pacific coast, to end officially their globe-encircling flight at Seattle.

The Washington port was chosen as the final stopping place, although the flight actually started from Clover Field, near Los Angeles, Calif., it was explained today that the fliers will be able to reach Seattle turning north at Sacramento, Calif., within the same time it would be required for them to return to Clover Field and would shrink the time of the flight around the world 12 days, the difference between the date on which the fliers left Los Angeles and later hopped off from Seattle for Alaska.

ROME REJOICES THAT LOCATELLI HAS BEEN FOUND

PREDICTS COST OF LIVING WILL GO UP 10 PER CENT.

Williamstown, Mass., Aug. 25—A prediction that the cost of living in the United States will go up ten per cent. as a result of low interest rates was made by Prof. Allyn A. Young, of Harvard University at the institute of politics today, Prof. Young, economist, was chief of the statistical section of the American peace commission at Versailles.

He said the rise in American prices if there is no further inflation in England, will bring the pound sterling back to par. In effect, gold will be cheaper by ten per cent. or more as compared with commodities and as compared also with European currencies. The rise of American prices will have a very helpful influence on the international money question."

Asserting that the monetary situation as a whole is very favorable, Prof. Young predicted a general return to the gold standard in three years, although in many cases he said the old parities could not be restored.

SHIVERING FORMS OF DANCING TO BE TABOOED

Chicago, Aug. 25.—Refinement of ballroom dancing is the chief aim of the five-day convention of the American Society of Teachers of Dancing, which opened here today.

So that all cheek-to-cheek, shivering and wabbly forms of dancing will be put under the ban, the waltz and other refined steps will be taken up, according to Luis Chalif, president of the society.

"Modern dancing is killing," he said. "Instead of exercising the body and making it healthful, it is twisting their bodies out of shape and displacing their internal organs. It is wrecking their nervous systems. Fashionable dancers are through with the modern dances. They have gone in for the fox trot and the old fashioned waltz, the fox trot tango and the French tango."

While so-called jazz dancing will be forbidden, syncopated music will stay and aid in the reform of dancing, he said, adding that the young dancers have become too lazy to originate new and graceful dances.

GERMAN NATIONALISTS OPPOSE REPARATIONS AGREEMENT

Berlin, Aug. 25 (By the A. P.)—The German nationalist party is opposed to the reparations agreement reached at the international conference in London recently and will oppose all measures to put it into effect.

This announcement was made in the reichstag today by Dr. Hergt, the leader of the party. Dr. Hergt expressed his party's distrust of the government and severely criticized what he termed is change in attitude at the London conference on the question of the evacuation of the Ruhr. He also accused Ramsay MacDonald, the British premier, of having changed his views on the subject and appealed to him to reconsider his position.

Acceptance of the Dawes plan, said Dr. Hergt, would be a shortsighted policy and lamentation would follow acceptance.

"There is no alternative for us except to reject all the bills to make the Dawes plan effective," exclaimed Dr. Hergt.

Dr. Rudolf Hilferding, former minister of finance, who followed Dr. Hergt, insisted that the Dawes plan afforded the sole opportunity for carrying our peaceful work. He advocated a dissolution of the reichstag and a referendum on the question of acceptance.

Notwithstanding Dr. Hert's assertion that his party is opposed to the London areement, it is not believed that the entire membership of the nationalist party will follow his advice. The belief is expressed that if is more than probable that the party whips will be called off when the time for voting arrives, leaving each deputy to vote as he pleaded. In this case the expectation is that the required two-thirds majority will be secured.

Plymouth, N. H., Aug. 25—Dr. Oliver Whipple Huntington, a famous writer on metallurgy and chemistry, who died of heart disease in his flower garden in Wilderness Friday, was buried here today.

WILLIMANTIC

John H. Morrison, 61, known to thousands as "Colonel", died at his home here, 70 Park street, shortly after eleven o'clock Sunday night after a lingering illness. He was able to be about the house and enjoy almost daily automobile rides this summer, but suffered a relapse a week ago and for the past two days he had been in a state of coma.

He gained the prefix of "Colonel" by virtue of many years of service in the old Third Regiment, Connecticut National Guard. He was recognized as a leading citizen locally and he gained a strong following through his many services for the town and city. He had been auditor of the two governments for several years. In the Democratic party he was a prominent worker up to the time of his illness. Keenly interested in music and a gifted singer, Colonel Morrison was a member of the St. Joseph's R. C. church choir for many years and for a quarter of a century he took active parts in a number of Dr. Jules Jordan's oratorio festivals conducted in Willimantic. During the world war he was prominent in Liberty Loan drives, Red Cross work and community singing.

He was a charter member of San Jose Council, No. 14, Knights of Columbus, having joined the council March 12, 1896 and for many terms he held the office of financial secretary. He also held membership in the Willimantic Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Morrison was born in Willimantic, December 7, 1862, the son of Patrick Henry and Margaret Regan Morrison. Practically all his life was spent in this city. He received his elementary schooling at the Natchaug grammar school and when a young man was employed for a brief period by the Willimantic Linen Company. For many years afterwards he was a clerk in the employ of the late John Hickey and then was in the clothing business for Jerome B. Baldwin, in the store now occupied by the J. B. Fullerton Company.

In the late 90's the Baldwin Company was dissolved and Mr. Morrison entered the life insurance field, starting in Bridgeport and returning to Willimantic in 1900 to become connected with the Willimantic staff of agents of the Norwich district of Metropolitan Life Insurance company, then under Supt. Michael C. Higgins and Assistant Supt. Thomas F. Burke. He was raised from the company four years ago and placed on the honor roll of faithful agents with pension, having completed twenty years of service. May 15, 1883 Mr. Morrison enlisted in Company E, Third Regiment, C. N. G., and was promoted to corporal, September 16, 1883, to sergeant, August 21, 1884, elected second lieutenant May 17, 1886, and made captain of the company, August 22, 1888. He was chosen major of one of the battalions of the Third Regiment June 22, 1892, and lieutenant-colonel July 18, 1892. October 3, 1892, he resigned his commission, but he kept a keen interest in the affairs of his old regiment and the national guard in general and for several years after his retirement from service he regularly attended the annual encampment of the Connecticut National Guard at Niantic. The four of his five sons who served in the world war and thus gave him a singular distinction were: Joseph R. Morrison, who was captain of a unit at the Panama Canal Zone; Sergeant Harry B. Morrison, who saw service in France, Sergeant-Major Paul K. Morrison, who died in a southern camp during the influenza epidemic and Sergeant Edward A. Morrison, who was at Camp Devens, Ayer, Mass. He is survived by his children, Captain Joseph R. Morrison and Second Lieutenant Edward A. Morrison, commissioned officers of Company C, 169th Connecticut Infantry, Harry B. Morrison, employed at the Windham Pharmacy., Frank P. Morrison, chauffeur for Mrs. Guilford Smith of South Windham and Miss Georgia Morrison, all of this city, and two sisters, Miss Margaret Morrison, who assisted in the care of the late Colonel during his illness and Sister Mary Georgia, a nun at Tilbury, Holland, of the order of the Sisters of Charity of Our Lady of Mercy.

Joseph Diffley, of Norwich, was charged with speeding and the case was continued until Monday morning, September 1. Diffley was held up Saturday by Officer Bombria. George McGuire and Armand Girard were charged with breach of the peace; the cases were nolled on payment of costs, amounting to $8.06 each. Joseph Moriarty, charged with intoxication, pleaded guilty. While sitting on the step leading to the entrance of Woolworth's Store, about three o'clock Monday afternoon Roy Jr., two year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Thompson of Mansfield Depot was severely injured when struck by a Buick touring car, owned and driven by C. J. Healy, of this city, which backed over the sidewalk and into the store window. Mr. Healy who is a conductor on the passenger service on the New Haven railroad, apparently started the machine while it was in reverse gear and before he could control it, it had backed over the curbing to the sidewalk and came to a stop against the corner of the window, after striking the child. The Thompson child had been waiting for his mother. He was rushed into the office of Dr. C. A. Jenkins where it was found that he had suffered from a gash over the right eye and that the tendons of his right leg had been severed. The child was taken to the home of Mrs. Thompson's sister, Mrs. John Pennington, 1166 Main Street. A corner of the large plate glass window was broken by the crash. The right rear fender on the machine was damaged and the rear bumper bent.

While a good sized crowd gathered when the little Thompson boy was injured, Miss Lillian A. Burgess of Mansfield Depot, came down Main street in her Chevrolet touring car and sideswiped two machines, after skidding on the wet trolley tracks. The vehicles struck were a truck owned by Fred Leclaire and a car operated by Mr. Rogers. Slight damage was done. Both mishaps were reported to the police and were investigated by Motorcycle Officer Bombria.

The officers concluded that that was too much for one man and placed Irish under arrest. In the police court Monday morning he admitted having used the number of lines and hooks mentioned but did not suppose that there were any restrictions in regard to the capture of bullheads or eels. Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Fenton agreed with Irish that but few fishermen realized that there was a limit on lines and hooks and asked that the case be nolled on payment of the costs, as the charge was only a technical one. The fish wardens agreed to this. Mr. Irish paid costs, amounting to $10.06.

After the praise service Rev. F. W Gray read the Scripture. Rev. F. C. Baker offered prayer.

Rev. F. W. Gray expressed in fitting words the appreciation of the people for the work of the district superintendent, Rev. W. H. Bath, during his six years on the district, from which, according to the time limit of the Methodist discipline, he must be removed next spring. Brother Bath responded with feeling to an impressive Chautauqua salute.

Rev. F. D. Grant, pastor of the Congregational church in Warren, Mass., was the preacher. His text was Rom. "What advantage, then, hath the Jew?" The Jew had lost everything of political power and social prestige. But had the splendid advantage that unto them were committed the oracles of God. What advantage, then, hath the Christian? The same, with addition to the Old Testament oracles those of the New Testament. Truth is the way to character. Only God's oracles fortify against temptation.

JEWETT CITY

A man who read in The Bulletin the other day about the Quinebaug eel weirs, tells a story which although lacking in direct corroboration, is doubtless true.

A half dozen of these long V-shaped weirs, although somewhat disturbed by the ravages of time and the rough handling of the winter's floods of more than half a century, are to be easily traced today, as distinct evidence of the fishing methods of another age. According to tradition these several weirs between Jewett City and this tunnel, were built and operated by different men, and it is told, that of all the lot, the one now to be seen just below the railroad bridge, and then owned by a man named Potter, was the most prolific. The Quinebaug at this point is about 300 feet wide, and except at very low water runs strong and deep, as the current straightens after passing the sharp bend above. These weirs, some of which were old when the Civil War broke out, were not built in a day, but were completed after many long nights of laborious toil.

Tremendous and even more cartloads of stones often going to [illegible] of single weir.

Potter's trap was said to have been a work of art, tight and even, with the main center stones, where the pot was anchored, weighing well over 60 pounds apiece.

Potter would often take out a hundred pounds and more of eels, after a Saturday night and Sunday's run. Old Potter was something after the manner of Topsy in Uncle Tom's cabin. "Never was born, just growed up." At all events he was never known to have had a living relative. Notwithstanding this obscurity of birth, he must have been a fisherman of rare skill. A certain black bottle which he was accustomed to take along on his visits to his weir, may have been the reason for the loss of some eels, yet it seems that it got him some. He always wore rubber boots, of an enormous number, with his old blue denim overalls stuffed into their tops. One night, when he had transferred the contents of his bottle into his leathery old skin, he decided to visit his eel pots, for with the money he would get for its contents of slimy wigglers, he would be able to replenish his empty flask. Just able to reach the sluice way leading to the long wicker bag, Old Potter sat down in the stream to untie the fastening. At this point John Barleycorn dealt Potter a body blow and, probably soothed by the soft ripple of the stream, and the cooling balm of the summer's night, he leaned against the driven stake that held the ancher, and was lost in slumber. The following hours proved to be a wonderful night for eels, down the Quinebaug they came in slippery hordes, both great and small. Potter, a spare man, always wore great baggy trousers, and as the night wore on, they began to fill. A man is alive today, who was there, a small boy then, when they helped Old Potter to wade ashore in the morning.

They dumped out in the sand, from his overalls and great boots, close to a bushel of the finest eels ever taken from the Quinebaug. Potter sort of poked around among them with his bare great toe, remarking as he did so, "There ought to have been more than that."

Avoid your name appearing as delinquent. Time is short. Pay town tax at once. L. E. Boucher, Col.—adv.

Cleanliness and Care in Manufacture

Every Lucky Strike factory is a model of sanitation. Read how Alfred W. McCann, the noted food expert describes one of our factories: "White walls and ceilings, floors as clean as freshly chiseled marble, cutting machines and wrapping machines that take away from the human hand all detail and leave nothing to the human supervision but the watchfulness of trained eyes."

Facts About Taxes on Cigarettes

WE call particular attention to the statements made in the advertisement adjoining this editorial column.

This advertisement, the purpose of which is to win new friends for Lucky Strike cigarettes, incidentally emphasizes the matter of high taxes on cigarettes.

To those who are intimate with such matters there is, of course, no surprising statement made.

To the general public, though, we believe it will be surprising to learn that nearly half of what they pay for cigarettes goes to the government for taxes.

The internal revenue stamp on a package of twenty Lucky Strike cigarettes costs you six cents. On a tin of one hundred the revenue stamp costs you thirty cents.

So nearly fifty cents out of every dollar you spend for cigarettes is spent by you for taxes.

This is certainly the heaviest tax on an article of daily and universal consumption.

The Tobacco Industry and Taxes

The aggregate tax paid by the tobacco business is with one exception, income taxes, the largest item of internal revenue the federal government receives. Last (fiscal) year it amounted to $309,014,050.84.

Of this enormous amount of money the cigarette industry paid $182,715,785.93, or nearly two-thirds of the total tax paid by the entire tobacco business.

The immediately important point of the foregoing is the following: We believe you will appreciate that when nearly fifty cents of every dollar paid by you for cigarettes goes to the government, you must receive in cigarettes a value in return for your money that is rarely given in any commodity.

That the public generally appreciates this great value is shown by the enormous increase in the consumption of cigarettes.

Our reasons for this tax free offer

We know that a large percentage of those who get acquainted with Lucky Strikes adopt them.

This isn't philanthropy nor propaganda—just good business, as you'll agree.

The offer is limited. We cannot afford to keep it up.

We make it sensationally generous so as to attract attention.

We are not giving money away for the offer accomplishes its purpose: Lucky Strike "Wins New Friends." Our volume increases.

Super-quality

It is only by immense volume that we can produce such an aristocratic cigarette as Lucky Strike at such a democratic price.

Its quality is supreme because it has that costly, extra process, toasting, which improves the flavor and adds to the taste of even the finest tobaccos that are used in Lucky Strikes.

We urge you to participate in this offer—we want you to get acquainted with Lucky Strikes.

We know a trial will make you a permanent customer of ours.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Despondent for some months past Mrs. Elizabeth Ellen Buckley, of Reynolds street ended her life by hanging. The body was discovered in the hallway at her home, Sunday night, when her daughter, Miss Ada Buckley and members of the family living in the apartment on the lower floor of the dwelling returned from where they had respectively been spending the afternoon and early evening hours. Mrs. Buckley had been alone in the house. Her death came as a very great shock to her daughter and all her friends.

Mrs. Buckley had been resident in Danielson and at Dayville for many years and was known all through this territory as an efficient practical nurse. Her health had been failing for months and more recently she had become despondent.

Mrs. Buckley was born in Lancashire, England, Nov. 16, 1862, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Mills. With the exception of her daughter, to whom the sympathy of all has been expressed, she leaves no relatives in this country.

Many a happy youngster who has whiled away a wonderful summer listens to what is being said on the subject and views this week with more or less apprehension the preparations that are being made for his return to school immediately after Labor day. The big play period of the year is nearing its end. Registrations at least as numerous of those of last year are anticipated with the reopening of the schools next month and the hope is that they will show an increase, though poor business periods are apt to be a cause of falling off of school attendance, through removal of families, in textile centers such as Killingly.

Wednesday evening the republicans of Killingly are to meet in their first party assemblage of the season—at a caucus to name convention delegations. The democrats of the town will follow on Thursday evening. These caucuses will mark the beginning of the official activities leading up to the town, state and national elections, for this as many are discovering, is a presidential year.

Pressure continues to be exerted toward the end of securing the removal of a row of shade trees at the south side of Davis park, along Reynolds street. The selectmen have complied with all directions of the town relative to removal of the trees, notifying the state highway commissioner of the unanimous vote of the town relative to the removal of the menace to traffic. It was stated Monday that one local man stands ready to remove the trees free of cost to the town, if he is given the necessary authority.

Sydney W. Bard of Brooklyn did not figure in a minor automobile accident near Willimantic Sunday night as told in Monday's issue of this paper under a Willimantic date line, although many gained that impression. Mr. Bard's son, Sidney, was driving in the machine that figured in the affair, resulting in some damage to a wagon and the crumpling up of a fender on the Bard car.

There is no present indication of a fuel shortage in Danielson this winter. Considerable supplies of coal have already been received here and many forehanded people have their winter's stock in the bins. The subject of winter fuels, as the result of experience of recent years, is one a bit worrisome to numbers of people, but there seems little to fear this coming season.

Silent policemen in the business section of the borough have been faring badly of late. Another one, near the Puritan restaurant, went down under the impact of a light truck on Monday morning.

A young man or girl with some experience in the grocery business wanted at 30 1-2 Mechanic street, for work in new store.—adv.

Next Monday—Labor day—will be generally observed as a holiday in Danielson, the majority of the stores closing and the manufacturing industries suspending operations for the day.

The little son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Barnard had his cheek pierced, received a slash in the throat and several lacerations near the temple, when bitten by a shepherd dog while he family was visiting in the Mashentuck district of the town. The child received treatment at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam. The dog unexpectedly seized the child when it walked over to the chained animal to pet it.

This week will mark the beginning of the southward trend of travel from Maine vacation points to New York. Extra sections of the Bar Harbor will be run later in the week to care for this traffic.

Practically new 2 1-2-story house with modern improvements, good barn and a considerable amount of land for sale in the Riverview section at an attractive price. Apply to J. Carl Witter.—adv.

A further continuance has been arranged in the case that involves the operation of a motor bus express service from Providence to Hartford. This matter, pertaining to the violation of motor vehicle laws of this state, will be heard in the town court of Killingly.

Announcement was made Monday by Mrs. Ella Lathrop, of North Main street, of the marriage Saturday evening of her daughter, Miss Florence Lathrop, a graduate of Killingly High school, and Harold Morrarty of Putnam.

There are constant indications of improvement in the woolen and worsted business, judging by orders for mill supplies of various kinds that are coming to local manufacturers of such materials. Some mills are ordering more liberally than for months past. There is also some improvement in the demand for certain supplies for cotton manufacturing plants, another evidence of improving conditions.

It appears from Monday's checkup that the Dollar day on Saturday proved a lively stimulant for business. The special effort of the merchants brought many out of town buyers here to share in the bargain carnival arranged for the day.

Steps have been taken by numbers of property owners to comply with the suggestion of borough officials for improving sidewalks in the borough. In its verbal notices to such property owners 30 days is the time limit set for making the repairs with the understanding that the borough will do the work and assess the cost in cases where there is non-compliance.

Nervous folks are commenting that there seems to be unnecessary use of motor horns and locomotive whistles in Danielson; that all the required warning could be given with a little less generous use of the noise-making devices, especially with the shrieking whistles used on motor trucks.

PUTNAM

Following a meeting of the guarantors of Putnam Chautauqua, it was stated Monday that the deficit is not as large as at first feared. In fact, it will not be necessary to assess the guarantors $20 each, or even half that amount, it is now claimed. In view of the financial situation existing in the city, the committee is very much pleased and gratified at the showing made. It was but a little over two weeks ago that the drive on selling tickets began and it had hardly got under way when the First National bank closed its doors. This was a great setback for the sale of season tickets, for people at once felt that they must conserve their cash and where the sale was easily made in former years it became a hard task to work up a brisk sale in the past two weeks.

There is no feeling of depression among the guarantors of committees was worked hard to put the guarantee over the top. Conditions are fully realized and in view of this the situation is looked upon as very satisfactory.

Under the big top on the high school grounds two audiences Monday enjoyed well balanced and varied programs. The Junior Chautauqua in the morning drew together many children who enjoyed the games and stories.

Monday's program included a lecture in the afternoon by the Chautauqua superintendent and a concert by the Swathmore Trio. In the evening Powell, dean of American magicians, was the feature of the program.

With Receiver Charles H. Coffin busy checking up the assets of the First National bank, preparatory to approving such inventory, taking over the assets, and sending the inventory to Washington, there was little change in the banking situation Monday. As far as could be learned, neither the citizens' committee nor the stockholders' committee held meetings. Chairman John B. Pyrne of the stockholders' committee, state bank commissioner, left Monday morning for Hartford where he will be at his office at the capitol during the week. While the stockholders' committee was granted a conference by Receiver Coffin Saturday afternoon, no statement was given them by the receiver as to the bank's condition. It is understood that this committee was told the same story as all others have been told—that until the inventory is checked the receiver himself does not know the exact situation.

That there is to be no letup or change in the plans of the citizens' committee, now working to organize a new bank, was emphasized in a statement issued by Chairman Geissler as follows:

"The reorganization of the new citizens' National bank of Putnam, together with subscriptions of capital stock, is proceeding as rapidly as possible. Practically $200,000 in subscriptions have been received."

While citizens' realize somewhat the conditions said to be existing at the bank, they are becoming impatient and wish to hear something definite as to these conditions. If ever an authentic statement is forthcoming, it is believed it will materially clear the atmosphere. However, as far as can be ascertained, the fact that there are two committees working along different lines to procure banking facilities for Putnam at the earliest possible moment has created no factions. All Putnam business interests want at the present time is a national bank, owned and operated by people of the community. When two banks are suggested it meets with no enthusiasm in most quarters. The citizens are sticking to the first laid plan, and that is the one the citizens' committee is at work upon, to give Putnam a locally controlled banking institution. It would seem that any committee that can bring this about will receive unanimous support, but no one wants Putnam's banking problem solved with outside help, or it is apparent by subscriptions to the capital stock of a new bank that outside assistance is not needed.

One case was disposed of at the Monday morning session of the city court, the first session to be held in two weeks or more. Mathias Rondeau pleaded guilty to driving his automobile while under the influence of liquor. He was fined $100 and costs, which he paid. Rondeau got into trouble and into the custody of the police Saturday night, when he ran his car into another car parked on Main street. While there was only slight damage done to the machines, Rondeau's face was somewhat cut by flying glass When a police officer made an investigation he noted that Rondeau was intoxicated and placed him under arrest.

Capt. William Jarvis of the Putnam police department was back on duty Monday after a vacation of nearly two weeks, during which he was on an automobile trip that took him as far north as Canada.

The first concrete signs that the Putnam inn is to be four stories high was seen Monday morning, when carpenters began raising the framework on top of the third story of the original hotel building. When Landlord Rogers completes his new hotel, Putnam will have the largest hotel between Hartford and Boston. All the old brick front has been torn off and a new front fo tapestry brick is being built.

Mrs. Hannah Owens of Pawtucket, aunt of the late L. O. Williams, has been visiting Putnam friends.

Mrs. Jeanette Calista Case, 75, wife of William D. Case of School street, died Monday morning at Fairlawn hospital, Worcester. She had been in failing health for some time.

Mrs. Case was born in Ashford July 1, 1849, daughter of John and Calista Whitford. She married William D. Case, a Putnam shoe manufacturer, associated with the firm of C. M. Fisher & Co., at that time occupying a factory on the site of the present railroad station. They came to Putnam to reside and two ro three years ago observed their golden wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Case was a member and a regular attendant of the Second Congregational church, Putnam. Besides her husband, she leaves a daughter, Mrs. Charles Wesley Wilder, of Pittsburgh, Pa., and a son, Frederick H. RICHARD C. MORRIS, NEW LONDON, LEAVES ESTATE TO WIFE AND CHILDREN

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Aug. 25.—The will of Richard C. Morris, former United States marshal and city sheriff, was admitted to probate at a hearing in the probate court this afternoon. The will was drawn March 17, 1920, and was witnessed by Miss Ruth Keeney, Frederick C. Burrows and the late John C. Turner.

To the testator's son, Charles H. Morris, is bequeathed lot 48, section 10, in Cedar Grove cemetery.

To the New London Cemetery association is bequeathed the sum of $200, the income to be used for the care and maintenance of the lot given the testator's son and the other lot of testator.

To each of the testator's grandchildren is bequeathed $100.

The document provides that the testator's wife, Grace Morley Morris, and the testator's two children, Charles H. Morris and Grace Ruth Morris Warren, be given the testator's watches, jewelry and similar valuables.

To his wife is bequeathed $5,000, to be hers absolutely.

To the testator's wife is bequeathed the use for life of the residence corner of Broad and Hempstead streets and of the household furniture. Subject to said life interest, the testator gives said property to the executors in trust for the following purposes: To hold the title thereto, and to sell and convey the same in conjunction with a conveyance to his wife of her said life interest whenever she shall request them in writing to take said action. In cases of such sale the entire proceeds shall be held by said trustees during the life of his wife. Upon her death, the principal estate, consisting of said property, if unsold, or the proceeds thereof, if sold, shall be delivered to the testator's two children, Charles H. Morris and Grace Ruth Morris Warren, to belong to them in equal shares absolutely and in fee simple. The trust shall terminate upon the death of testator's wife unless there be then existing minor grandchildren of the testator; in that case said trust shall continue with respect to the shares of such grandchildren.

The testator appoints Charles H. Morris and the National Bank of Commerce executors and trustees of the said will and requests that no bonds be required.

William H. Metzermacher, a painter, was in the police court this morning, charged with failure to support his wife and two minor children. He denied that he was guilty as alleged and set up a defense that he provided as well as he could for his family, stating recently in the last few weeks in which he had given the family as much as $10. Mrs. Metzermacher disclosed that she had been under treatment in a hospital and that she had only a few dollars of her husband's earnings just before or just after the treatment on a sickbed. She said she had knowledge that her husband earned $51 in one week. He denied that, as he did the fact that he had been at work as a painter. The court allowed him two weeks with the understanding that if he failed to give his wife some of his earnings to the extent that the settlement shall be satisfactory he will go to jail and work for the county.

They were on Howard street Sunday with a livery horse which they hired at Avery's stable. There they beat the horse so cruelly that they were complained against and were arrested. The young men were rather inclined to be cocky when they gave their testimony and indicated that they had done something that might be applauded when they told of drinking the liquor they took into their systems in the open in Howard street. They were charged in the court not only with abusing the horse but also with intoxication, and were convicted of both offenses. Then they were fined and a change came over them. They did not have money to pay and keep out of jail. Finally an arrangement was made that they should be given until Saturday to settle their fines and the attaching costs, the total amounting to more than $60. Their acts on Sunday did not appear to be anything in the nature of smartness when the situation dawned upon the offenders and they were to be sent over the line to Franklin street jail.

Haga Murturfa, a Syrian, was peddling table and window draperies in the city today without having taken out a license so to do. Complaint was made to the police and in an hour Haga was under arrest. ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Broadway Theater

Here is a film which traces the story of the Bible from creation to the time of King Solomon, when she wise king sang his song of songs to his lily of the fields. And this picture is the Bible, without ornamentation, told baldly, shocking sometimes in its very baldness. After Six Days is not a mere movie. It is an historical record.

Before your eyes you see Eden, you see Cain slay Abel, you see a graphic portrayal of the flood, of the Ark riding the flood. You witness the building of the Tower of Babel the confusion of the peoples when they wake to find each man with a foreign tongue on his lips. You go with Joseph in his wanderings, you follow his brethren into Egypt where Joseph is the right hand man of the Pharoah and you enjoy the magic story of Joseph's revelation of himself to those who had left him in the hands of the robbers. And then Moses appears on the screen, a mighty Moses, leading his people out of the wilderness at the order of God, and you sense the tremendous drama in Moses' gesture of Godhood, which results in his own abasement before the God he forgot for only a moment. Then Solomon lives before your eyes, and the beautiful love story of the Bible is told sharply, in quick, clarifying strokes ending the sequence of scenes of the old Testament's story.

Short subjects include a comedy, Kinograms and a comedy novelty, Hello Frisco in addition to an augmented orchestra make this a fine program.

Palace Theater

To the average theater-goer the opening night of a new play is a social event— to the actress it is either grief or gladness that comes the next morning. To Gilda Lamont, admirably portrayed by Colleen Moore in First National's Flirting With Love, now playing at the Palace theater, the first performance of The Last Kimono, meant both happiness and sorrow.

Miss Moore shares co-featuring honors in this picture with Conway Tearle. Their splendid supporting cast consists of Winifred Bryson, Frances Raymond, Alan Roscoe, John Patrick, William Gould and Margo La Rubia.

Coming Thursday Friday and Saturday, Cornered with Marie Prevost.

Lyceum Theater, New London

To those who go to the Lyceum theater when Richard Herndon brings Barry Conners new three act comedy Apple Sauce to New London on Friday and Saturday, August 29th and 30th with a Saturday matinee, they will see that it is not necessary to make use of the eternal triangle or indulge in sex problems in order to provide an interesting play. Apple Sauce depends for its appeal on pure clean comedy growing out of the relations of the average American family in which optimism outwits conservatism. Every character in this play is known to every patron of the theater. In fact any person who sees this play can readily appreciate they might at some time or other in their lives have been similarly situated and moved by the same motives that push these characters from the rise of the curtain to the final act.

Breed Theater

Love's lesson, which appears to be simply—play fair, or You Can't Get Away With It, is presented in a production made by William A. Fox, from the story by Gouverneur Morris, which is the feature attraction at the Breed theater today. The story deals with a business man, unhappily married, who finds love with a girl employee.

Percy Marmont, who established himself on the screen with his interpretation as Mark Sabre in If Winter Comes, has the leading role in the new offering, with Betty Bouton playing opposite. Malcolm McGregor and other well known screen players complete the cast.

THE TEXAS PRIMARY.

Down in Texas the only political contest that amounts to anything is at the time of the primary when democratic candidates are selected. Texas is overwhelmingly democratic. It is one of those states where republicans are in such a minority that elections are a foregone conclusion.

Texas has just gone through a heated primary campaign in which there was more or less complication and a second vote because no choice was made on the first. It was the first contest of the kind in which a woman was candidate for governor of the state and it was a knockdown and dragout fight between the supporters of the Klan and its opponents. Likewise there was a test of the sentiment of the people of Texas regarding the probable reinstatement of the rights of the former governor who was impeached, since the woman candidate is the wife of former Governor Ferguson.

The Klan fight has eclipsed all the rest and the success of Mrs. Miriam Ferguson shows how the voters of that state stand on the question of that organization and politics. Mrs. Ferguson waged a determined fight against the Klan, which has been particularly active in the politics of that state and which is held responsible for the election of a United States senator whose election has been the cause of a long investigation in Washington.

With the overwhelming majority for Mrs. Ferguson there is no question but what Texas has spoken. It has given a record-breaking vote at the primary and by all ordinary means of judging the situation it must be regarded that the nomination is equivalent to election. This will mean that Mrs. Ferguson will go into office to be tutored by an impeached governor, but that was all taken into consideration before primary day, and it is not improbable that the former governor may be so exonerated as the result of his wife's victory that he will make a fight for the United States senate himself. Texas is a great state in more ways than one. It has now reversed itself on the Klan.

COMPULSORY INSURANCE.

Things are not always what they seem. Because a person owns and operates an automobile it doesn't necessarily follow that he is a man of money, or that he has funds or income sufficient to meet the expenses which such operation involves.

A chief of police in the state of Pennsylvania is quoted as being disturbed over the large proportion of motorists convicted of highway offenses who are unable to raise the price of their fines. They are in plain words going to the limit of their resources for the sake of operating a machine and in doing so they are not even careful enough to respect the requirements of the law and keep out of the courts.

But the Pennsylvania chief is probably not the only one who has been forced to realize the situation which he refers to. It is no secret about mortgaging the farm to own a car, or of buying cars under such methods that absolute ownership may never be required. There is a desire for keeping up with the other fellow and it is done without regard to the consequences. The expense of maintaining and operating autos is one which those in similar station in other years never had to reckon with.

For the past two or three years there has been a determined effort in some states to obtain legislation requiring every automobile owner to be covered by liability insurance. Many do it now for their own protection, but those who have nothing, who cannot meet their fines and who may be in debt for the car find it unnecessary to take such a precaution for they have nothing for which others might sue in case they smashed up another car. It is because of this situation, and the not recent recognition of the fact that there are too many instances where no recovery would be possible, that the compulsory insurance idea has been supported.

Bus lines are forced to provide this protection against the injury of passengers, and it is not surprising that the users of the highways should be anxious to be protected against the recklessness of those who have little or nothing at stake and who could not settle if a judgment was obtained against them.

OUR MERCHANT MARINE.

Attention is bound to be arrested when the claim is made that the American merchant marine could be operated without loss if the American ships could carry a little more than half of the American exports. In view of that statement it is evident that they do not, and it is no secret that the merchant marine for which we sought so long and for which we paid so much money is piling up a deficit hourly.

The quandary is at once raised as to how the merchant fleets of other countries fare in this respect, and it is found that they carry about the same as the British, or in the neighborhood of 60 per cent of the exports, while British vessels do about 30 per cent of the business between non-British countries.

Getting American export business for American vessels might seem to be no very difficult task in view of the support that would be given to American enterprise, but when it comes to getting results the situation is entirely changed.

The reason for the employment of foreign vessels for the carrying of the exports of this country is primarily that they do it for less money, and the dollar has just the same appeal in the matter of ocean transportation that it does in trolley fares or household expenses. There is no disposition to pay any more than is necessary. The mere fact that it is giving support to the merchant marine of this country doesn't alter the decision, even though it should be realized that whatever deficits are experienced through the operation of the ships by the government must be made up through taxation.

American ship operation cannot be done as cheaply as that of foreign vessels because of our shipping laws while it is invariably the case that foreign countries in addition pay their ships a subsidy.

From the experience which this country has had with its merchant marine and the inability to place it in the hands of private capital, it would appear that there is a wide gulf between the demand which was raised for an American merchant marine and the support which those who need such facilities are ready to give to it.

LOCATELLI'S ESCAPE.

Much relief will be felt over the finding of the Italian aviator Locatelli and his companion, alive and well, off the coast of Greenland. Engine trouble, rather than fog, appears to have been responsible for his descent to the east of Cape Farewell, where is was figured by the American aviators he would be found. This brings to an unexpected end the flight which this intrepid aviator was making and which may have its detrimental effect upon the flight which he was contemplating to the pole another year. It unquestionably furnished a test for his engine which will be of value in connection with future plans, whether he undertakes to reach the pole or to circle the earth.

This has been a year when many long distance and unusual flights have been attempted. Not a few seem to have been encouraged and spurred on by the ambitious undertaking of the Americans, but it is a fact which cannot escape notice that the Americans are the only ones which have carried through their plan, and in doing so have, with the exception of about 500 miles, negotiated the crossing of both the Pacific and Atlantic oceans, neither of which has been crossed by any of the others.

As to the elaborateness of the preparations for the Americans there is no gainsaying. All kinds of difficulties were anticipated, and in view of the accidents that have happened it seems not improbable that the plan of making the flight with four planes, instead of one plane carrying several, has been of great value to the expedition, the successful completion of which is now eagerly desired. Likewise it also appears that it contributed greatly to the escape of Locatelli from his perilous position.

ARMOR FOR PROTECTION.

With the government building armored cars for the transportation of mail, in order to frustrate the schemes of the mail bandits, the success of that experiment may result in the construction of armored cars of the Jules Verne, or dime novel type, for the purpose of preventing the frequent instances where holdups are staged and valuable loads of merchandise seized.

In addition to the movement of mail and the transfer of bank funds, the bandits seem to be able to get such information as they need concerning the transportation of valuable shipments of silk and other goods.

That such conditions exist is nothing to brag about. It is unfortunate that there is so much encouragement held out to gunmen and others to engage in such a business. Much of the old time practice of holding up trains is today transferred to the holding up of those engaged in highway travel. This is due to the fact that so much more of value is being moved in this manner these days, and so much leniency is to be obtained by those who are caught at the game, either of killing or robbing.

When it comes to the employment of armored cars, it is to be inferred that, in spite of all the protection afforded, safety requires it. It indicates that for the time being at least the bandit gangs are operating with such success that it is the only certain way in which their activities can be stopped. It will be still more unfortunate if the situation continues to grow worse and it becomes necessary for all who travel to do so in armored cars in order to be sure of reaching their destination safely, with their pocketbooks and jewels intact. It is to be hoped, however, that the treatment of criminals will be such before that day comes as to make any such provision unnecessary.

WEDDING BELLS

It is just the day before a wedding and a good imitation of a madhouse is being staged. In the midst of the confusion is the bride's mother, wearing a strained and patient smile.

Bride (imperatively)—"Mother, you answer that 'phone because I can't stop a minute from getting this thing ready for the hemstitcher's—if it is Bill I'll come because I haven't seen him since he stopped in this morning, and I've forgotten what his voice is like."

Cook (from the bottom of the stairs)—"It's a man at the front door and he says they're coming tomorrow to do the spring papering——"

Bride's Mother—"Of course they would pick out tomorrow after we have waited for them three weeks! Tell them they can't. The express wagon is stopping at the side door, Ellen—you sign whatever it is and if it is packed in excelsior have it opened down in the basement!"

Bride (protestingly)—"Mother-r-r! You haven't a bit of sentiment! Bring it right up here, Ellen, because I want to open my own wedding presents!"

Cook (appearing, panting)—"I signed it like you said to do, but it wasn't a package——"

Bride's Mother (snatching the duplicate slip)—"My grief, Ellen! It is a subscription blank for a $20 set of books! Whatever is all that banging at the back door?"

Telephone—"This is Bill, Mrs. Hartbreake—ask Doris if she knows Fat Smithers' address—I'm adding some names for announcements that I forgot. Can she come to the phone? I haven't seen her since morning—well, if she's busy, of course. Ask her if she's sure she can't fix it so Tommy can walk back down the aisle with that little Pierce girl. He's just crazy because he's paired off with Lillian. Ask her if she doesn't think we can get away through the side door and have our car waiting in the alley. Can't you fix it so they won't throw that fool rice? Can I send my suit case over this afternoon and will you put it somewhere so nobody can get hold of it? Ask Doris——"

Cook (calling from below)—"The boise was there trying to deliver the ice cream for the wedding tomorrow—they said it was today when it and I guess that big fellow will try to push past a girl like me again, maybe! He fell down those steps real hard and the ice cream on top of him! These curtains ain't back from the cleaner yet, either!"

Bride's Mother (frantically)—"My goodness, I'd forgotten the curtains: I'll call up——"

Bride (plaintively)—"I'm getting an awful headache, mother! Do you suppose you could pull out those basting threads? I wish I'd had Rachael do my marcel three days ago instead of now because I know the wave will be too tight tomorrow and Bill just hates it that way! I want him to have a perfect memory of me on our wedding day and how can he if my hair looks horrid? Do you suppose I'd ruin it if I brushed it hard? Do you think this rouge is the same tint I've been using? I want merely a faint touch of it because I just know I'll be white as a sheet! Bill says I'm the most nervous thing anyway!"

Telephone—"This is Isabel's mother, Mrs. Breatbreake—it's just awful and I donk know what Doris will do—but Isabel has come down with the mumps and can't be maid of honor tomorrow. It's just dreadful!"

Bride (opening telegram)—"Mother, Uncle Hiram and Cousin are coming after all! Whatever will we do with them?"

Cook (at the door, belligerently)—"If them sandwiches is to be made for the rehearsal tonight some more butter and anchocias. Somebody'll Somebody'll hafta help me if you expect cake—"

Telephone—"Hello, mother — Will you be sure to look my things over so they're all O. K. for tomorrow? Any time when you've nothing else to do, you know? Things beginning to look like a wedding around home, hey?"

Bride's Mother (pushing phone away desperately)—"Tell may they are!"—Chicago News.

Wallace, the Struggling Farmer

Although he was deeply interested in his studies, Henry C. Wallace had to leave college to take charge of a farm. He married, and then had to face one of the hardest times of agricultural depressions known in this country.

Wallace was born in Rock Island, Ill., the son of a minister, and was nine years old when his father was forced by ill health to give up the pulpit, and took up farming near little Winterset, Iowa. There the lad helped in the fields in summer and attended school in winter, learning in spare moments the printer's trade in the office of a country weekly.

At 19 he entered the Iowa State Agricultural College at Ames, and deeply interested in scientific farming, he became engrossed in his studies. He had been there only little more than a year, when he was called to take charge of one of his father's farms which a tenant had abandoned suddenly.

Within a few months he was married to a young lady he had met in college, and soon after they had established themselves on the farm there came the hard times that drove down corn to ten cents a bushel and pork to $3.76 a hundred pounds. The battle was hard, but by employing scientific methods, Wallace won out. Then he wrote articles about scientific farming that attracted the attention of leading agriculturists.

Meetings with these men aroused his desire for further education, and after five years of farming he returned to Ames and completed two years work in one. Then he was appointed Assistant Professor of Agriculture at the college and to spread his teachings he began the publication of Creamery Gazette and Farm and Dairy.

Later his father and brother joined with him in the establishment of Wallace's Farmer, and at 29 he was associate editor and manager, holding these positions for 20 years until he became editor.

Still interested in scientific farming, he took a leading part in organizations for the benefit of the farmer, his publication continued to prosper and at 54 he was appointed Secretary of Agriculture in President Harding's cabinet.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Thomas J. Walsh, leader of the Teapot Dome inquiry in Congress and chairman of the recent National Democratic convention, is seeking renomination as United States senator in today's primaries in Montana. Senator Walsh is 66 years old and a native of Wisconsin. His education was received in the public schools and at the University of Wisconsin. Like so many other men who have risen to prominence in public affairs his first vocation was that of a school teacher. In 1890 he located in Helena, Mont., and began the practice of law. At the same time he identified himself with the democratic organization and soon attained a position of acknowledged leadership. After an unsuccessful try for congress in 1906 and the senate in 1910 he was finally elected to a seat in the upper house of the national lawmaking body in 1912. He is now completing his second term. Senator Walsh has a national reputation as an authority on law and the Constitution of the United States.

A Little Talk on Thrift

Industrial Waste

No form of waste is more unfortunate than the waste of human material, yet the time of millions of workers in this country is wasted through means that are largely preventable.

For example, the average turn-over for industry as a whole in this country, we are told, is 30 per cent. In other words some 3,500,000 men change jobs an average of once a year. Each time a man changes jobs it means two weeks idleness and, according to the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics, which recently compiled elaborate data on these instances of waste in industry, most of the 7,000,000 weeks of lost time due to turn-over represents an unnecessary wastage of men.

From the same source it is learned that among 11,000,000 men employed in manufacturing industries there is a wastage amounting to 12 months unemployment for 1,500,000 to 1,750,000 laborers. This loss is due to the fluctuations in volume of employment and does not include periods of idleness of only two or three days duration, nor does it include idleness due to sickness and accidents, nor any of the 30 per cent turn-over above alluded to.

In the coal industry alone an average of 700,000 men are idle one-third of the time.

Considerably more data might here be quoted along the same line, but sufficient facts have been brought out to indicate one of the most lamentable sources of waste in our country—a waste which not only places an economic burden upon all our citizens, but, what is even more deplorable, constitutes a continual source of unrest and discontent.

There are some underlying causes which render the complete elimination of this wastage of human material impossible, but as Mr. Ethelbert Stewart, Commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics points out in the course of his review of this situation, a very large part of this enforced idleness is preventable. "Practically all of the labor turn-over," he declares, "could be stopped by humanizing the labor conditions and making some effort to get acquainted with the men."—American Society for Thrift.

Stories That Recall Others

The Essential.

Robert was invited over to a neighbor's for dinner. As the maid brought in the fried chicken and all that usually appears in the three year old, Robert continued to gaze furtively toward the kitchen. After the dessert course he voiced his judgment.

"You haven't got very much, have you?"

"Why?" asked the hostess a bit taken back.

"Well, I don't see any ice cream."

Mistaken Identity.

Jim drove up to a filling station for oil. The manager was busy so he volunteered to wait on himself. Scarcely had he raised the hood when a stranger approached.

"What kind of oil is that?" the stranger asked.

Jim told him he had been using the same oil for months and thought it the best for his make of car. He put the oil in, fastened the hood and started back with the empty can.

"Well, I thank you very much," said the stranger as he climbed into the car. "If I like the oil I'll come back for more."

It developed that two cars of the same make were at the station curb and Jim made the unfortunate misstep of putting the oil in the stranger's car.

pretty mother, as the bunny boy and the Yellow Dog Tramp hopped and trotted up the winding path through the bramble bushes.

"Be careful," twittered the tiny canary bird from her gold cage on the front porch. "You'll tell your secret."

"What did you say, little bird?" asked Lady Love, looking out of the kitchen window. But the wise Canary Bird never answered, for just then in plain sight came Little Jack Rabbit and the Yellow Tramp Dog.

"Sit down on the front porch," suggested the bunny boy's pretty rabbit mother. "Tell the little birdie what you've been doing. I'll be out in a minute or two," and she bustled quickly over to the stove and opened the door. Plucking a straw from the bright new broom, she thrust it into the lovely brown cake.

"It's done," she whispered under her breath, and quickly taking it out, she hid it safely away in the cupboard. Then, picking up a basket of peas, she hopped around to the front porch.

"Won't you and Little Jack Rabbit shell the peas?" she asked, after shaking paws with the Yellow Dog Tramp. "I must go right back into the kitchen."

"I have the lollypops," shouted the bunny boy.

"Yes, here they are," added the Yellow Dog Tramp. "I hope none of them came off their sticks. The knapsack gave a bumperty bump when I jumped over the Old Rail Fence."

"Just keep them here for a few minutes," answered Lady Love, anxious lest her bunny boy should bring them into the kitchen. "You finish the peas and then bring everything around to the back porch," and the busy little lady rabbit hopped back into the kitchen to make the frosting. It didn't take long. Dear me, not nearly as long as it did to shell the peas, for every now and then, and sometimes oftener, the little rabbit would stop to play marbles with the big green ones.

"Hey, there! Get busy!" barked the old dog. "I'm doing all the work." But I guess he didn't mind. He was so kind and he was so good that he often sawed a neighbor's wood. Wasn't that nice of him? Well, I just guess three times. For when I was a boy and used the old buck-saw I thought it about the toughest job I had to do, except to get up in the morning. Oh my, yes, indeedy.

By and by Lady Love called to them, "Bring in the peas and the lollypops."

"Lots of play, a little work,
And sweet dreams a-plenty.
Make a bunny boy grow up
Strong and good at twenty."

Twittered the canary bird as the little rabbit and his kind dog friend carried the lollypops and peas around to the kitchen. And I guess that little bird knew a thing or three, don't you think so, little reader.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Is It Right?

Mr. Editor: Would it not be well right now, before the candidates for the legislature are nominated, to get people a little interested in great injustice that is being done by the present personal tax law? There are thousands of women in this state who are dependent on others who now have to pay a tax. Is that right? There are thousands of soldiers' wives and widows who are compelled to pay a personal tax which the husband is exempt. Is that right? There are many women left widows with minor children in this state who are entitled by law to a state pension for widows, yet they have to pay a personal tax. Is that right?

"Publicity" is the only sure way to remedy mistakes of this kind for they are only mistakes, not intentional injury. I, for one, don't think our law makers intended to tax the classes of women I have mentioned unjustly, simply an error in framing the laws. Why not see that the next representatives elected pledge themselves in advance to get rid of such a law? I simply ask you readers, thats all.

Gambling Places.

Mr. Editor: Please allow me a small space to ask, What is being done to stop the gambling which is going on in this city? If they would be as persistent in raiding those places as they are in looking for liquor I know many wives and mothers would thank them. These places are open it seems at all hours of the night to 3 and 4 o'clock being nothing new, and even Sundays. Frequently spending the wages and in some cases what doesn't belong to them. They are facing the road to the poor house all right.

FORMER HEALTH COMMISSIONER RECOMMENDS FRENCH DISCOVERY TO TAKE OFF FAT

Dr. J. J. RUDOLPH and other Physicians advise SAN-GRI-NA for FAT PEOPLE.

Up to now, reducing had been an almost unsolvable problem. It was either a question of losing a few pounds and ruin your health with dangerous drugs or exercise not. To-day a French physician of unquestionable reputation has to his credit a discovery called "SAN-GRI-NA," which quickly does away with most distressing causes of obesity and at the same time improves the health and appearance and rejuvenates the entire system. "I consider 'SAN-GRI-NA' not only a remarkable fat reducer," says Dr. Rudolph, former health commissioner, but I advise it as a general tonic and health-builder for fat people." Physicians have used "SAN-GRI-NA" themselves, and have prescribed it to their immediate family and patients, thus proving that it is absolutely harmless and effective. "SAN-GRI-NA" is a small tablet which should be taken three times a day. It does not contain any dangerous drugs, and has been used by the discoverer in his own practice with most remarkable success. It is now recommended and sold in America by reliable druggists only, with guarantee of satisfaction or money refunded. "SAN-GRI-NA" does not reduce fat people over night. There is no miracle about it. It is a safe, gradual loss of flesh which varies from 4 to 6 pounds a week, leaving the patient strengthened and healthier with every pound of fat lost. No flabby tissues or wrinkled skin follow the use of "SAN-GRI-NA."

NOTE—Since "SAN-GRI-NA" has been introduced in America, it has created such a sensation that imitations cannot be avoided. If you want results, make sure that YOU ASK AND GET "SAN-GRI-NA." On sale at

OPERATION ADVISED FRIEND SAID "DON'T DO IT!"

Try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound First. Proved Good Advice

Chicago, Illinois.—"Just a few lines to let you know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. I was married going on for three years, and went to a doctor and was taking treatments twice a week for pains every month. I used to lie in bed three or four days with them and the doctor would call and inject something into my arm to put me asleep so I would not feel the pains. At last she said I would have to be operated on if I wanted any children. Well, I just happened to go to see a friend with her first baby and I told her I was going to the hospital, and she said, 'Don't do it! You go and get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and you won't need any operation.' So my husband got me a bottle right away. Now I have two lovely children. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to every woman. It has helped me and a lot of my friends."—Mrs. A. McANDLESS, 1709 South Morgan St., Chicago, Illinois.

NORWICH AUTO DRIVER IN NEW LONDON COURT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Aug. 25—Philip Mandell and his wife of 4 Thames street, Norwich, and William Fox, of 28 High street, also of Norwich, started for New Haven Sunday but they did not get nearer to the Elm City than New London because their machine was in a smash with another car. As a consequence those concerned in the smashup were in the New London police court today. Mandell charged Alexander Dick Mitchell with reckless driving and the latter, a chief petty officer at the submarine base, alleged the same infraction of law against Mr. Mandell. Mitchell was generous enough to conclude that both he and Mandell erred in judgment or the crash would not have occurred, but that opinion was not concurred in by either Mandell or his wife, so he sued, that he might have an action to recover damages. The substance of the testimony in court was that that Mitchell was at the home of Zadie Collins, another service man, in Crystal avenue. Mr. Le Fleur, of Montville, was also a visitor at the Collins house. Mitchell stopped and proposed to take Le Fleur to Montville and Mr. and Mrs. Collins went along as companions. Mrs. Collins was garbed only in a one-piece bathing suit, whether because the weather was hot or because she had just come from the beach was not disclosed. In going up the Norwich road the Mitchell car met the Mandell outfit near Gallows Lane. The cars met without any interruption whatever and when they parted the rear off wheel of the Mandell machine was badly damaged. It was an accident in the opinion of Mitchell, but Mandell seeing the woman in bath togs, supposed the party was joy riding and that the members of it had been drinking booze. He gave that as an unprejudiced opinion. He went further to say that he got out of his car and went to the party in the Mitchell car and then he was struck a good smart blow in the jaw by Collins. The latter admitted that Mandell was struck in the jaw and said that he (Collins) delivered the blow. "But I had good reason for that," said Mr. Collins, who declared that both Mandell and Mrs. Mandell went at him as though he was something of a beast and that they tore his shirt so that it was partially in tatters. "I swung for his jaw," was he way Collins expressed it, "because I had to protect myself." Neither party would admit that he was going at a speed to exceed 20 miles an hour. Mitchell said he saw that Mandell was to close to him, so he put his foot on the emergency brake and when he did that the brake stalled, and his car skidded against the rear of the Mandell car. Therein Mitchell thought both were in error in judgment. Mandell was so close to him that collision was feared and that led the chief to use the emergency brake. William Fox of 28 Hope street, Norwich, was in the car with Mandell and he confirmed what Mandell said, in so far as he saw what happened and in the estimated speed of both cars. The Mandells, husband and wife, and Fox declared that the Mitchell car was not on the right side of the highway, but that was disputed and the question was a mooted one at the end. The court declared neither Mandell nor Mitchell guilty of carelessness or recklessness and so rendered judgment. Collins was prosecuted for an assault on Mandell but the court held that inasmuch as his shirt was torn and he was not the aggressor, he properly was defending himself when he stopped Mandell with a blow on the jaw.

APPEALS LIQUOR FINE TO COMMON PLEAS COURT

J. H. Worrell, Spithead road, Waterford, was before Justice of the Peace J. James Floyd in Waterford, Monday afternoon charged with keeping liquor with intent to sell. He entered a demurrer, which was overruled and a fine of $200 and a sentence of 10 days in jail was imposed, but the execution of the sentence was suspended. Worrall filed a notice of appeal to the next term of the criminal court of common pleas and furnished a bond for his appearance at that time.

Worrall was taken into custody following a raid upon his home a week ago by Deputy Sheriffs Manuel J. Martin and J. H. Tubbs, the officers finding 52 cases of Scotch and rye whiskey beneath a stairway. Worrall claimed that the liquor was left at the place by a truck driver when the truck became disabled. The contention of the state was that the liquor was maintained by Worrall for distribution at a road house whenever the supply at the latter place was needed.

The passengers were transferred to another car and brought through.

(Special to the Bulletin)

Willimantic, Aug. 25—Fifty citizens, including one woman, attended a special city meeting held in the town building Monday evening, in charge of Mayor George W. Hickey. City Clerk James S. Donahue, Jr., read the warning which called for an additional appropriation of $10,000 to continue the work of sidewalk construction this season and $3,000 for repairs to the Bank Street Engine house. After a form of resolution had been read by Corporation Counsel T. J. Kelley, a motion to grant the appropriation made by Alderman P. J. Laramie was seconded by James P. Bath. John Regan offered the only opposition to the movement on the grounds that the working class could not afford an extra expense this year. The motion was finally carried. The amount is additional to $15,000 annually appropriated and which is now exhausted. The $3,000 for repairs to the engine house was approved by a unanimous vote.

A public hearing on the traffic question was held in the common council chambers Monday evening when various recommendations of the police committee in regard to making changes in local traffic and parking conditions were discussed at length. Mayor Hinkey opened the meeting with an explanatory address in which he asked the citizens present not to consider personal convenience above public safety. On the grounds that it might discourage residents of surrounding towns to visit the city, Judge George E. Hinman expressed himself as opposed to parallel parking which would allow only 50 per cent of the cars to park on Main street which now park there under the right angle system. He charged that the taxi cabs were taking the cream of the parking space and asked that they be removed. A two-hour time limit on Main street during the daytime was generally agreed to. One-way travel on Church, Center, North and Temple streets, going north on the first two and south on the other two with parking on both sides, appeared agreeable to the gathering. Opinions were given by P. J. Twomey, Willard L. Smith and Walter Stabner. Alderman James J. Lee recommended the musical counter of silent policemen and advocated that the committee on parking carry out its plans according to its own convictions.

INJURED HIMSELF TO AVOID HITTING OFFICER

The airplane accident at Niantic July 18 in which two National Guard Flyers were hurt resulted from the decision of the pilot not to risk the life of a non-commissioned officer who was in front of the plane at the time of the attempted landing.

An official report of the accident in which Lieutenant Arnold R. Rasmussen of Waterbury and Lieutenant Allen B. Stanhope of Niantic of the 11th Observation Squad, C. N. G., were injured when their plane crashed to earth has been published in The Nutmeg, the official organ of the National Guard Association of Connecticut. According to this account the crash was caused by Rasmussen's effort to avoid hitting Sergeant George Pranaitis, flight chief of the squadron.

CITY MEETING TONIGHT ON WATER APPROPRIATION

At a special meeting to be held this (Tuesday) evening at the town hall the voters of the city will be called upon to act on an appropriation not to exceed $60,000 for the purpose of raising the dam at the Stony Brook reservoir. By the plans of the board of water commissioners the dam will be raised five feet which will give the reservoir an additional storage capacity for 100,000,000 gallons of water, enough for four months supply for the city.

The commissioners have had plans and specifications for the reservoir improvement completed and provided the appropriation asked for is granted the contract will be let in the near future.

The accused used the car to visit a sick relative in Rye City, N. Y., and met with an accident while on the trip. He expressed a willingness to pay the damage done and the case was therefore continued.

The case of state vs. Kenneth Smith of Stonington, for operating a motor vehicle without a license was continued for two weeks. Smith was arrested by Officer William Ryan, following the automobile accident at Washington and Sachem streets, Sunday afternoon. Smith was driving an Overland five passenger touring car owned by Ivan L. Marsh of Stonington, and his car collided with a Nash touring car, owned and driven by Maurice Kelly of New Brunswick. It is understood that Smith has agreed to settle for all damage done. The $200 bond of $200 was furnished for the continuance.

Organizations and corporations bow in grief. One of the pillars of this church is broken. Friends have lost a staunch and true friend. We now offer him our loving farewells as he reaches the end of the long, long road and enters at last into the peace and rest of God.

THREE PLACES ARE ENTERED BY THIEVES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Aug. 25.—This morning it developed that three places had been entered by thieves since Saturday night. In neither instance, however, was the plunder obtained of consequence. Frank Scialabba, proprietor of a meat market, 60 Bank street, reported that the place had been entered earlier in the day and while Scialabba had temporarily left. The plunder obtained was about $1.50 taken from the cash register. The crook overlooked $75 in a desk drawer near the register. Earl DeWolf, a stable worker, was arrested by Sergeant Nelson Smith, shortly after the break was discovered. DeWolf denied the charge, but he was identified by a woman as having been seen in the rear of the market and when arrested the same amount of money as was taken from the cash register was found in his clothing. DeWolf will be given a hearing in the police court tomorrow forenoon.

The other breaks were at the plumbing establishment of Samuel Blender, 66 Bank street and the New London Lighting & Fixtures company, 108 Bank street. Entrance to the plumbing establishment was gained by smashing a window in the toilet. So far as could be determined nothing of value was taken. The place has been entered three times within a week. At the New London Lighting & Fixture store, a $20 gold piece and $6 in small bills were taken from the cash register. Entrance to the store was gained by means of erecting a ladder to a rear window which had been left unfastened.

HOUSE

Forest Hills, N. Y., Aug. 25 (By the A. P.).—A new star flashed across the tennis firmament today when George Lott, Jr., 17 year old Chicago schoolboy, who holds the national junior championship, eliminated R. Norris Williams, 2d, of Philadelphia, twice former titleholder, in a sensational upset marking the opening day of play in the national men's single championship.

Playing in this major title tournament for the first time, Lott uncorked the best game of his brilliant career to give Williams the most ignominous setback he has sustained since he ruled national heights in 1914 and 1916. The western youth took four sets to win, 6-2, 6-1, 1-6, 6-4, and though Williams, favoring an ankle he twisted in the Olympics, was obviously not at his best, he gained his triumph impressively.

A shower blocked what was slated as the feature match of the day, in which William T. Tilden was to start the defense of his title with the spectacular Spaniard, Manuel Alonso, as his opponent.

Besides the Lott-Williams encounter, several other upsets occurred, including the defeat of the veteran Australian, Norman E. Brookes, by Hugh Kelleher of New York, and the victory of Watson Washburn of New York over Robert Kinsey of San Francisco.

Other favorites, such as William M. Johnston, Vincent Richards and Harvey Snodgrass, advanced, while among the powerful foreign contingent the outstanding victors were Pat O'Hara Wood of Australia and Jean Borotra of France, Wimbledon champion, who downed Carl Fischer of Philadelphia, No. 7 ranking American.

Except for a spurt in the third set, which he won easily, and a rally in the final set, Williams did not show his best, while Lott had everything. Williams, although facing defeat, apparently did not care to take too many risks with his ankle and let many of Lott's hard drives whistle through for placements.

Stroking with severity both off his forehand and backhand, using excellent generalship and employing his service effectively, Lott maintained a dazzling pace to reel off the first two sets.

Lott stuck to his guns despite the loss of the third set and swept through to take the fourth set and the match in the most brilliant duel of the afternoon. Williams brought all his batter of strokes into play to check the youngster but finally succumbed. Lott was four times within a point of taking the final set and match before he finally pulled it out and left the court amid an enthusiastic ovation.

Tomorrow Lott's second round opponent probably will be Willard Crocker of Canada, who had a lead of two sets to none today when his match with George Whitlock of New York was interrupted.

The passing of Brookes from the tournament in this first match came as a surprise but the great Australian veteran, who has a brilliant international record over a score of years, was no match for his young New York opponent, Hugh Kelleher, after the first set. Kelleher, apparently overawed, dropped the opening set without winning a game, but finding that Brookes' strokes had little power, he ran out the next three sets, 9-7, 6-2, 6-2.

Brookes' defeat was attributed partially to his failing eyesight. It was said he has been having trouble of his sort and experienced special difficulty today in gauging the ball because of the dull gray light inside the stadium.

Robert Kinsey, fresh from his triumph in the national doubles championship at Boston, was outvolleyed and outgeneraled by Watson Washburn, Davis cup veteran, who ranks five places on the national list below the Californian. Washburn won in four sets, 6-1, 2-6, 6-4, 6-4. Kinsey sprained his left wrist badly in a fall at the end of the third set, but finished out the match with it swathed in bandages.

The foreign contingent fared well in its opening bid for honors against the pick of American stars. Gerald Patterson, Australian ace, did not complete his match, but his teammates, R. E. Schlesinger and Pat O'Hara Wood, advanced, while three Frenchmen—Jean Borotra, Rene Lacoste and Alain Gerbault—and two Japanese stars—Okamoto and Fudukai also remained in the running.

CUBS TAKE SPLIT IN DOUBLE WITH GIANTS

Chicago, August 25.—The Cubs and Giants broke even in a double header today, Chicago winning the first 3 to 2, and the champions the second 11 to 7. Barnes held the Cubs safe until the eighth inning of the first game when a single by Weis drove in two runs and tied the score. In the ninth Grigsby scored the winning run on an infield hit to Kelly, the latter's throw to Barnes and an error by Groh, who threw wild to first on O'Farrell's bunt.

The Giants victory was a slugging match in which ten runs were scored off Wheeler in less than five innings. George Kelly hit wheeler for two doubles and a home run, also singled off Milstead who was another of four Cubs hurlers used in the game. Nehf pitched all the way for the Giants. The score:

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch
Captain New York Giants

With a runner on first base, the batter hits ball sharply to the left of the center fielder. The runner on first rounds second and continues on to third. The outfield fields the ball but has little chance of catching the runner going to th—

Should the outfielder throw the ball to third?

In order to break up a possible rally, an outfielder should never throw the ball where he has no possible chance of catching a runner. Under such conditions, the outfielder should throw the ball to second, in order to prevent the batter, who has singled, reaching second. That always leaves the fielding team in a position to make a double play when the next batter comes up. In addition if the next batter does single, the team at bat would score but one run, where had the other been made to third, two runners would have crossed the plate.

AMERICAN HORSES MUST TRAVEL TO BEAT EPINARD

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 25. Stepping to the three-quarters post in 1:15 and to the mile in 1:42 4-5, Epinard, French thoroughbred, demonstrated to a small group of observers here today that the best of America's sprinters will have to show plenty of run to keep him astern. It was the first time that Eugene Leigh, Epinard's trainer, has asked the horse for speed. He got it in abundance.

Epinard's response left no doubt in the minds of the few who witnessed the workout that the French runner is in excellent condition and able to withstand any strain on his speed or endurance in the three international events in which he is entered.

Epinard ran with Idle Girl. The workout was on a private track, and the racer's time for the three quarters was only a second slower than the record for the course.

Rossie A. A. Defeats Voluntown

The spectators at the game between Rosie A. A. and Voluntown teams were treated to a nice lot of hitting when the Rossies defeated Voluntown on the latter's huckleberry pasture lot by a score of 12 to 1, Sunday afternoon.

Spike Liberty of Jewett City certainly received his in this game for after holding the visitors to nine hits for six innings, in the seventh he was hit for five singles and a double and in the next for two doubles, a triple and two singles and in the last for three singles and a double.

Each of the Rossie made two hits at least and Foote led the team with four. Chappell was hit for four singles and a double.

The home team should have been shut out but for two outfielders of the Rossie team colliding and causing one to drop the ball, the player scoring.

O. Wilhelm made the star catch of the game, catching a ball that was labelled for a triple. Score:

Goldstein to Defend Title.

COLEMAN TO PITCH FOR BENEDICTS TONIGHT AGAINST THE SINGLE MEN

After a four-days' armistice, hostilities will again be resumed tonight on the East Side, when the Henpecks and Asphalt Arabs will tangle up in the fourth game of the series. With the first game a draw, both teams will take the field tonight strongly entrenched with a victory apiece, and it's a tossup as to which team will be in the lead tonight after the dust has settled and the shadows of dusk have gathered over the Duwell field.

Both managers will send their best into the game and the Brown Derbies will be distributed freely should anyone slip up and pull any boners. Although the Married Men have hit the Single Men and their pitching has been of a better calibre, errors have proved costly and Manager Cook has decided that it's about time something was done. So he has recruited every man on the East Side that ever ducked a frying pan or stopped a rolling pin to either play or sit on the bench, and as soon as any of his most selected stars make an error they shall receive the ever handy and well known hood. So confident are the Married Men of winning that "Jumbo" James, the well known windjammer of the East Side district, has made a boast that should his side come out on the short end he will break loose with his rich tenor and sing any selection that the crowd desires.

When notified last night that he would do the twirling "Tod" Coleman, the Benedicts' ace, was tickled and made a statement that after tonight the Single Men's batting average would compare favorably with the size of their hats, as he is in even better condition than he was in the last game, when he allowed only four hits and retired eight men via the strikeout route. Although it must be admitted that Coleman has developed into quite a star, he also has developed an oversize cranium, and like many others who have come and gone before him, is bound sooner or later to be picked off his high perch and take a tumble into obscurity.

"Trickfoot" Risley, who drew a week's suspension last week, has been reinstated and may perform tonight. Other additions to the Single Men's lineup include "Dutch" Jahn, a portsider, whom Manager Pedace may start tonight, and "Doc" Hartley, another recruit who has been ironing 'em up in practice.

Should the Single Men come through tonight, they will bring out a brass band for the next game to welcome home the Mighty Berger, who returns from the Herring league on Fisher's Island this week.

SUB BASE TO PLAY RIVERVIEW ON WEDNESDAY

New London, August 25.—But two more games remain on the Submarine Base schedule and then the entire time can be devoted to football. The two remaining games are with the Norwich State Hospital on Wednesday, and Fort Trumbull Stars at New London on Sunday. The Base will be without a game an Saturday, that date originally was held open to decided the series with the Newport Torpedo Station in case both teams had each won a game. But this was not so and the Torpedo nine took both games and a third game was unnecessary.

The games scheduled to be played at the Bas Saturday afternoon had to be called off because of the inclement weather that prevailed that day. No attempt was even made to have the teams take the field, and in the end it proved to be just as well for a rain storm hit this city with such velocity that the necessary five innings would have never been played. Unless Lieutenant Arnold, schedule maker at the Base finds it convenient to have the New Haven team that was to play Saturday afternoon, play on Saturday, August 30, then there will be three more games on the gobs schedule instead of two, as previously expected.

The football candidates are daily doing their stuff, and the number of men over that number that reported in the first workout has increased slightly, the hot weather still keeping the majority from reporting. There is bound to be an increase in the total number as soon as the baseball team sounds its finale. Attempts are being made by the football schedule maker at the Base to schedule Boston College and Fordham University. This seems unlikely however for those institutions have already announced their full schedule for the season.

CITY LEAGUE WINNER TO BE DECIDED THIS WEEK

New London, August 25.—Making a poor start in which every known element had a hand to make it a poor one, the City league is at last coming into its own and the pennant winner will me undoubtedly decided definitely this week. Tuesday evening the major attraction of the year will take place with the Fort Trumbull Stars battling with the Knights of Columbus at Morgan Park.

All previous marks of attendance at a twilight game are expected to be shattered when these teams come together, for not only does there exist an intense rivalry but it so happens that this is an ideal setting for either team to romp home with the bunting. The Stars have a tough road to travel this week, and have three games to play, consequently their pitching staff may go back on them. Another thing required of the Stars is that they must gain a victory in all of the three starts, for a defeat means the end of all pennant hopes.

It is known for a certainty that the Knights of Columbus will never go down without a good battle, and when the Corticelli Silk nine battled with the Stars for seven innings with the score deadlocked at the end of the required number of innings, the Stars realized for once that they have a battle on their hands when these teams met again this week. The Taba nine is the remaining obstacle in the pennant hopes of the Stars.

FARRELL TIES WITH MAC FARLAND FOR LOW SCORE

Mamaroneck, N. Y., August 25.—Johnny Farrell of Quaker Ridge and Willie MacFarland of Oak Ridge today tied at 143 for low score among the 14 qualifiers in the metropolitan district of the professional golfers' association in the qualifying rounds for the P. G. A. championships to be held at French Lick Springs, Ind., September 14 to 20. The qualifying round, consisting of 36 holes, was played over the Quaker Ridge course. The other 13 successful competitors and their scores follow:

TRACK AND FIELD MEET AT CAMPUS WEDNESDAY

Many promising young track and field stars will be entered in the final playground meet to be held at the Academy Campus on Wednesday afternoon of this week.

Such a galaxy of playground stars as has never before been gathered will be present that day to show "their stuff."

Prospective luminaries from every playground throughout the city will be already to garner the laurels of victory for their home-ground. Wednesday will see coming Paddocks and Murchisons sprinting to fame—emulators of Landon and Osborne scaling the bar at giddy heights—proteges of Tootell and Wanzer playfully tossing the individual athletes, as far as consistent team-work goes the main contenders are Lake street Greeneville and Elizabeth street. For Elizabeth street, the Finkelstein Brothers are as speedy a pair of sprinters as can be found at any playground. Furthermore, the Purple and White squads are by no means deficient in the field events. Burke's and the elder Finkelstein's performances in the jumps as well as Walt Kenfield's star "heaves" in the discus and shot put events are all worthy of consideration. Elizabeth street, so far this year, boasts an unbroken chain of track victories. This is the best record credited to any of, at least the larger playgrounds.

The Green and Gold can not complain of any dearth, of cinder-path heroes. The suburbanites' cohort has in Bill Higgins a wonderfully accomplished all-round star. Outside of Williams of Laurel Hill, Bill is probably the leading athlete of all the playgrounds. The consistent work of Carroll and Ryan in all events should go far to put their team in the path of victory.

Charlie Corcoran's best man is without doubt Shea. So far this year "Jim" has performed creditably as an all-round man. With it's girl athletes, Lake street will contribute a great source of annoyance to its rivals.

Besides the regular run of events which will compose the track meet, which, by the way will be worthy of the patronage of each and every person in Norwich, Supt. Brigham has been kind enough to arrange a number of special features Thursday afternoon at the Chelsea Parade. Prize exhibitions of the "manly" art will be demonstrated by the leading pugilists from each playground. These bouts should afford much pleasure as well as amusement to the spectators. As a tremendous amount of enthusiasm was shown in the matches in Greeneville, it is expected that a like amount of interest will be taken in these matches.

Coaches Corcoran and Sheridan promise an unrivalled performance on Wednesday. As the work of these two gentlemen on the track and field department has been one worthy of the highest commendation, their attractive meet on Wednesday should be witnessed by everyone in Norwich, who professes the slightest interest in sports.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS REACTIONARY.

New York, Aug. 25.—Reactionary price movements characterized today's stock market until just before the close when a brisk demand developed for General Electric, sending that stock up more than ten points from its low to 274, and bringing about rallying tendencies in other sections of the list. Closing prices, however, were generally lower. Colorado Fuel showing a loss of more than seven points at 35 3-4 and declines of a point or so being quite common elsewhere.

Active short selling was in evidence throughout the day. This was encouraged by the apparent cessation of pool operations in several popular stocks and the institution of receivership proceedings against Wilson & Co.; Chicago Packers, stocks and bonds of that company recording sharp losses. Commission houses reported that substantial liquidation was for the account of small traders with weakly margined accounts, although a good investment demand for high grade rails and industrials developed through some of the odd-lot houses.

The so-called pivotal issues showed only minor changes on the day. United States Steel common closed 3-4 higher at 108 3-4 while Baldwin, American Can and Studebaker closed fractionally lower.

A bad break in cotton prices and the announcement of gasoline price cuts in New England undoubtedly were contributing factors to the day's selling. Some of the widest breaks took place in stocks in which pools were reported to be operating. International Paper dropped from 53 1-4 to 48 5-8 and then rallied nearly two points from its low. Net losses of two points or more were recorded by Chandler Motors, American Ice, American Water Works, Otis Steel pfd., Virginia Railway and Power, and Adams Express.

Rails were rather sluggish until just before the close when a good demand developed for the so-called Van Sweringen issues on reports that the Erie directors had accepted terms of the proposed merger with Nickel Plate with certain minor reservations. Nickel Plate closed 1 1-2 points higher at 111. Pere Marquette common climbed 2 3-8 to 61 3-8 and Erie common and first preferred and Chesapeake and Ohio gained about a point each. New Haven, which had sold down to 22 1-2, rallied to 23 3-4 off 1-4.

Other low priced carriers also were heavy, losses of a point or more being recorded by Wabash pfd "on the Wheeling and Lake Erie issues. St. Louis Southwestern and Delaware & Hudson. International Railways of Central American was moderately active around the year's high.

United States Cast Iron Pipe, Houston Oil, Jordan Motors, Maxwell Motors "A," Montgomery Ward and Sears-Roebuck were among the relatively few issues to close at net gains of a point or more.

Call money held steady at 3 per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged with business quiet.

Foreign exchanges displayed a firm tone. Demand sterling held fairly steady just above $4.48 and French francs ruled around 5 3-8. Most of the other rates showed only nominal changes.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Aug. 25.—Sharp breaks in Wilson & Co. issues following the appointment of a receiver for the company unsettled the entire bond market today. Prices crumbled generally in all groups except the first grade rails, most of which closed the day with small net gains.

Although the Wilson liens fluctuated nervously from the start of trading, heavy selling did not break out until after the announcement that receivership proceedings had been started. The decline in the convertible 7 1-2s at one time extended to about six points, but an official statement from the company that the action would be contested brought about a feeble rally toward the close. Net losses were 2 3-8 points for the first 6s, 3 5-8 points for the convertible 7 1-2's and 4 points for the convertible 6s.

Pronounced irregularity in the stock market accounted to some extent for the hesitancy of trading in other bonds, notably the rail issues. St. Paul mortgages again were active but subject to conflicting price movements, the 4's of 1925 displaying a firmer tone while the refundings 4 1-2's lost more than a point. Heaviness cropped out in Pennsylvania General 4 1-2's, Chicago Great Western 4's, Missouri Pacific 6s and Northern Pacific refunding 6s.

Other weak spots included Wickwire Spencer 7s which reacted 4 points and Third Avenue Railway adjustment 5's which fell back 3 points as a selling movement developed in all the local traction issues. Both the French government's active issues declined a point each on reports that the Dawes plan would encounter serious opposition in Germany.

Public offering will be made tomorrow of $12,500,000 Pacific Gas and Electric company 5 1-2 per cent bonds due in 1952, at a price of 98 and accrued interest to yield about 5.65 per cent. Proceeds will be used for plant improvements.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—Wheat rallied sharply today with absorption of offerings in the pit and prices which had hit the downgrade earlier in the session reversed their course and advanced to well above Saturday's finish. At the close wheat was 7-8 to 1 3-4c higher, with September 124 to 124 1-8 and December 129 to 129 1-8; corn was 1 3-4c lower to 1 1-4c higher; oats unchanged to 3-8c up and provisions ranged from 2 1-2c loss to 50c gain.

Renewed liquidation brought about a sharp decline in wheat values early following a firm start on reported strength in Liverpool, but after the selling spent its force the market here reacted with considerable buying of the September delivery. This was credited to houses with export connections indicating there had been a heavy export business done over night.

Corn and oats likewise were affected by liquidation, prices of corn declining more than 2 cents in some instances, only to recover in the later trading. Weather conditions were favorable for the growth of corn and for the threshing of oats, the movement in the latter increasing rapidly.

THE LATE DAVID M. JOHNSON WAS A NATIVE OF NORWICH

A Binghamton, N. Y., paper of August 11th had the following obituary notice:

David M. Johnson, 63, one of the best known business men of this city, for many years Binghamton manager of the Bradstreet business agency, and an outstanding figure in Masonic circles, died early this morning. He was on a week end outing with Mrs. Johnson at Penn Yan.

Mr. Johnson has not been in good health for about 18 months, since he sufferd a broken leg. His death was caused by heart trouble. He told his fellow workers at the Bradstreet agency last week of increasing pains in his heart.

Mr. Johnson for more than 30 years has been the resident manager of the Binghamton branch of the Bradstreet agency, with offices at Room 404 The Binghamton Press building. He has been a resident of this city since 1883 and has been prominently known in Masonic circles, in which order he held the 33rd or highest Scottish Right degree.

Mr. Johnson was born in Norwich, Conn., Sept. 19, 1860, the son of Joseph Johnson, who died in 1861, and of Jean McCowan Johnson, who died in 1881. His parents came from Scotland. He was educated in the public schools of Norwich and was first employed in a dry goods store there.

In 1882 he moved to this city and associated himself with the mercantile firm of Fowler, Dick & Walker, with whom he remained for two years, going to Easton, Pa., where he associated with a brother, who was engaged in the dry goods business. Two years later, in 1886, he returned to Binghamton and entered the employ of the Binghamton branch of the Bradstreet Agency.

Mr. Johnson was widely known in Binghamton and was at one time civil service commissioner under the late Mayor George E. Green. He was prominent in all activities of the Masonic order, and was a member of Otseningo lodge, 435, F. & A. M., over which he served as secretary since 1900. He was a member of Binghamton Chapter, 139, Royal Arch Masons; and has been a member of the Scottish Rite since 1895. He served as recorder of Kalurah Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., since its establishment in 1893; and his elevation to the 33rd degree of Masonry occurred Sept. 21, 1897. He was a member of Binghamton Chamber of Commerce and of the Young Men's Christian Association, and belonged to the Binghamton Rotary club. He was a member of Christ Episcopal church.

Mr. Johnson married March 27, 1884 Margaret Simpson of Conklin, daughter of the late Edward Simpson, who survives him. One brother, Joseph M., of Chicago, and a sister, Mrs. Agnes J. Blackburn of Norwich, Conn., also survive.

The funeral was held Wednesday, August 13th, at 3 o'clock from his home, 10 Oak street.

CITY PEOPLE STIMULATE COUNTRY CHURCH LIFE

The presence of city people in Connecticut country towns is stimulating the church life of these communities during the summer months when the churches are otherwise all but deserted. Not only are the summer visitors from the city attending the church services, but they are giving liberally to the support of these church services, thus making it possible for the communities to have resident ministers the year round.

Coming from the cities where church life is dormant during the summer, the city people, according to reports from the country towns, are attracted to the small country churches and take an active interest in the religious and social life that centers about them.

The resident minister in such a community thus has an incentive to stay in the country town during the winter months and his presence with his family makes life in the village immeasureably more interesting. But the church activity in the summer months of the city people makes it necessary for the minister to forego his summer vacation and take his holiday later in the year.

One Connecticut country town has just engaged a resident minister for the first time in seven years, the community having adopted the federated church plan, which mobilizes their meager or disunited numerical, social and financial forces and thereby furnishes an adequate task for a capable minister.

Other Connecticut villages are considering the advisability of adopting the federated church plan, which is already in operation in fifteen centers in the state. The Connecticut Federation of Churches, realizing the importance of the country church as a factor of the country church as a factor in conservation and progress, is co-operating through its committees on comity, rural life and social service, in putting the federated church plan into effect in the small towns.

LIEUT. COL. TAYLOR COMMANDS 304TH INFANTRY

Local members of the officers' reserve corps are interested in the announcement that orders received in Hartford from the war department transfer Lieutenant Colonel Emerson G. Taylor, O. R. C., from the general staff to the infantry and place him in command of the 304th Infantry, 76th Division, Organized Reserves. Colonel Taylor has been active in the reserve corps since he left active service when the wartime 26th Division was mustered out. He attended the two weeks training camp for officers at Camp Devens last month at which time he agreed to accept a transfer to the infantry in order that he might assume command of the regiment.

BOYYS AND GIRLS CONTRIBUTE TO MEMORIAL

The boys and girls from New London county who attended this year's short course at the Connecticut Agricultural college, contributed to the fund for the Charles Hubbard Memorial Poultry house at Storrs and was present at the exercises held incident to the dedication of the site and the laying of the cornerstone.

The story of Charles Hubbard, whose untimely death cut short his college career, and terminated a great deal of successful and progressive work along poultry lines, is told in the following news letter from Storrs, which is being sent to junior club members.

"Charles Hubbard was a charter member and at one time president of the Lime Rock Agricultural club, located in the town of Salisbury, the third club organized in the state of Connecticut. He first went into poultry work in 1915, when he entered the hatching and rearing contest, setting forty-five eggs. By the first of November, following, he had made $176 over feed costs on the birds hatched from those three settings. Included in this is considerable prize money which he won at Madison Squar Garden, and also the $25 to be held at the college towards his education here, because he cecame state champion in his first year of club work. Charles always tried to do his best in everything he undertook. His monthly reports came in written very carefully and correct in every detail.

"Beginning his second year with three hatchings of eggs at $20 per this boy hatched thirty-eight chicks and rasied them all. The picture shown on the screen last Saturday night represented Charles and his flock of Buff Orpingtons which made him the champion of the state of Connecticut for the second time and doubled the amount of money held here to help pay for his college career. The money had been offered by the Connecticut Poultry association to stimulate club work of this sort. Charles won $150 at Madison Square Garden, showing the first prize Buff Orpington cockerel and altogether made $210 for his year's work.

"The third year Charles Hubbard displayed the spirit that makes real 4 H club members and announced that while he intended to carry on his poultry work as usual, he would not compete in the state contest, but instead would offer a $50 trio of birds to the winner of the competition for that year. He did carry on his work and came out among the leaders as usual. The prize he offered went to a Mansfield Center boy.

"Shortly afterward Charles moved to Greenwich where his father had become poultryman on a large estate. He joined the Greenwich Poultry club which had been organized by L. M. Johnson of the Fairfield County Farm Bureau and made preparations to do a bigger and better job than ever before. In the summer of 1920, Charles suffered an attack of appendicitis and complication of a number of diseases followed with the result that after a game struggle the boy finally succumbed.

"Charles Hubbard always did his best. He never participated to any great extent in club activities outside of his own community. There were no blots on his record cards. There are no blots on his record. He lived up to ouh 4 H club motto: 'Make the best better.' He had always looked forward to a four year course at the Connecticut Agricultural college and $50 of his prize money was earning interest in the treasurer's office to help him out. Charles can never take advantage of that money, but augmented by contributions from other club members and friends the Charles Hubbard Memorial Poultry House will perpetuate the boy's ideal of service and make some deserving boy or girl the beneficiary of the results of his club work."

COVERED 1760 MILES IN AUTOMOBILE TRIP

George H. Amburn and his mother, Mrs. Minnie Amburn of Pearl street, with Miss Ione Breckenridge, returned home Saturday evening after enjoying a two week's motor trip in Mr. Amburn's machine, covering 1760 miles in New York, Canada, and New England states.

The first stop after leaving Norwich was at Conway, Mass., after which the trip over the Mohawk Trail was started. In turn Mr. Amburn and party visited Oneida, N. Y., Rochester, Niagara Falls and Ogdenburg, where they stopped to visit with Rev. William T. Thayer, a former pastor of the First Baptist church. A stop was also made in Ottawa, Canada and leaving the machine, a boat trip was enjoyed on the St. Lawrence river and to the Thousand Islands. On the return trip the party passed through the Adirondacks and White Mountains, across Lake Champlain and then by land to Portland, Me., then back along the coast to Norwich.

Throughout the trip no detours were met with, but one puncture was experienced and the weather was ideal.

POETRY

OH! FOR THE MOUNTAINS.

Oh! for the Mountains! Where sylvan retreat
Proffers blessed seclusion from bustle of street.
Oh! for the Mountains: Where the Divinity
Fosters haven of rest in Elysian vicinity;
Away from the world and its bicker and strife,
Away from the barter and dicker of life;
Away where the Solitude helps a man think,

Oh! for the Mountains: Where Sephyric breeze
Strums a symphonic lilt as it sougha through the trees.
Oh! for the Mountains: Where beauty untold
Surpasses in charm beauty purchased with gold;
Where the snow tints of Winter—where blossoming Spring—
Where the sunshine of Summer—where Fall coloring
Engenders in mankind the wish to survive,
Where thought becomes saner and spirits revive.

Oh! for the Mountains: Where prismatic ray
Sprinkles shadow of night with the sparkle of day.
Oh! for the Mountains: Where moods never cease;
Where the art of the Master incites masterpiece;
Where the artist can work with a will and a thrill
As he visions the valley mosaicked with rill;
Where the Muses propel him to go on creating
With a feeling of love that is self-compensating.

Oh! for the Mountains: Where empyrean height
Conjures vistas unhampered and oceans of light.
Oh! for the Mountains: Forever to dwell
A free-roaming nomad 'mid fountain and dell;
Where old Mother Nature is smiling always,
Where old Father Time puts his sickle away;
Where the pines in the twilight just whisper and nod,
Where a man seeks his rest at peace with his God.

HILLS.

I never loved your plains!—
Your gentle valleys,
Your drowsy country lanes
And pleached alleys.

I want my hills!—the trail
That scorns the hollow,
Up, up the rugged shale
Where few will follow.

Up, over wooded crest
And mossy boulder,
With strong thigh, heaving chest,
And swinging shoulder.

So let me hold my way,
By nothing halted,
Until, at close of day,
I stand, exalted.

High on my hills of dream—
Dear hills that know me!
And then, how fair will seem
The lands below me!

How pure at vesper-time,
The far bells chiming!
God, give me hills to climb,
And strength for climbing.

POSTAL INSPECTOR CHARGED WITH BEING MASTER-MIND IN $2,000,000 MAIL ROBBERY

William Fahy of the Chicago Force of Postal Inspectors Was Arrested in His Own Office in the Federal Building in Chicago—Went to Jail in Default of $50,000 Bond—Fahy Protests Innocence and Declares Arrest Was the Result of a "Frame Up".

Chicago, Aug. 26—William Fahy, regarded as one of the aces of the local force of postal inspectors, was arrested in his own office in the federal building late today charged with being the master-mind in the recent $2,000,000 mail robbery at Rondout, Ills.

Fahy immediately was taken before federal judge and his bond was fixed at $50,000. He made no effort to raise the bond and was placed in the county jail at Geneva, Ills.

Fahy declared his arrest was the result of a "frame-up" and asserted his innocence.

Fahy has been instrumental in clearing up some of the most famous postal department robberies. It was through his efforts that "Big Tim" Murphy, former powerful labor and gang leader here, was sent to the Leavenworth, Kansas, federal penitentiary for participation in the $1,000,000 Dearborn Street station mail robbery.

The arrest was made by Chief Deputy United States Marshal Sam Howard after Fahy had been under the surveillance of Charles H. Oldrahan, of the postal inspectors' service in New York for three weeks.

"We have obtained enough evidence to convince us Fahy was the 'inside man' in the robbery," Oldrahan said tonight. "We can show that he had a leading part in engineering the robbery, although he took no actual part in the hold-up of the train."

Fahy had been assigned to the Chicago office for four years, prior to which he was in the federal secret service in Philadelphia.

The Rondout robbery occurred late on the night of June 12. A special mail train of the Chicago Milwaukee and St. Paul railway was stopped by eight men 34 miles north of Chicago. The clerks barred the doors to the cars and turned out all the lights, but the bandits forced entrance by hurling tear bombs through the windows. The bandits escaped in two motor cars.

When news of the robbery reached Chicago, Fahy was one of the postal inspectors notified and he left his home immediately, heading a posse through the woods where it was thought the bandits were hiding.

DIPLOMATIC APPOINTMENT BY PRESIDENT COOLIDGE

Plymouth, Vt., Aug. 26.—Appointment of Edgar Addison Brancroft of Chicago as ambassador to Japan and of James Rockwell Sheffield of New York city as ambassador to Mexico was announced today by President Coolidge.

The appointments fill two major vacancies in the diplomatic corps. Both men are prominent in the law profession. Cyrus E. Woods resigned as envoy to Tokio in June and the Mexico post was made vacant by the resignation of Charles B. Warren early this month. Mr. Brancroft is a graduate of Knox college and Columbia university. He also is an author and is a brother of Frederick Brancroft, the historian.

Mr. Sheffield is a graduate of Yale and Harvard law schools. He is president of the Union League of New York, a trustee of college and a trustee of Carnegie endowment for international peace. He was formerly a member of the New York state legislature.

Negotiations have been under way between the state department and the two countries in regard to filling of the two posts for several weeks and definite word of the acceptibility of each was received today.

Mr. Woods resigned soon after the passage by congress of the immigration law carrying the Japanese exclusion provision by his action never was definitely ascribed to this law.

Mr. Warren resigned his Mexican assignment as soon as the new relations between that country and this were definitely established as he previously had arranged.

DAVIS ENUMERATES THE DEMOCRATIC OFFERINGS

Columbus, O., Aug. 26—(By the A. P.)—Common honesty, common justice, and common courage in government are the things that the democratic party has to offer the country, John W. Davis, its presidential standard-bearer, declared here today in his first address in the west. He spoke before the Ohio state democratic convention and was given an enthusiastic reception.

Mr. Davis said first of all there should be common justice in legislation, and courage in administration not only in domestic affairs, but in the foreign field and courage, "in the great cause of peace."

"I want the government of the United States not to tip-toe behind closed doors, for fear the senate may overhear it," the nominee said. "I want it not to sit abroad with unofficial observers, peeping through every international key-hole. I want it not to absent itself from the great council of the nations where the destinies of men are to be decided and divided. I want the United States as a nation to stand as an equal among the nations of the world and to her full share to bring about for all mankind a full and lasting peace."

FORD REGARDS KLANSMEN AS A BODY OF PATRIOTS

Montreal, Aug. 26.—"If the truth were known about the Ku Klux Klan, it would be looked up to as a body of patriots," Henry Ford is quoted as asserting in the Montreal Star today. "If (the klan) is the victim of a mass of lying propaganda," he is reported to have said, "and is therefore looked upon with disfavor in many quarters. But if the truth were known about it, it would be looked up to as a body of patriots concerned with nothing but the future of the country in which it was born and the preservation of the supremacy of the true American in his own land."

The interview was a long-range affair, the Star says, with the automobile manufacturer standing on the deck of his yacht, held up on its progress Dearborn-ward while a lock of the Lachine canal was being filled. The manufacturer shouted and gestured his answers to the newspapermen's questions thundered from the dock ten feet below him.

P. O. INSPECTORS RAIDED WORKERS' PARTY ORGAN

Chicago, Aug. 26.—Post office inspectors today raided the offices of the Daily Worker, organ of the workers' party, the party of American communists, and seized a number of papers in connection with an alleged lottery. No arrests were made but Antonio Prosi, editor of an Italian edition, Il Lavoratore, and Alvaro Badillo, business manager, were questioned. Officers of the Daily Worker said that the newspaper had no connection with the lottery.

TILSON IN CONFERENCE WITH PRESIDENT COOLIDGE

Plymouth, Vt., Aug. 26.—The buzz of political conferences and gossiping became distinct in this hamlet today as President Coolidge gave over some of his vacation hours to brief visits with party spokesmen and listened to other voluntary reports from visits from all sections whom he received.

Representative Tilson of Connecticut, director of the national committee speakers' bureau in the east, revealed plans for a speaking tour to cover the nation, starting from here September 9, after a conference with the president, and later with Vermont party leaders.

John Barrett of Grafton, Vt., as a member of the Coolidge independent information group, brought a report of gains by the president in the northwest as shown in a survey conducted since he delivered his speech of acceptance and compared with a similar survey made by his nomination.

Members of "the first national grange tour" slipped off their course in a journey through this section, to meet President and Mrs. Coolidge this morning and the party, representing farmers of twelve middle western states, likewise expressed in interviews a belief that republican success was in line in November.

FELIX M'MAHON HELD ON MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE

Putnam, Aug. 26.—Felix McMahon of Jewett City was arrested Monday afternoon by State Policeman Ross V. Urquart on a bench warrant signed by order of court, by Judge Frank H. Foss of Willimantic, assistant clerk of the Windham county superior court. McMahon was brought to Putnam late in the afternoon to arrange for a bond which was fixed at $2,000. Being unable to procure a surety on his bond, McMahon was taken to the county jail at Brooklyn.

The complaint was in two counts, the first being for manslaughter and the second for operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

The first count set forth that the defendant was operating an automobile on the highway between Plainfield and Jewett City, June 26th last while in an intoxicated condition and by his negligence injured Mrs. Mae Bennett of Norwich, who sustained five fractures of the back from which injuries Mrs. Bennett died July 25th. The case will come up at the September criminal term of the superior court.

BURGLAR SHOT DEAD IN SPOFFORD, N. H., BY POLICE

Spofford, N. H., Aug. 26.—Edward J. Patnode of Keene, an escaped convict, was shot and killed by police officers early today after a robbery at the store of David Slade. It was the sixth break there. Three burglars have been shot at different times, and Patnode is the second to die from his wounds.

When the burglar alarm running from the store to Slade's home signalled the presence of an intruder he called police officers, and they surrounded the shop. The burglar appeared an hour later with two bags full of goods from the store and was order to stop. He tried to flee, the officers fired, and the man went down.

Patnode died on the way to a hospital. A loaded automatic pistol was found in his pocket. He escaped from the state prison in 1921 while serving a term of eight years for an attempt to kill Constable John Allen of Alstead, who was shot in the leg.

URGED DEATH PENALTY FOR LOEB AND LEOPOLD

Prosecutor Declared the Boys Are Entitled to as Much Mercy as Two Rattlesnakes.

Chicago, Aug. 26.—(By the A. P.)—The labor of battering down the effectiveness of a four-day plea for "humanity, gentleness, kindness and mercy," was begun today by State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe.

Launching the final argument of the state in the advisory hearing before Chief Justice John R. Caverly in criminal court, Mr. Crowe struck out vigorously with a renewal of the state's plea for the death penalty for Nathan F. Leopold Jr., and Richard Loeb, for the kidnaping and murder of 14-year-old Robert Franks.

Mr. Crowe based his argument, he emphasized, not on the philosophies of the sages or the ages, not upon the "prattle and piffle of paid alienists concerning childish phantasies, and dreams of a superman," but "upon the laws of Illinois."

"And the law says," he shouted with a stirring gesture, "that in cases of extreme violence the penalty shall be fixed at death."

The state's attorney snapped his oratorical fingers at the mental sickness theory of the defense, based, he said, upon "hair line decisions of high priced alienists."

He made light of "all this twaddle about childish compacts, and youthful phantasies, and dreamlands of Teddy bears and detective careers," and called the proceedings "back from laboratories, psychopathic hospitals and communistic mass meetings to the criminal court of Cook county."

His argument once took him into the realms of controverted points, and precipitated as a climax to the day's proceedings, a disagreement between counsel which brought into the open record a portion of the coroner's physicians' testimony on his post-mortem examination of the body of Bobby Franks after it was found in a water-filled railroad culvert.

The defense maintained that Mr. Crowe had drawn an unfair inference as to the condition of the body in relation to the crime, an inference which they said was not borne out by the coroner's report.

To settle the controversy Judge Caverly sent for the report and announced a five-minute recess to give women an opportunity to leave. He assured them that court would adjourn immediately after the reading, but about half of those in the audience elected to remain, then the judge ordered them out.

"I want you to leave at once," he said. "Why persist in hearing this rot?"

Mr. Crowe was vigorous in his language. His gestures, particularly his pounding on the table before him, brought spectators to the edges of their seats.

"These two perverts," he cried frequently. "Their lives are worthless to themselves; they are a disgrace to their proud families; they are a menace to this community."

He scored the defense plea for mercy, and characterized Mr. Darrow "the professional protector of murder in Cook county."

The state's attorney's mood flashed from the pleading of facts to the ironical and then to sarcasm as he reviewed the testimony which six weeks of hearing has put into the record to aid Judge Caverly in fixing the penalty.

"If they were not certain that the state had prepared an airtight case" he said, "the plea would have been insanity. Instead, we now have a plea running all around insanity, yet never touching it."

"These children," he cried, pointing to the defendants. "these two poor sons of multi-millionaires, are here pleading for the mercy of this court."

A pause, and then, with upraised arm and deliberative tone:

"Your Honor, these boys are entitled to as much mercy as two rattlesnakes, flushed with venom and coiled, ready to strike; as much mercy as two mad dogs. The only use for them now is to go out of this life as quickly as possible."

The prosecutor replied also to the implied charges in the defense argument, which he said held him up to the world as a "cold blooded and heartless monster crying for the blood of two youths." his answer was the law.

"We may forgive our personal injuries," he said to the judge, facing him, squarely and half leaning on the rail which held him apart from the bench, "but neither you, as a judge, nor I, as a state's attorney, has a shred of right to forgive injuries to the laws, which we are sworn to defend."

Replying to Mr. Darrow's point that the crime was "aimless and without motive," the prosecutor asserted that the $10,000 ransom had "everything to do with it." He combatted the idea of the defense by charging that the defendants had first intended to kidnap a little girl.

The early adjournment of court today prevented Mr. Crowe in getting as far along in his argument as he expected. He probably will continue through the entire day tomorrow."

ROBBERY BY BANDITS CAUSE OF BANKRUPTCY

New Haven, Aug. 26—Robbed by bandits several months ago, a large part of his stock in trade being taken away by the thieves, and unable to make a satisfactory adjustment with his creditors, Antonio Mignone, of 760 Grand avenue, a jeweler, today filed schedules in bankruptcy. He placed his liabilities at $2,145 and his assets at $650.

Business is Showing Steady Improvement

United States Steel Corporation is Preparing to Meet Expansion in That Industry.

New York, Aug. 26.—Business in this country is on a solid foundation and the improvement that has been going on is in no sense artificial but is simply the response to a growing feeling of confidence and an increase in buying power all over the world, Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the board of directors of the United States Steel corporation, declared tonight in an informal resume of the business situation.

"There is at present in this country," he said, "an unusual demand and desire for whatever is produced, and the pecuniary ability to pay for it. As I have said before, there has been a steady, perceptible, though small, improvement in business, commencing several months ago. The improvement to date has been greater than I expected it would be, and is fully as large as I would like to see it. I mean that I would rather see a slow, steady and persistent growth in business than to see a rapid progress that might result in a sudden material reaction at any time."

"Our corporation," he continued, "is making larger expenditures for additions and improvements than we supposed a few months ago would be necessary or possible. We are spending at the rate of $5,000,000 a month for extensions and improvements. Our present intention is to expend at least that for the remainder of the year. This appears to be necessary to take care of the business on hand and what we expect to receive."

New orders of the corporation in the first 22 days of August were 10 per cent. above those of the same period in July, while shipments in the first 16 days of the same month ran 18.3 per cent. above the same period of the previous month.

The iron and steel manufacturers, Mr. Gary said, have reason to be satisfied with present business conditions. The gross reports, compared with information received a month and more ago, he explained, were surprisingly good.

Adoption of the Dawes report will have a good effect on business abroad and in this country, there are no labor troubles of any kind that are at all dangerous or threatening. Money is plentiful and rates of interest are low, he added. Railroads are commencing to buy for the fall and winter and next year and building operations are proceeding at a high rate.

French Senate Votes Confidence in Premier

Vote 206 to 40 Approval of the London Reparations Agreement.

Paris, August 26—(By the A. P.)—The senate tonight voted confidence in the Herriot government, 206 to 40, after a long debate in which M. Poincare scathingly criticised his successor's handling of France's interests at the international conference on reparatio in London.

The little ex-premier, though enjoying the confidence of the majority in the senate, was unable to overcome the power of the burly Herriot, who in a two-hour speech countered his predecessor's four and a half hour diatribe against the promise to evacuate the Ruhr within a year.

Defending himself against M. Poincare's attacks, notably against his sarcastic references to the British naval review at Spithead, M. Herriot said: "Yes, I went to Spithead, and among the ships I saw there I noted many whose names will remain in history for having protected our shores at Jutland and thereafter and I said to myself 'What a loss it would be for France ever to be separated from these comrades of the war.'

"Therefore I did my best to maintain the accord between the allies. I believe that that accord today is confirmed. I come before you without ambition, without pride, and I believe that the good work has been done."

BLAMES CHRISTIAN SCIENCE FOR CHANGE IN WIFE

Putnam, Aug. 26.—C. Allison Potter of North Woodstock has filed a suit for divorce from his wife, Marjorie Potter. The couple were married, March 8, 1907. The ground alleged is desertion since March 1, 1921.

Two years ago the Potters were in court, when the wife filed a petition for a divorce on the ground of intolerable cruelty. The case attracted a great deal of attention at the time and North Woodstock was split into factions by people taking one side or the other in the case. An attempt was made to get the couple together when the wife, on the witness stand, admitted that she still loved her husband. The attempt to reunite Mr. and Mrs. Potter was unsuccessful and the trial was concluded, but the decree was refused.

During the trial of the case the attorney for the defense attempted to show that Mrs. Potter, since becoming a convert to Christian Science, had changed toward her husband and her duties as a wife. A number of her fellow townsmen testified that, since the divorce affair had arisen, they could not believe Mrs. Potter.

Less than a year ago Mrs. Potter had her husband arrested for neglecting and refusing to support his children. In a justice court the husband was ordered to pay toward the support of the children. From this decision an appeal was taken and the case has never come to trial in the higher court.

Mr. Potter's move is the latest in the domestic troubles of the couple and so far Mrs. Potter has not appeared by attorney.

The Wanderer, last of the square-riggers which once made this port famous as a whaling center, set out yesterday on a cruise to the South Atlantic. Capt. Antone Edwards was in charge of the vessel, for which this voyage was planned as her last search for whales. Old-time skippers, their memories of stirring experiences revived, gave her a rousing send-off.

MANY WHO FEIGN PROHIBITION DISLIKE TO BE PARCHED

Prof. H. V. Arny, President of the American Pharmaceutical Association, Declares a Considerable Number Who Howl For Prohibition Have No Desire to Be Shut Off From Their Little "Nip"—Resents Their Method of Tempting Druggists to Become Rum Sellers in Disguise—Would Have Government Agencies Established For Handling Alcoholic Liquors.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 26.—Professor H. V. Arny of Columbia university, president of the American Pharmaceutical association, addressing the 72nd annual meeting of the association here tonight, condemned residents of a "dry" community who having "wiped out saloons, turn their attention toward tempting druggists to become rum sellers in disguise."

The association president urged the establishment of government agencies to handle alcoholic liquors and recommended reaffirmation of the stand taken by the association in 1921 advocating such agencies, adding:

"If American medicine suddenly has discovered that whiskey and brandy are valuable medicaments, let the fifth that has accompanied the liquor prescription business ever since the beginnings of prohibition in this country half a century ago, rest upon American medicine, upon the prohibition bureau and the sponsors of the prohibition bureau, the Anti-Saloon League rather than upon our own calling, pharmacy."

President Arny reiterated a view expressed by himself in 1915 when the Virginia Pharmaceutical association and certain pharmacists of Oregon urged that prohibition laws proposed in those states be so framed as to prevent the handling of alcoholic beverages by drug stores, at a time "when national prohibition was considered by most pharmacists as a fantastic idea."

"The weakest point in the prohibition question," President Arny said, "is the fact that a considerable number who howl for prohibition and a vast number who vote for prohibition, have no desire to be shut off absolutely from their little 'nip.' Residents of a dry community, having wiped out saloons, turn their attention toward tempting druggists to become rum sellers in disguise."

"We therefore feel," he continued, "that a very good way to handle the prohibition problem, as far as the drug trade is concerned, is along the lines suggested by the Virginia association druggists. When the people vote dry, let them be popularly dry as far as the drug store is concerned. Let them find loop holes, if they will, in the law passed by their votes, but let the druggists protect the fair name of pharmacy by preventing the 'respectable' element from using our calling as a cloak to cover their tippling tendencies."

TRIAL MAY INTERFERE WITH WHEELER'S CAMPAIGN

Washington, Aug. 26.—A prospect that Senator Wheeler of Montana may have to curtail his eastern speaking trip as the LaFollette vice presidential candidate to answer the indictment pending against him in his home state appeared today as a result of recent developments in the case.

Indications that the trial might be called in the near future were seen in an announcement from Senator Wheeler's office that Senator Walsh of Montana, democratic prosecutor of the senate oil committee and chairman of the democratic national convention, had been retained as Mr. Wheeler's chief counsel.

Engagements have been made for Senator Wheeler to open his campaign in Boston next Monday and to make a circuit immediately thereafter of a number of cities in New England and the east. He would not discuss that feature of the situation today, nor make any announcement except as to the retention of Senator Walsh to conduct his defense in court.

POLICE INQUIRY INTO THE MURDER OF GRAFF

New York, Aug. 26—William Kalzenbach, a former partner of Aaron Graff, radio cabinet manufacturer whose dismembered body was found last week in a Greenwich Village cellar, and the present partner of John Lugosy, a carpenter, sought by the police in connection with the killing today told them of business differences between the three.

He said they were in partnership until business discord resulted in an arrangement whereby he and Lugosy were to manufacture 1,000 radio cabinets which Graff contracted to market.

When the contract was partially filled, Kalzenbach said Lugosy endeavored to collect payment on the cabinets delivered, which Graff declined, the contract calling for payment when the entire lot had been delivered.

He asserted this led to an argument which ended when he told Lugosy to see him at his attorney's office. The meeting was to have taken place July 29, but he stated Lugosy did not appear and has not been seen by him since.

The police today also announced that they had found letters which showed that Lugosy and Charles Rase partners of Graff before Kalzenbach and now missing, had corresponded with several women.

They asserted that Miss Moxelle Griffin of Knightdale, N. C., one of the correspondents of Rase, verified rumors that Rase had contemplated a trip to Europe.

SLOOP SWEPT FROM MOORING AT NEW HAVEN

New Haven, Aug. 26—Planes of two New York couples, who had stopped off here during a cruise on Long Island sound, were interrupted today when the high wind that has been sweeping the east shore for the past 12 hours ripped their 40-foot sloop, the "Naulahka," from its mooring and swept it to sea. According to reports late tonight the boat had not been found.

The boat was said to be owned by Ward McWalter, of New York City. Mr. and Mrs. McWalter and another couple arrived here yesterday and anchored their boat at the New Haven yacht club in Morris cove. Returning this morning they found that their boat had disappeared.

A number of boats anchored off City Point broke from mtheir mooring during the high wind and several were brought back by power boats early after a hard fight with the heavy sea.

Smith that he and Lieutenant Erik Nelson were changing the engines in their machines at Ivigtut, Greenland, and that they would not hop off from there for the flight to Labrador until Thursday. This delay will enable the Richmond to proceed westward from Greenland waters and greet the aviators when they arrive at Indian Harbor.

Lieutenant Locatelli, the Italian aviator, who started on the flight from Iceland to Greenland with Lieutenants Smith and Nelson but was forced to descend, seemed in good spirits today after a full night's rest on board the Richmond.

Justice of the Peace Hubert P. Collins was on the bench and the prosecutor was Grand Juror Joseph N. Clarke. Attorney Foss represented the defendant who pleaded not guilty. He alleged that his car was under control and that he was not speeding. Another car crowded his own to one side of the road at the curve, causing it to smash into the fence. Stanley Allbwek of New Britain and Ernest Bernard of this city confirmed Hochberg's testimony. There were not witnesses for the state other than Deputy Sheriff Allison L. Frink who came to the site of the accident and saw the effects of the collision. Justice Collins found the accused guilty. A fine of $100 and costs with a remittance of $80 of the fine was imposed. A large barn at Scotland, five head of cattle including a prize bull, three cows and a heifer were lost in a hot blaze which suddenly enveloped the barn at three o'clock, Tuesday morning, from an unknown origin. The structure was located on the Charles Willis place in the town of Scotland and was owned jointly by Mrs. Lydia Ruggles and John McCarthy. The estimated loss is $5,000 on which $2,000 insurance was carried through a local agency. Mrs. Ruggles had $1,250 on the barn and $1,750 on the live stock and Mr. McCarthy had $1,250 on the livestock, $250 on the hay and $250 for tools. Mrs. Ruggles discovered the fire when the reflection in her bedroom window awakened her. The barn was about 150 feet from the house. The fire was beyond control when discovered and the heat from the blaze was so intense that it was impossible to approach the burning building. The doors to the barn were open and all but five of the sixteen head of stock which were housed in the barn made an escape and were found in the neighboring woods. Some of the cattle were slightly burned. Two automobiles in an adjoining building were run out to safety. The barn was one of the largest in the town and the reflection in the sky from the fire could be seen distinctly from Willimantic, several miles distant.

MYSTIC

If the storm of Tuesday was that variety sometimes spoken of as the "August corn-twister," it twisted not only the corn and other garden produce which has already been through so much this season, but it twisted everything else along with it. Not in a long time, if ever before, has Mystic been visited by such a storm.

It began Monday evening with a thunder storm and the rain continued throughout the night, with increasing wind and rain during the forenoon Tuesday until it reached its height between 10.30 and 1 o'clock. The wind blew a gale and the rain came down in sheets, causing a vast amount of damage.

On the west side of the river Pearl street was completely blocked by fallen trees; two large trees, one in front of the property of Dr. A. M. Purdy and the other in his yard were uprooted and fell across the highway, the top resting on the electric light and telephone wires on the opposite side of the street; three trees in the yard of Albert Burrows, next door, were uprooted, as well as a good sized maple on the lawn in front of the Chesebrough residence opposite. The flagpole in front of St. Mark's parish house was blown down. At the corner of Eldredge and Pearl streets, another large tree was uprooted and fell, carrying with it an electric light pole and just escaping striking the residence of Harry F. Hill on Pearl street. On Starr street, not far from the residence of Charles H. Davis, a large elm was uprooted and fell directly across the highway on top of a tree on the opposite side of the street which it took down with it, apparently, both landing on top of some small buildings in the rear of the barn owned by E. D. Williams. Another tree near the corner of Starr street and Grove avenue was partly uprooted, leaning across the street, ready to fall.

On the east side, along East Main street, branches were broken from the trees and in front of the residence of Dudley Bindloss the ground beneath the willow in his front yard was covered with limbs of willow broken from the tree. A handsome catalpa tree had its top broken off, on the grounds of the Stephen Palmer property on Broadway. On lower Church street a tree was uprooted. On Denison avenue a large limb was split from a tree and fell into the yard of the property occupied by the Holly family, just escaping the house; another large limb was broken from a tree in front of the residence of John MacDonald and fell over on another tree, which kept it from going to the ground, and so it was all over the place.

The poor old Gilbert block which has seen so much of misfortune had another blow in the storm, when the wind blew down the three-story brick wall on the front side, between the east end and the center of the building, leaving only the iron framework standing in that section.

It was a busy day for "Central" taking down the numbers of telephones that were out of order and handling the rush of business which such a day brings because people hate to go out and transact as much business as possible by telephone. It will take the repair men some time to put in new wires in place of broken ones and otherwise restore the service to working order. The electric light service was hard hit also and although the men from the local office were out all day trying to take care of trouble, it was impossible for them to be in all sections at one time because their territory covers Noank, Mystic, Old Mystic and Stonington, etc., and the storm was raging and creating havoc in all these places at the same time. Many wires were down on Pearl street, Denison avenue and other sections, and a number of poles as well, and men were left on duty wherever possible to avoid the possibility of danger from fallen wires.

In many places gardens were laid low and flowers broken and crushed. The streets in all directions were covered with decayed branches, broken limbs of trees, twigs, leaves, etc.

Norton C. Wheeler of The Standard Machinery Co., broke his ankle in two places, Saturday morning, while assisting some of the men in moving a heavy piece of machinery, which slipped and fell, striking his ankle and breaking two bones. Dr. L. M. Allyn reduced the fracture.

Miss Jennie Hopkins of Plainfield, N. J., granddaughter of the late Prof. George Hopkins who was a former resident here, has been the guest of Miss Georgia A. Ricker. Miss Ricker is spending the summer here. Miss Ricker is a teacher in Plainfield, N. J., and is very much interested and an active worker in the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc., of that place, of which she is a member.

Word was received here Sunday of the death in her 101st year of Mrs. Elizabeth Noyes, widow of James Noyes, at her home in Scranton, Penn. Mrs. Noyes was a frequent visitor here and friends regret to learn of her death.

Miss Clara Kellogg of Pawtucket, R. I., is the guest of her aunts, the Misses Kellogg.

There was a large attendance at the service, held in the Mystic Gospel tent on Denison avenue Sunday evening by Messrs. Hunter and Rankin, evangelists. It had been expected that this would be the last meeting held in the tent but as a number of people have requested that they be continued it was announced at the meeting Sunday evening that there would be services at the usual hour Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings of this week.

It was announced at the Mystic Bridge Congregational church Sunday morning that a farewell reception for Rev. and Mrs. George L. Farnham is to be held at the Congregational Parish house Friday evening. Mr. Farnham is to leave here soon with his family for Washington, D. C., to become pastor of Park Congregational church.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Denison were visitors in Colchester Sunday.

William H. Noyes of New York is the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Noyes.

Clyde Burrows of New York is a visitor in the village.

Miss Gertrude Leighton has returned to Brooklyn, N. Y., after a stay of a number of days in the village.

DANIELSON

Another northeast storm, blowing in from a southerly direction, so the weather sharps said, funny as that may seem, gave this territory a miserable day Tuesday. It was raining when the earliest riser crawled out of bed and took a squint at the weather. It poured during the morning and all through the forenoon, if there is any distinction between those periods of the day and it stuck at it through the afternoon. It was a rainy day. Take anybody's word for that!

Trees toppled over under the force of the gale. Branches were whipped off other trees, too firmly anchored or too youthful and strong to snap and break as they will some later day; fences went down, blinds banged and snapped off—and rubber-coated lads who assist men in distributing milk about the borough stood up and shouted in glee "It Ain't Goin' to Rain No Mo'." But it did!

In the yard at the premises of Dr. W. H. Judson, Academy street, a big tree snapped off close to where the trunk emerged from the ground. It spread its length over the lawn, happily not injuring anyone or anything as it came down. Streets about the borough were littered with broken lines of trees and other debris swept about by the vagaries of the storm.

It was a day turning one's thoughts to Fall. It seemed the death knell of summer, though it probably was nothing of the kind, no more than the red and green flashes from Mars, supposedly came from a whirling amusement contrivance at Coney Island.

Nevertheless, Tuesday was an unusual day for a late summer day—but there will be many beautiful days in September and October that will seem in contemplation, like leaves saved out of the fanciful season of the year.

There's no law against it—marvelous as that may seem! It is one of the things that anyone can still do—and get away with it. Someone has recently said that a person would have to study constantly for some 6,000 years to know and have a slight understanding of all the federal laws and state statutes of these United States; but after all that research and probable hope of finding the world protected against all ills, he might be tremendously disappointed over not finding any regulation prohibitive of playing a ukelele in a public place.

It has been said that one should not look for a cure for such a propensity dealing with diseases, chiefly of the mind. Of course, that's an opinion. But it so happens that many people share it.

Thousands of people might not be offended at all to meet a group of young men, with their hair marcelled, at any time or place, strumming away on instruments they do not know how to play, but making the day—or night—hideous with the clatter. On the other hand, he-men who think of other days, are inclined to say "Hell and Maria," or something like that, get really peeved and eventually offer to go out and hold hands with the embryo musicians. A real man just has to do something to relieve his feelings on an occasion like that.

Danielson is having a ukelele epidemic just now. Some time since smallpox afflicted this territory. But you can't vaccinate a ukelele with any positive hope of good, and vaccinating one who plays one on the public street seems almost as hopelessly productive of beneficent results.

Danielson banks, notwithstanding general poor business conditions, have had an excellent summer's business. They have not reached any new high marks, but they have made progress and today rate among the strongest and most reliable in the state, all things considered, and that should be a source of satisfaction for all who do business with them.

This community isn't going to do much about Labor Day—except make it a holiday and a day of rest. Business will be generally suspended and those who can get away to points where there is much doing will get away. They will not have to go far for amusement unless they are suffering from wanderlust. Wildwood Park will be open and there will be plenty of diversion there—and it is near home.

A man with an idea remarked on Tuesday that it was—funny how the wind would blow down trees throughout the borough that were of use for shade and other purposes and in the way of no one and leave intact trees that a unanimous vote of the town, in meeting assembled, couldn't even knock a twig off, though such trees—the ones along the south side of Davis park—have been condemned to go for more than a year. This tree situation is getting on the nerves of numbers of Danielson's citizens. Likely a memorial relative to the matter soon will be addressed to the state highway commissioner. Danielson has arrived at the point where it wants to know why the trees do not come down, especially in view of the fact that they are a menace to human life.

Albert Field, 16, son of Sergeant and Mrs. Albert Field, is a patient at Day Kimball hospital in Putnam, making progress toward recovery, after an operation for appendicitis performed Sunday.

Mrs. Sarah Bard, in her 88th year, was reported Tuesday afternoon as critically ill at her home in Brooklyn. Mrs. Bard is the widow of J. Sprague Bard and mother of Treasurer Sydney W. Bard, of the Brooklyn Savings bank.

Remarkable as it may seem, Dark Lantern hill did not turn in any serious accidents on Tuesday—such a rainy day as usually results in cars piling up or overturning over there.

South Killingly—in observing its old home day and general annual reunion on Labor Day—anticipates entertaining one of the largest crowds that has gathered in that community in a long time.

Cards and letters coming through from members of the service battery who are performing their annual tour of duty at Camp Eustis, Va., tell of their work and pastimes and of their experiences in making the trip to the mainland.

During the past few days the central fire station, as to its woodwork exteriorly, has been receiving a coat of paint to put in prime condition for the winter season.

Some damage to the highways of Killingly resulted from the storm of Tuesday, but in the majority of instances such damage was of minor consequence and such as is anticipated in considering the care of the town's highways during any fiscal year.

William A. Chester of Taunton was a visitor in Danielson Tuesday.

The number of looms in operation at the plant of the Face Manufacturing company—on Main street—has been increased to about 250. At the same time the looms in the old plant on Franklin street continue to click off hundreds of yards of material daily. It is not likely that the old mill will be abandoned before spring.

Marie Louise Charon, 8, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Charon, of Wauregan, is dead at their home. The child underwent an operation at the Day Kimball hospital, in Putnam.

William Hanlon, 62, of whose history little is known here, died in a mill boarding house at Pineville, in this town, and his body is now at the undertaking rooms of L. E. Kennedy. Mr. Hanlon came here on a visit from some place in New Hampshire and though he had worked in mills in this town little is known about his history. An effort was being made Tuesday to trace relatives. He is said to be a 32nd degree Mason.

Mrs. Delvina Godreau, 78, born in Canada, is dead at her home here. Mrs. Godreau had been a resident of Danielson for a great many years. She leaves the following daughters and sons, Rosina Marion, who lives at home, Mrs. Emma Blanchette, of the West Side, Mrs. Josephine Bussiere, also of Danielson, Mrs. Frank Larose of Moosup, Didienne of the West Side and Nestor of Danielson.

PUTNAM

The citizens' committee engaged in organizing the Citizens' National Bank of Putnam held a meeting with Chief Bank Examiner N. S. Bean and Receiver Charles H. Coffin at the First National bank, Tuesda. What transpired at the meeting was not made public. Judge M. H. Geissler, following the meeting, stated that there was nothing new to be given out. He said that the committee was going forward as rapidly as possible with plans to organize the new banking institution.

It is rumored that an examiner from the office of the comptroller of the currency, Washington, may arrive in Putnam during the week to investigate the situation, relative to granting the proposed new bank a charter. This is said to be the usual course in such cases.

Another move in the sequence of events following the tragedy, expected most any time, is the formal arraignment of Cashier Gilpatric before a United States commissioner and the fixing of bonds. A question now more or less under speculation is as to whether or not Gilpatric, having been placed under arrest, the government is responsible for his expense at the hospital, as well as for his safe keeping.

From statements made some time ago by Gilpatric's brother, Walter H. Gilpatric, a New York lawyer, it is not anticipted that the criminal case against the cashier will ever come to trial but that in all probability a plea of guilty will be entered when the time comes.

The outstanding feature and the personal side of the situation relating to Gilpatric, whose wrong-doing brought about present conditions, is that there is not the slightest feeling apparent that he should be severely punished. No citizen of Putnam has been heard to say that the law should deal harshly with him. This may be due in part to the fact that it is known that he will be totally blind for the rest of his life. At least to some people this is looked upon as a greater punishment than the law could impose.

While outside the brown Chautauqua tent on the high school grounds, Tuesday, was wet and soggy, inside was sunshine and the true Chautauqua spirit. The children turned out unusually well for the meeting of Junior Town in the morning and not an officer of the town was absent. The officers for this year recently elected have just been announced as follows:

Mayor, Judith Sabin; clerk, Lillian Fisher; law and order committee, Ernest Brayton; Edna Kent, Edward Sprinkey, health commission, Phoebe Franklin, Richard McCauley Ledoux Debonte; recorder, Blanche Green. Every morning the town committee is called to order by the mayor and the clerk reads the records. Then follow flag salutes, the flag song, Junior Town song, "I'm proud of my town," and "America the Beautiful." The Junior leaders tell stories and there are stunts and games. Tuesday was set apart as "Health Day" and there were timely talks on that topic.

The rain caused a smaller audience Tuesday than on previous days, but, considering the hard storm, the attendance was greater than anticipated. In the afternoon there was a full concert by the Smith-Spring Holmes orchestral quintette. Another concert was given in the evening, with a lecture, "A Survey of the Living Present," by Hon. Quinn O'Brien.

A touring car owned by Manuel Surpis of Sommerville, Mass., was slightly damaged when the wind blew down a large elm in the yard of George Annis, Mechanic street, Tuesday morning shortly before noon.

Mr. Surpis and his three children have been guests of the Annis family and but a few minutes before the tree fell had arrived in the yard. The three children had scarcely alighted and gone into the house when the crash was heard. It was thought by the people in the house that an automobile accident had occurred and they rushed out to find the car hidden in the branches of the large tree which split before it fell. In order to extricate the car the tree had to be chopped away.

Reports received from various sections surrounding Putnam are that there are forty happy children from the East Side tenement districts in New York enjoying a taste, in most instances, their first, of real country life. As the country boy and girl find delight in the strange sights of the city, so these children find delight and a longing to remain in the country where they are free to romp as they please and pick flowers, vegetables, and fruit, try to milk the cows, ride home on the load of hay and, after a day of new experiences, sit down to the hearty, wholesome meal, placed on the farmer's table. A little homesick at first, it will now be a task to get them to return to the noise and crowded conditions of their city homes. They have another full week ahead of them, however, as they do not leave for the return trip until next week Wednesday.

Mrs. W. J. Bartlett has received word from her daughters, Misses Ruth and Dorcas Bartlett, who have just started on a winter Chautauqua tour with the Festival Quintette, that they are enjoying the new life immensely. While in Bangor, Maine, all of the entertainers were given a luncheon at the Bangor Women's club.

This section has had practically 24 hours' hard rain. It was greatly needed, as many wells and springs had gone dry. Local farmers say that early corn is not up to average, but that the later varieties are doing well.

Mayor Victor Chandelaine has returned from his summer cottage at Oakland beach.

William E. Jackson of Willimantic, investigator for the state attorney's office, was in Putnam, Monday, assisting in getting ready the list of criminal cases for the September session of Windham county superior court.

Rev. Charles F. Sedard, pastor and Rev. Arthur Routhier, curate, have returned from a business trip to Canada. Rev. Charles Bedard announced Sunday that he and Rev. Adrian Dykeman, his curate, were to go into retreat this week at Keyser Island, off South Norwalk.

Everett Wells of North Scituate, R. I., formerly of Putnam, was calling on friends in the city Monday.

Putnam horsemen will be at Readville, Mass., today (Tuesday) for the opening of the Grand Circuit meet. Peter Boreal, of the Hilltop stables, Putnam, is among the entries.

An automobile driven by a Massachusetts man collided with a horse hitched to a road cart, driven by Delore Dumas, Sunday evening. The wheels of the cart were demolished and the horse somewhat injured. On Monday the owner of the automobile made a satisfactory settlement for damage caused the Putnam man.

Fred Case of Worcester was in Putnam, Monday, called here by the death of his mother.

Putnam's headquarters company of the 43rd division held an outing and field day on the old golf grounds near the swimming hole at "Tourtellotte's" Sunday afternoon. Several hundred people watched a variety of sports, including races, boxing, wrestling, etc. No prizes were offered, but some of the contests were hard fought.

No more enthusiastic members of the Chautauqua audiences are to be found than the children from the Windham County Temporary home. The girls attend in the afternoon and the boys in the evening. The entertainment was made possible for 80 children, through the generosity of Putnam lodge of Elks.

People who live near the junction of School street and the Providence pike are telling of hearing as many as six pistol shots, apparently fired from a passing automobile a few nights ago. One man became interested enough to start up his car and follow the speeding car but did not overtake it. People all along the route were awakened by the shots but as nothing has developed it is now believed that the person in the car who fired the shots was just celebrating and having what he looked upon as a big night.

On account of Saturday's rain the golf match between the Putnam Country club and the Southbridge Country club, to have been played in Southbridge, was postponed to a date to be set later.

STONINGTON

A typical northeaster struck here Monday night and developed into the worst storm this district has seen in many years, at this season. The storm broke about 9 p. m., Monday, and increased in fury throughout the night. The wind continued to rise steadily all Monday night and all day Tuesday, accompanied by torrents of rain.

Great havoc was wreked on all the gardens and trees in the vicinity. Every street was thickly strewn with leaves and branches blown from the trees. A number of trees were blown down. Fruit was blown to the ground in wholesale quantities.

Mrs. Albert Fort had a narrow escape when the chestnut tree opposite the Burtch building, one of the largest trees in town, was blown down just after she had passed under the spot where it fell. The accident occurred at noon. Mrs. Fort had just come up the driveway, leading to the Recreation pier. As she passed under the tree she saw the sidewalk rise and fall as the tree was blown back and forth by the strong wind. The moment she turned and stepped on the porch of her home the large tree fell, not three feet away. The tree tore down numerous telephone and lighting wires as it fell and a large part of the sidewalk in front of the Kupolouski home was torn up. A scene of people in the vicinity saw the greatetree fall. Stonington people highly prize the beautiful trees for which the village is noted and much regret was expressed at the loss of this tree. Only last spring the Davey Tree Surgeons from Kent, Ohio, had carefully trimmed and cemented it where necessary, but so many roots have been cut away in the past that it was unable to withstand Tuesday's storm. It fell lengthwise in the road blocking traffic. At 2 o'clock when the gin stopped men employed in the highway department chopped the tree into portable pieces and carried it away.

Among other trees which fell was the large maple in the northeast corner of the park, near St. Mary's church. A large limb falling from one of the trees in front of the residence of Stanley H. Pierce on Main street wrecked a part of the fence bordering that property.

A large number of yachts made the harbor before the storm struck. The Idalia and several other large yachts had to use two anchors all day, in order not to be blown seaward. In spite of this most of the boats could not hold to their moorings much longer than a half hour at a time and had constantly to be working their way back up the harbor.

When the rain subsided at 2 o'clock many people lined the shores to watch the huge breakers many feet in height, which could be plainly seen breaking over the East Breakwater. The storm gradually wore itself out and clear weather came in the early evening.

Several camping parties at the foot of the railroad pier had their tents blown away during the violent part of the storm.

WESTERLY

Westerly experienced the worst storm Tuesday that has been felt so far this season. Beginning with threatening clouds Monday evening a short thunderstorm was followed by a series of showers, each one of which seemed to be more severe than the preceding one. At 10 o'clock there was a downpour seldom equalled and streets and gutters were flooded. Numerous automobiles which had the rain driven under the hoods into the engines were left out all night by their owners, to be started by towing Tuesday morning.

The downpour continued almost uninterruptedly during the night and Tuesday morning the wind increased in velocity until almost a hurricane was blowing at noon, thousands of limbs and branches of trees were scattered about and nearly a hundred trees, large and small, were blown down or uprooted. About noon a large ash tree, 60 feet high, near the Union street entrance of Wilcox park was blown across Broad street, completely blocking the street so that passing automobiles used the sidewalk in front of the Westerly town hall. In falling this tree fell with its topmost branches upon the Buick touring car, 73-249 Conn., listed as owned by Joseph M. Sullivan of 91 Liberty street, Stonington, which was unoccupied and parked in front of the Westerly town clerk's office. The top of the automobile sustained slight damage. While a force of highway workmen and Wilcox park employes were at work clearing away the fallen tree, a still larger locust on the south end of the knoll by the comfort station was uprooted, the earth clinging to its roots, and fell toward the public library. The branches on the side of an adjacent slippery elm tree were ripped off by the tree as it fell. Another tree on the north side of the park was blown over. It was noticeable that trees which had been cared for by tree surgeons withstood the storm well.

Among other trees blown over were a large maple tree in the Elm street school grounds, in the yard of Henry Segar on Newton avenue, carrying away street wires with its fall; in the yard of Edwin Gavitt on Beach street, ripping the fence; on Cross street where the highway was blocked. In Pawcatuck Selectman L. C. Purtill was occupied in removing fallen trees on Lester avenue. West Broad street and in Solomonville on the Westerly-Stonington highway. A tree was blown over near the William Clark mills, in the yard of John Donahue on Lincoln avenue, where the tree overhung the house, at Judge William A. Wilcox's, where the top branches were thrown against the house, on Morgan and Palmer streets and in Wilford court. On the Pawcatuck river bank, below the Maxson lower dock, a large tree, uprooted, had its branches in the river.

The Pawcatuck river rose rapidly with the heavy rains, but the smaller streams which flowed into it became torrents which flooded streets and roads near them along the upper courses of the river. A telephone wire fell on Broad street and the linemen of the Westerly Light and Power and the Westerly Automatic Telephone companies were kept busy in picking up fallen wires in and about Westerly and clearing poles and branches of trees. Telephones and electric service was interrupted to such an extent that manufacturing plants were out of service.

Swing signs on the business streets were blown down. A large plate glass window at the left, in front of the Douglas shop, at the entrance to the Rhode Island hotel, was broken, as the hotel swing door was blown violently against it. A 10x12 section of a tin roof was blown into Dixon House square and against an automobile as it crashed into the driveway of the Rhode Island garage.

National Defense Day, Friday, Sept. 12th, the sixth anniversary of the Battle of St. Mihiel, will have a fitting observance in Westerly. An organization meeting was held Monday evening in the rooms of Harold W. Merrill post, No. 16, American Legion, on Broad street. The meeting was called to order by the Defense day committee appointed by Governor Flynn, consisting of Col. Everett E. Whipple, Thomas V. Clancy and Franklin C. Smith.

Col. John Champlin read the orders of the war department regarding the mobilization of men on that day between the ages of 18 and 45 years who believe in national preparedness who will voluntarily associate themselves with the 595th Coast artillery for the one day only. Capt. George A. Stillman explained the meaning of the reserve company and end of the formation of a company being started in Westerly.

At the meeting a National Defense day committee was chosen as follows: George P. Chapman, chairman; Miss Lucy M. Crowley, secretary; Thomas V. Clancy, Herbert P. Clark, Carl E. Burdick and Edward J. Butler, publicity; Col. Everett E. Whipple, marshal.

It was voted to carry out the National Defense day program in accordance with the wishes of President Calvin Coolidge. A mammoth street parade is planned. The committee contemplates the assembling of all units of the National Guard or organized militia at the armory together with such men as would join these units in case of emergency. Reserve officers, Citizens' Military training camp students, veterans' organizations, patriotic societies and Boy and Girl Scout organizations will be invited to participate in the parade, which will be held at 6.30 o'clock in the afternoon followed by a review in Wilcox park and addresses.

Richard O'Brien of Solomonville, on the Westerly-Stonington road, sustained a dislocated right shoulder blade about 10 o'clock Tuesday evening at that place when knocked to the roadway by the Ford touring car driven by W. A. Ruthford of Batesville, Ark. Accompanied by his son, Mr. Ruthford was proceeding toward Stonington when Mr. O'Brien, who had been to the milk wagon of James Crowley to obtain milk, was crossing the road and was hit by the rear right wheel, as it was claimed the automobile swerved to the left to avoid hitting the man after the horn was blown. The injured man was attended by Drs. Charles P. Crandall and Michael H. Scanlon of Westerly. The Ford car is being held by Pawcatuck Patrolman Francis J. McMahon, who investigated the accident, and pending the outcome of the affair.

The severe storm of Tuesday reminds Stephen Collins of Westerly, who came to Watch Hill to reside in 1869, and resided there for many years, of the wreck of the steamer Metis, Aug. 30, 1872, during what was called an "early line storm." At the time of the disaster Mr. Collins was living in New London, where he made his home for eight years. The Metis was a sound steamer which was in collision off Watch Hill Point and the hull of the boat sank in deep water, while the upper deck floated ashore. Many bodies of the drowned passengers were taken ashore at Watch Hill and others were taken into Stonington by fishermen who went to the relief and saved a few of those struggling in the waves. This was the greatest disaster off the Westerly shore up to the sinking of the steamer Larchmont on the night of Feb. 11, 1907, the coldest night of the winter, while the moon was shining brightly.

At Watch Hill Monday a fluctuating barometer indicated the approach of a storm of severe nature and official warning was received by the coast guard station that all boats be securely moored. Extra care was taken to observe passing vessels if in distress. The wind blew from a quarter which would not drive a high surf upon the beach, nevertheless, exceptionally high breakers were rolling in and an angry sea was running off Watch Hill Point. In Little Narragansett bay there was hardly a craft that did not drag anchor and most of the boats kept power on to stem the flood. The awning to the Watch Hill Yacht club house was blown off. Watch Hill was without electric lights Tuesday night.

Atlantic avenue and Crandall lane was deep in water, from the severe rains unable to run off the scooped-out highways. On the high tide the sea run up under the verandas of the cottages. The Stralsin cottage on the beach had its roof bown off and the family was forced to return to Westerly. The tent colony fared badly, as their canvas shelters were blown down, and the occupants sought shelter in neighboring cottages. Monstrous breakers rolled in upon the beach.

Highways about Westerly were badly washed in places. On School street between Chestnut street and Chester avenue, where the surface had been rolled for the placing of "hot mix" top dressing, a thousand dollars' damage was done the highway. Due to a breakdown at the hot mixing plant at the gravel pit at White Rock, an extra amount of surface had been prepared, and this will all have to be gone over again, as the material was washed down upon the completed surface at the lower end of School street, and, forming a dam, the waters rushed off on either side of the highway on to the adjoining grounds.

JEWETT CITY

Harold Faust and David Ballou are home from a trip to England and the Continent. Edward Faust is to return later on another liner.

Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Bliss had a week end visit with their son Donald, in New Bedford, making the round trip by automobile.

The largely attended funeral of Patrick Leyden was held at St. Mary's church Monday morning. Solemn requiem mass was celebrated by Rev. Patrick J. McCormick of Washington, D. C. Rev. R. P. Morrissey of Plainfield being deacon and Rev. J. J. McCabe, sub-deacon. The bearers were: James T. Shea, Michael E. Shea, John Lee, Daniel F. Finn, William Griswold and Michael Fogarty.

For a waiting hymn Mrs. Garand sang Some Sweet Day. Father McCabe read the committal service in St. Mary's cemetery. Hourigan Bros., were the funeral directors in charge.

Relatives were present from Providence, Bridgeport, Groton, Narragansett Pier and Boston.

John Misiorek, known as Cabbage, a driver for Adam Rojeski, got a smile from his lucky star at the Lisbon station Sunday evening. Cabbage was there with Adams big sedan, he made the often fatal mistake of cranking with the gears in high. The big machine gave a lunge, and dove for a high bank close by. Cabbage dodged the wheel, and thinking only of closing the throttle, he caught the window post and was snatched on the running board. Now the high bank was reached, the sedan partly mounted it and overturned, squarely on top of Cabbage. He was extricated in a few minutes and hurried to Dr. J. H. McLaughlin's office. The doctor found many cuts and bruises, with possible internal injury, the seriousness of which is not yet stated.

Those who righted the machine say, that had Cabbage missed the running board, both feet would have been taken off. The heavy metal bound foot platform, was driven into the hard gravel more than half its width. Minor repairs to the machine were necessary.

When it comes to premiums, to go to the daring ones, this little Quinebaug hamlet steps forth and receives the berries. Sunday, Harry Howes, who has been laid up for a few days feeling the need of a barber, sent for his friend, George Lague, who arrived promptly with the necessary tools and implements. Harry's mother, Mrs. A. J. Tinker, who has just passed her 76th birthday, inquired of the visiting artist, if he was bobbing much hair lately. Upon being told that he was kept busy, bobbing, a good deal of the time, Mrs. Tinker declared that if she could only get down street handy she believed she would have her's done. George said, "Sit right down there on that stool, and I'll do my prettiest job, and its free, seeing as I'm here!" And he did. Mrs. Tinker never did look much over half her age. But now, say, not a day over 50.

Funeral services for Miss Sarah A. Lee, were held at her home on Palmer avenue, Tuesday afternoon. Rev. J. P. Richardson, pastor of the First Congregational church, Pachaug, was in charge of the services. Mrs. Geo. H. Lee of Providence sang Abide With Me and Beautiful Isle of Somewhere. The bearers were Miss Lee's nephews, Homer L. Lee of Webster, Mass., George H. Lee of Providence, R. I., Melvin and Leonhard Richmond, of Moosup. Burial was in the Jewett City cemetery.

A storm of unusual severity, which began with a thunder shower Monday evening, did not let up until Tuesday afternoon. A gale blew most of the time, leaving the streets littered with limbs and branches, broken from the trees.

The electric lighting system suffered the most. Electricians from Danielson and the borough linemen were busy all day in an effort to keep the broken wires intact. The high tension line caused the main trouble and the big circuit breakers kept kicking out all day. The borough system was working shortly afternoon, and operated normally whenever the power came in to the big transformers at the power station.

No storm in this section has equaled in severity the one just passed. Over two inches of rain fell. Corn is reported flat in several sections of the town.

A Guarantee of Greater Economy and Comfort

The Brougham

The Chrysler Six goes to new lengths in low center of gravity and perfect weight distribution. The result is steadiness and solidity not found even in two-ton cars of previous design. Such a feature as this, when combined with the Chrysler Six special six-ply, high-speed balloon tires and the Chrysler-Lockheed hydraulic four-wheel brakes, adds immeasurably to the comfort of the rider.

The Chrysler Six

Pronounced as though spelled, Crysler

No car has ever been equipped at once with so many valuable features effecting economy as well as performance as the Chrysler Six.

Take the oil-filter as an example, an exclusive Chrysler Six feature. Every 25 miles of driving the crankcase oil is automatically cleansed and purified. Think what this means in economy as well as in motor life and motor efficiency.

It is by no means merely a question of reducing oil consumption. Oil freed of all grit and abrasive matter can do no damage to moving parts. The mechanism is kept clean and healthy, which means greater freedom from repairs and longer life.

So it is with the air-cleaner, another valuable Chrysler Six feature which purifies the air drawn into the carburetor, removing harmful and destructive particles. Familiarize yourself with these Chrysler Six features, including the new combustion chamber and the new spring suspension. Then let us arrange for a demonstration.

We are pleased to extend the convenience of time-payments. Ask about Chrysler's attractive plan.

A DIRE THREAT.

If we are to judge from the warnings issued that stowaways found in the ZR-3 will be dropped overboard attached to a parachute, it is evident that stowaways are not wanted and this threat is made in the belief that it will be sufficient to deter any with such a thought in mind from making the attempt to come across in the dirigible. It is in fact issued as if there was a strong belief that some would undertake to hide away in the inner recesses of the big airship for the sake of the adventure.

Such an announcement brings to mind the possibility of being elected in midocean. The thoughtfulness of providing parachutes for the stowaways would insure their reasonably safe descent, but thereafter they would be in a particularly undesirable position. One can imagine many situations in which one would prefer to be, and if we can judge the temper of the threat there is no desire on the part of the dirigible commander to resort to any such drastic course. Possibly it would be so that he would relent before actually heaving a stowaway overboard, or he might try to land him on a steamship or near-by, but the evident purpose of the statement is prevention. Anyone bent upon accompanying the ship would not be deterred by the thought of immediate deportation. That would have no terrors any more than the imposition of some judicial penalty, for he would willingly pay such a price out of satisfaction for the fulfilment of his desires.

No one anticipates that human beings are going to be ejected into the Atlantic from the ZR-3 intentionally. The presence of those in excess of the crew is clearly not desired. Most people would be as eager to keep out as those in charge of the airship are to have them but it is that small number of adventurous enthusiasts which needs to be guarded against. Even though the threat does no good it is not improbable that it will be enforced no more severely than the punishment promised by the father who warned Johnny, he would be whipped so within an inch of his life if he didn't get home before the parent counted 20 only to have the counting stop at 19.

HOME CANNING.

There was a time when little attention was given to canning until the autumn days had come. Then there was the putting up of fruit and pickles for the winter.

Canning hasn't undergone a decline, but rather has it been put on a better basis. There have been organized efforts in behalf of such work which has produced most excellent results. It is not only the housewives who are engaged in the preservation of fruits and the making of pickles but the young people are likewise extensively engaged in such work. And in addition to fruit they can nearly everything. There is an organized effort to prevent as much as possible of the surplus garden truck from going to waste. There is a canning of vegetables, chicken, meat, large and small fruit, in addition to the many relishes. The list is a long one, the results are highly interesting and the products make an impressive display.

Home canning is carried out on a much larger scale than ever before. Methods have changed but it has been found that much which has previously gone to waste can be saved for future use, and there has been a quick recognition of the value attached thereto and no great difficulty in arousing an ingrest in the work.

Such efforts have not only created a rivalry in neighborhoods but they have resulted in many a farmhouse being turned into a small canning factory with no small demand for the products therefrom in cans, as well as the fresh produce in season.

Perhaps as good an idea of the widespread appeal which modern canning has made is to be gained from the exhibits by the canning clubs and the similar exhibitions at the various fairs. These indicate the great variety of articles that are being conserved and many who have been impressed by the possibilities and have hastened to obtain the benefits. Canning operations such as are done in the homes are invaluable and instead of being confined to the summer and autumn are carried on throughout the entire year with profit.

APPEALS FOR ARMENIANS.

Many have been the calls upon the American people for the purposes of relief in the near east. Large have been the contributions by the generously disposed of this country and those who never turn a deaf ear to the cries of humanity in distress.

As much as it might have been desired it does not appear that conditions in that part of the world have been brought to the point where no further assistance will be required from other countries. The Armenians have long been the object of worldwide interest. Their position and plight have called forth large gifts through resentment of their treatment by the Turks and because of a recognized feeling that they deserved it.

When they were transported to Greece it was supposed that a solution of their troubles had been reached. Now it appears that Greece needs the territory occupied by the Armenians for the use of its own people, while the Armenians which are located elsewhere in the near east than in Greece are reported to be in a particularly unstable situation.

A special guardianship is being exercised by the league of nations over the Armenians in Greece and it is preparing to transport them to a point near Erivan, Russia, for permanent settlement to which Greece will contribute $300,000 as a part of the transportation cost. Armenian orphans to the number of 50,000 are being cared for by the American Near East Relief organization and appeals are being made in that behalf that there may be no curtailment of the excellent service that is being thus rendered.

Appeals in behalf of the Armenians therefore are directed toward two objects, the maintenance of the work of the Americans among the orphans and the moving of the exiles in Greece to a new location. Battered about from pillar to post the Armenians are deserving and there is good reason to believe that the additional aid sought in their behalf will not go unheeded. Humanity maintains an interest in human distress.

WHAT MIGHT HAVE HAPPENED.

Because Springfield is going through the throes of a change in trolley fares and the introduction of more one-man cars much is being made of the unfortunate and unusual situation which developed on one of those cars when the motorman-conductor was fatally stricken at his post. As it happened there was a former conductor talking with the motorman and he quickly shut off the power and applied the brakes. No harm was done but much speculation has been indulged in as to the possibilities of such a situation.

It was a most unusual situation, but it is quite as easy to work oneself up into a frenzy over the possibilities of the same thing happening to the motorman on a two-man car when he is alone in the front vestibule and with the curtain pulled. It is quite as easy to imagine the terrible things that might happen to a bus under similar circumstances when the passengers have even less chance to do something before a crash might occur than would be the case with a trolley restricted to tracks and having an emergency cord to be pulled in case of trouble.

When there is a chance to express narrow and biased views perhaps none is made the object of them more than a public service corporation. There is no gainsaying the fact that every possible protection should be thrown about the traveling public, regardless of what the vehicle may be in which they are riding, but the molehill which is elevated to a mountain in regard to one is the mountain which gets molehill consideration as far as the other is concerned. Springfield trembles over what might have happened but didn't in this case, but does so only because of antipathy to the one-man car and ignores even worse possibilities.

SOVIET TACTICS.

How long will it be before funds are solicited for the relief of the famine threatened Russians? These appeals have come in varying degree for several years. There has been different excuses. Crop failure is a serious matter, but when there are good crops and the grain is used for export that the soviet government may be maintained instead of being used for the feeding of the hungry it spells condemnation of soviet methods. And yet what has been done in that direction bids fair to be repeated.

From Moscow there comes the report to the effect that the soviet government has been making a study of the crop situation and finds that 75,000,000 pounds of grain will be exported, it being figured that the needs of the people can be met from the remainder of the crop and last year's surplus.

From London comes the statement that as the result of the British investigation of the Russian grain situation a shortage of four million tons is disclosed and if there is carried out the plan of exporting grain for the covering of foreign currency needs of the soviet government abroad there will be danger of starvation in those districts where drought has caused millions of Russians to be threatened with a famine.

Soviet Russia has previously resorted to the plan of exporting grain when its people were starving, only to appeal to the world for the sending of relief that the hungry and sick might be saved and getting it. The intention to repeat such a performance should not go unnoticed by the rest of the nations, and it will be a most deplorable situation if Russia is actually going into it with its eyes open.

GETTING A HAT

Aunt Maria—"I doubt it; they look so tiny on top, here's a salesperson."

Salesperson — "A large crown did you say, madam? These are all we have, and they all have small crowns. It is a trifle early for the style you wish."

Lady—"Early? I thought it was late. I want a soft-looking sailor with a crown large enough for my head."

Salesperson—"Ah, I see, madam has hair! No, I am afraid not. But perhaps you might find something in the ready-to-wear section."

Lady (in the ready-to-wear section)—"I want something in a sailor effect to be trimmed with ribbon. A large crown, please."

Salesperson — "Utterly impossible, madam, we have nothing for you. You see, madam, these are what are being worn now, and we cannot fit a hat over hair, you see, madam."

Lady—"Well, my aunt would like to see something in a black hat of simple style, if you please."

Salesperson—"How about this? It has an air with that red crescent on."

Aunt Maria—"I wish a black hat."

Salesperson—"And this is a cut hat. That bright blue pompon is so very dashing. It looks grand on you, dearie."

Lady—"My aunt is in mourning and wishes a black hat."

Salesperson — "Here's exactly the thing for you dearie. Don't you love it on her? Makes her look so young, you know."

Aunt Maria—"I have no desire to look young, I don't like that explosion of tulle and that crazy thing at the side."

Salesperson—"I know what aunts and mothers are! They just won't be bossed, that's what! Dear me, you look grand in that hat, dearie. And you don't want a brim, I knew just as soon as I saw you that I could fit you in a hat. Ain't it funny? It goes like that, you see, you know as soon as you see a person."

Aunt Maria—"Won't that silk spot?"

Salesperson—"No, indeed, madam, it won't spot, because you'll always carry an umbrella. It certainly does look cute on her, doesn't it?"

Aunt Maria—"I never did look cute, and I don't care to begin now. I do not wish the hat, thank you. Perhaps you can find something for my niece."

Salesperson — "Oh, surely! First thing you do is to take off your hat! There, that's it! My, you have hair! Well, I am surprised. But, really, it doesn't look as though you had much. You'd never in the world think it. I'll say that. Here's a love of a hat. Let me put it on. But this red one would look grand on you, dearie. Too bad it don't fit on account of the hair. You have so much hair. Too bad!"

Lady—"I do not wish a red hat, I wish a black hat trimmed with blue or something quiet, like that."

Salesperson—"This is what they are wearing, madam. Hats like this come right down over the ears, you see. Awfully cute, don't you think?"

Aunt Maria—"I'm afraid I'm not the cute sort. I am sorry you cannot find what we wish, as I desired three hats and my niece two."

Salesperson—"So sorry, madam, but these are what they are wearing. These are set down over the ears."—"

Aunt Maria—"Yes, yes, over the ears! I wish one were over mine. You have nothing for my niece, either?"

Salesperson (looking around and speaking in a whisper)—"I am afraid not, dearie. You see, we have nothing to fit you unless you have something made to order. You see, it's on account of—well—it's on account of—well—it's on account of the—the—hair."—Exchange.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Prince Arthur of Connaught, who is mentioned to succeed Lord Reading as Viceroy of India, has recently retired from the Governor-Generalship of the Union of South Africa. He is one of the most popular members of the British royal family and without doubt one of the ablest. The son of King George's soldier uncle, Field Marshal the Duke of Connaught, he was born at Windsor in 1883. From Eton and Sandhurst he joined the Queen's Own Hussars, and at the age of 20 he went to the South African war as a full lieutenant. His uncle, the late King Edward VII, early discerned the capacities of the young prince and while the latter was still in his early twenties he was sent on several important foreign missions. One of the most interesting of these missions was to Japan in 1906, as the bearer of the Order of the Garter to the Emperor. In 1913 Prince Arthur was married to his cousin, Princess Alexandra Victoria, Duchess of Fife.

CHILD TRAINING

Ethel Clark Bickel

"Oh, look, dear, see that lovely baby oriole!" exclaimed Betty's aunt.

"'Scuse me, Aunty, but it isn't an oriole, it's a redstart," returned Betty after a momentary glance upward. Betty was, at the time, only a trifle over four years old.

I have repeated my little girl's remark merely to illustrate what I have tried to do for my little folks during the summer months, namely, to teach them to know and love God's wonderful out-of-doors.

Nature study with one's children is the most delightful, healthful and helpful of summer pastimes. In order to get the most joy out of it, one should go to the woods often; two or three outings a week are none too many. However, one can study birds in one's own yard, if necessary. In our yard, with its many trees, we frequently have as many as six or seven varieties of birds nesting in a single season. We have a feeding table for them, which the children keep supplied with crumbs, suet, corn and other bird delicacies. There is also a drinking and bathing pedestal. The cardinals, bluebirds, orioles, phoebes, woodpeckers, catbirds, thrushes and chipping sparrows visit this bathtub daily, and the children never tire of watching them.

Occasionally an unknown visitor arrives. Then for the bird guide! "Oh, Mother, I've found out what it is! See here, the picture of it is on page . . . ." Betty will exclaim, delightedly. Sometimes a flock of cedar waxwings stop with us for a day, meanwhile helping themselves to our neighbor's cherries. Once, early in the summer, an orchard oriole happened our way, and another time a flock of goldfinches. Each event was hailed with delight by the children.

Wild flower study, necessarily, must be conducted in the woods or fields or along the country roads. Frequently, when the father of our family has finished the day's work, we all pile into the car, and, with a simple lunch, speed away from town. The children are never happier than when some flower, new to them, is discovered and must be hunted up in the flower guide. They also love to keep track of the birds they see on each trip, and are fairly ecstatic if they are treated to a song by an indigo bunting or brown thrasher. They vie with each other in the length of their lists of quails, bobolinks, and scarlet tanagers, as well as numerous other birds they never see in town.

The summer months go all too fast for the family interested in nature study. Needless to say, however, it may be continued throughout the year. For the wee ones, The Burgess Bird Book for Children, published by Little, Brown & Co., Boston, is a delight. Betty loves the stories which Jenny Wren tells to Peter Rabbit, better even than fairy tales.

In order to make my children comfortable in hot weather, I dress them simply, bathe them frequently and encourage them to nap during the hottest part of the day, allowing them to remain up later in the evening when it is cool. Proper clothing in summer makes a world of difference in children's dispositions. I find that my little folks are happiest when clothed in "coveralls," boys and girls alike. Arrayed in these simple garments, they can get the most out of their life in the open. I sometimes think that they do three-fourths of their growing during the summer.

Getting Across.

He halted abruptly at the edge, glanced expectantly over at the other side with an expression of hope in his clear cut features, and, gazing cautiously over his shoulder, stepped out boldly. The way was clear, but danger lurked in every foot of that short distance and he advanced warily. At the third step he stopped and sprang back, as a streak shot past, followed by a stream of others.

He was not discouraged and after two more unsuccessful attempts he waited patiently until another chance. Presently, when the way was clear, he again stepped out in the open and soon he arrived breathlessly at the halfway mark.

"Could he make it?" he wondered.

He could not remain long in the center under the wing of the traffic cop, and to go back now would be as hazardous as to go forward. He saw an opening, hesitated a moment, then, gaining the remaining distance with wide open eyes, he stepped forward with a determined countenance. He stopped again, took another step, and then, seeing his chance, leaped the last four feet with the agility of a cat, landing at his goal unscathed, but panting.

He had safely crossed from the Norwich Savings society to Shannon's corner.

From New York.

A car bearing a New York license was being driven down the street the other day. The driver paid no attention to the traffic man's signal to "Stop!" The traffic man yelled loudly at him two or three times to stop his car when the driver finally stopped and said:

"You don't know who I am, I guess. I'm from New York."

Grapefruit, entirely unknown to the average Britisher before the war, now forms a regular part of the early morning diet in thousands of households in Great Britain.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

Off for the Picnic

Early the next morning, Lady Love, the little rabbit's pretty mother, packed a big basket with all sorts of good things. They were for the picnic, you know, little reader, which I mentioned in the story before this. Pink and yellow lollypops, clover cakes and lettuce leaf sandwiches, candied carrots, chocolate-coated turnips, lollypop juice in a big bottle, and, dear me! What else? It's so long since I've been to a picnic I've most forgotten. Oh yes, hard-boiled eggs. Henny Jenny had sent over two dozen nice white ones. Wasn't that generous in that little lady hen. Well I guess it was considering the price of fresh eggs at the market where I trade, or the Three-in-One-Cent Store where the bushy people go for everything they can't find growing wild.

"All aboard for the picnic place
Merry Sun's shining right down on my face.
Hop about quick on your lazy toes,
Or I'll have freckles all over my nose," he shouted.

"We're coming," answered sweet Lady Love, and the next minute out she hopped with Little Jack Rabbit, the kind, strong Yellow Dog Tramp carrying the big basket of good things.

After a short stop at the Farmyard to get Cocky Doodles, Henny Jenny, Ducky Waddles, Turkey Tim, Goosey Lucy, but not Old Sic'em, the Farmer's Dog, because the chain was fastened to his leather collar wouldn't let go, they started off again.

After a while, and a bump and a smile, but not nearly a mile, in jumped the good Policeman Dog, Busy Beaver, Sammy Skunk, Peter Possum and his family, Squirrel Nutcracker and his two sons, Mrs. Squirrel excusing herself because she had a visitor. By and by, Professor Jim Crow and his small son perched themselves on the top of the old coach, and a little further on Bobbie Redvest alighted beside them. Next, Doctor Quack, the famous duck doctor, and Photographer Crane, jumped inside, and by the time they came to the Cosy Cave where the Big Brown Bear lived, the old stage coach was well-crowded.

"I'll walk," said the good natured animal. I know a short cut to the dell. So away bounded the billy goats, and before long they came to the picnic place.

My, what a good time they all had. All the little folks played games, hide and go seek and see-saw, and by the time they were hungry, sweet Lady Love had all the good things spread on a clean table cloth under a big tree. I don't believe there was a crumb left, for the birds had bright eyes and went hipperty hop, here and there, after the feast was over. And when the Old Dog Driver shouted: "Time to be going home!" they were quite ready to jump in.

"Gid-ap!" he shouted to the billy goats, and away rattled the old coach back to the dear Old Bramble Patch.

Perhaps some day, you little readers of my Jack Rabbit stories, if you come to Rabbitland, I'll ask Lady Love to invite you to a picnic. "Won't that be nice? Well, I guess yes three times, hip-ti-idy!

Saint-Gaudens' Years of Suffering

Given his choice of life work, Augustus Saint-Gaudens endured suffering in many guises that he might be a sculptor.

Born in Dublin, he was taken to New York when a baby, and as a boy attended the public schools. At 13 he had to leave his studies to help with the family finances, and his father, a shoemaker, asked him what he preferred to do. The boy wished to study art, and was apprenticed to a French cameo cutter.

His employer had a violent temper and for several years made life miserable for the lad, finally, in seething wrath, discharging him, then tried to induce him to return. Young Saint-Gaudens found another employer and studied art at night, often toiling so late that he was half asleep when he went to work in the morning.

With $100 saved, he went by steerage to Paris when he was 19, and by cutting cameos earned enough to study at the Petite Ecole. At the end of three years, he was forced by the Franco-Prussian war to study in Rome, where he endured dire poverty. After four years there he produced his first statue, Hiawatha, but had no funds to pay for casting it.

Montgomery Gibbs, an American, aided him, the figure was cast and Saint-Gaudens returned to America, but commissions were few for an unknown sculptor. He visited Rome, but had to return to this country to teach in order to obtain food. Now 30, he tried to secure the order to carve the statue of Admiral Farragut in New York, and won by only one vote in the committee.

So successful was his execution of the statue that he was commissioned to execute some bas-reliefs for St. Thomas church, New York. Then he carved the Stevenson medallion in St. Giles church, Edinburgh. Later his statues of Lincoln, Logan and Sherman, in Chicago, and of Shaw and Phillips Brooks, in Boston, and his Adams memorial in Rock Creek cemetery near Washington, won him worldwide praise. Nations and organizations honored him and he became a leader in establishing art movements.

DEFENSE DAY IDEA IS HEARTILY ENDORSED

Reports of enthusiastic acceptance of the Defense Day idea and the program of observance as outlined by the war department were given at the second meeting of the Connecticut Defense day committee at the office of Adjutant-General George M. Cole, general chairman of the activities of the day in this state. In response to the request of the statewide committee that the mayor or selectmen in each city or town act as chairman of the Defense day exercises in their locality, General Cole has received replies from nearly all of the municipalities and towns of the state, in all of which has appeared hearty endorsement of the movement and plans for as comprehensive celebrations as can be arranged.

Besides General Cole as chairman, the members of the Defense day committee who attended the conference were Brigadier-General M. B. Payne of New London, Colonel G. Taylor, A. F. Meredith, commissioner of education, Commander N. W. Pickering, U. S. N. R. F., Lieut. Edward L. Steele, of Hartford, Major John L. Tilson, of New Haven, Colonel A. A. Hilckox, E. L. Evanson, representing Honorable J. Kane Hubbard of Middletown and Major W. F. Pearson.

It was indicated at the meeting that due to the smaller population of the towns the programs for observance of the day will be varied in many localities, especially where there exists no organized units of enlisted guardsmen or regular army combat. The cities are planning to follow closely the program of exercises arranged by the war department which consists of assembly and parade of military organizations in such a way as to depict the true condition of the United States army; general defense; patriotic music; addresses on appropriate subjects pertaining to the clause in the preamble of the Constitution "to provide for the common defense," and organized forms of amusement. In the smaller towns the exercises will take the form of a general gathering of the townspeople with addresses on preparedness and the necessity for a show of military strength, with patriotic music and community singing. In New London the personnel of the submarine base and the coast artillery units at Fort Wright, Fishers Island, will give a military demonstration and take part in the Defense day parade.

CITY MEETING APPROPRIATES $60,000 FOR STONY BROOK IMPROVEMENTS

A special city meeting Tuesday evening in the town hall authorized the appropriation of a sum not to exceed $60,000 to provide for the raising of the dam at Stony Brook reservoir and for other improvements at the reservoir. The dam is to be raised five feet, which will give additional storage capacity of something over 100,000,000 gallons of water at the reservoir. In addition to raising the dam, the appropriation will be large enough to clear away a number of trees and stumps along the edge of the reservoir.

The meeting, which had an attendance of between 40 and 50 citizens, was called to order at 7 o'clock, standard time, by His Honor Mayor Milo R. Waters. The call for the meeting was read by City Clerk Weston C. Pullen.

Corporation Counsel William H. Shields, Jr., presented a resolution authorizing the court of common council to appropriate a sum not to exceed $60,000 for the improvements at the reservoir, and its adoption was moved.

City Engineer S. B. Palmer explained the plan for increasing the capacity of the reservoir by raising the dam five feet. This will give an increased capacity of something over 100,000,000 gallons, making the total capacity 500,000,000 gallons instead of 385,000,000 gallons. He said the appropriation will be large enough to do some cleaning around the shores of the reservoir, this to include the removal of stumps and the cutting down of some trees. The engineers have estimated the cost of raising the dam at about $41,000.

J. J. Corkery, president of the board of water commissioners, said the plan in mind is to make the storage capacity of Stony Brook equal per square mile of watershed to that of Fairview reservoir. He said the amount asked for was $60,000 and that it is the intention of the board to borrow on this amount only at such times as the money is needed.

The city clerk was instructed to cast one ballot for the adoption of the resolution, and it was so adopted.

Corporation Counsel Shields then presented a resolution authorizing the borrowing of the money appropriated by the previous resolution and the city clerk was instructed to cast one ballot for the resolution, after which the meeting adjourned after having been in session about ten minutes.

NORWICH HARD HIT BY SEVERE STORM

Large trees, fences, billboards and wires were blown down, and local power and trolley service were disrupted Tuesday by one of the worst wind and rain storms in years. The storm, which swept up the coast from the south held Norwich in its grip the greater part of the day. It made its appearance about 10.30 o'clock Monday night in the shape of an electrical storm. Shortly after midnight the rain began to fall in torrents and before daybreak a high wind swept in from the northeast and a few hours later trouble began.

The Norwich Gas and Electrical department found itself in trouble about 10 o'clock in the morning and crews were kept busy until late into the evening repairing damage to wires and circuits. By 11 o'clock most of the city was without power and this condition lasted well into the afternoon, as trees continued to fall in various sections of the city, breaking wires and causing short circuits.

A large tree that was blown down on Laurel Hill avenue near the Greenman property blocked the street and it was necessary to shut off all power in that section of the city while members of the street department went to work clearing the wreckage from the highway. The American Thermos Bottle Company was compelled to close down during the afternoon for lack of power and it was not until late into the evening that power was again turned on for Laurel Hill.

The entire business district was without power and lights during the afternoon and the Norwich Evening Record had to resort to hand setting of type in order to publish its edition. Power came on later in the afternoon, in time to run off the edition on the press. General Manager Charles W. Taggart personally supervised the repair work on the wires which was completed shortly before 3 o'clock.

Power for residences and mills north of Bean Hill was cut off during the afternoon when a large tree was blown over at Bean Hill. The line carrying 4600 volts supplying the Liberty Woolen Mill at Yantic was out of order, causing this plant to suspend operations for the afternoon.

Residences on Washington street, at East Great Plain and on the West Side near Asylum street were without electricity during a part of the day but crews of men tackled this job and had the wreckage cleared and the power back on during the latter part of the afternoon. Besides these larger blocks there were hundreds of short circuits in all parts of the city which were cleared up as fast as possible and by night the department had practically cleared up trouble, although there will be work for several days to come repairing minor troubles throughout the city.

The Southern New England Telephone Company came in for its share of trouble throughout the day and by nightfall over 200 lines, entailing nearly 1000 telephone stations were put out of commission. The toll service to Westerly and Mystic was crippled until late into the night and crews were out all day and night clearing broken branches and trees from the wires.

The trolleys of the Connecticut Company felt the effects of the storm and at various points along the line trolleys were short circuited and motors burned out because of water on the rails. Trolley lines were broken in several sections of the city and the tracks were blocked by fallen trees, the worst time being between 11 and 1 o'clock. On West Thames street a large tree blew down, pulling down the wires, but was speedily cleared up. The Norwich Willimantic line and the Norwich-New London line came in for the same kind of trouble but altogether the service was kept as closely on time as possible.

The fire alarm system of the city was in for its bumps along with the rest and Chief Howard L. Stanton and members of the department were busy keeping the system in working order.

A few of the trees down were reported for Greeneville, at 12th street, 167 Washington street, Laurel Hill avenue near the Charles Greenman property, Boswell avenue, Thamesville, Connell street, West Main near Fairmount street, 53 Spring street, Cliff Terrace, Ward and Hickory streets, 2 Willey Place, Asylum Street, Bean Hill and hundreds of large and small limbs from trees everyhere in the city.

No serious accidents were reported during the day in Norwich although there were many narrow escapes from falling trees and branches. Automobiles parked along the streets were damaged in a number of cases when struck by heavy branches and the rain caused a number of short circuits, cars being stalled in various parts of the city.

Throughout the surrounding country the gardens suffered from the high winds and this aided by the heavy downpour of rain, flattened corn fields and uprooted fruit trees caused many dollars worth of damage.

The heavy rainfall, which averaged nearly 3 inches during the storm will send the reservoirs back to full pond making it unlikely that Norwich will have any shortage this year.

Party For Third Birthday.

Mrs. Harold Connell entertained a children's party Thursday afternoon from one until three o'clock in observance of the third birthday of her little son, Charles Gerald. The little guests included Dorothy and Mary Dowd, Robert and Normand Lyons and Harry Connell. Mrs. Connell served sandwiches, cake, cookies, punch and candy. A special feature was the birthday cake with its three lighted candles. The color scheme was pink. Little Charles received a number of pretty gifts.

COUNCIL HONORS MEMORY OF COSTELLO LIPPITT

At a special meeting of the court of common council in the council chamber Tuesday evening resolutions of respect, in memory of the late Costello Lippitt, a former mayor of the city, were adopted. The meeting was called to order at 7.38 o'clock, daylight time, by His Honor Mayor Milo R. Waters, who addressed the council as follows:

Gentlemen: Again it is my sad duty to announce to the council the death of a former chief executive of our city. During the more than a century and a half of the existence of our municipality Norwich has been fortunate in having for its mayors men of courage and ability, men of integrity, and Costello Lippitt was not the least among these men. His long and honorable career as a banker in our city, his creditable record as a city and state official, is not only an honor to himself but also to the city of Norwich.

It seems proper to me that the council should in some manner make a record of this loss to the city.

Alderman Edward Crooks moved that a committee be appointed to draw up a set of memorial resolutions. The motion was adopted and Mayor Waters appointed Alderman Crooks and Alderman Patrick F. Sweeney as the committee. They brought in and presented a set of resolutions in memory of the late ex-mayor and they were unanimously adopted.

The memorial resolutions read as follows:

Mr. Lippitt was mayor of our city from 1898 to 1910 and in that position devoted himself faithfully to the welfare of the city. His unfailing courtesy, his genial personality, his modesty and his strict integrity gained and merited the friendship, esteem and admiration of the people of our city, which he so well served as mayor and in which he spent a long and useful life.

He will be long remembered for his fine character and his life of high service given freely in promoting all that was best in the community and state in which he lived.

It was resolved that the memorial to the former mayor be entered upon the records of the court of common council and that a copy, attested by the clerk, be sent to his surviving relatives.

Following the adoption of the resolutions, the following letter from Norris S. Lippitt, son of the late Costello Lippitt, was read to the council:

To Mayor Waters and the Honorable Court of Common Council:

The official honor that has been paid to the memory of my late father is very deeply appreciated.

Sincerely,

NORRIS S. LIPPITT.

The council then adjourned.

Police Officer Charles Smith was appointed to serve the requisition and bring back Santelli.

Another requisition on the governor of New York was issued for the extradition of John J. Hannaway, wanted in Bridgeport on a charge of non-support. Detective Sergeant Thomas Malone was appointed to serve the papers and bring back Hannaway.

CLARA BARTON TENT OUTING POSTPONED

Owing to the severe storm Tuesday, the outing of Clara Barton Tent, No. 7, Daughters of Veterans, which was to have been held at the home of Past President M. Florence Dean at Norwich Town, was postponed. The outing is to be held today (Wednesday) and members will leave Franklin square at 10 o'clock, weather permitting. This outing will probably be the last of the summer and it is expected that a large number will attend and enjoy themselves.

In the City Court.

At the city court Tuesday morning the usual intoxication cases were heard. One breach of the peace case was heard and the defendant released for lack of evidence.

REPORT OF ACTICITIES AT BOY SCOUT CAMP

Harry E. Prentice, chairman of the Camp Tippecan committee and Scout Executive F. A. Benton have issued their report of this year's activities at the scout camp. The report is as follows:

The camp committee comprises Harry E. Prentice, chairman; Henry W. Cardwell, W. Manley Eastwood, Jr., Halsey A. Gallup, George L. Ingalls, George E. Young, Dr. J. J. Donohue, Dr. A. J. LaPierre, Weston C. Pullen, J. Henry Shannon, Rev. William C. Prentice, J. Nelson Weymouth, J. Lincoln Crawford.

The Norwich Council Camp, Boy Scouts of America, was set up at Beach Pond July 5th and closed Aug. 4th. The camp staff consisted of Camp Director F. A. Benton, Victor Davis, assistant director; Thomas Baldwin Jr., and Louis Weltin, buglers; Lee Talbot, Alfred Haring, Albert Rodgers, John Jenks and helper, Harry Jordan, Maine guide, and Captain Guy Winkler, National Red Cross life saving instructor, 11 men, with an average of eight men per week.

Fifty-four scouts were in camp on an average of two weeks each, or 94 boy weeks, and with the staff made 65 campers for the season.

Three overnight hikes, a hike around the lake, one to Camp Yawgoog, several to Tippecan pond, and several 14-mile and short trips were made. Four officials from Camp Yawgoog visited camp July 5th.

Scouts and officials built the four walls of a 14x12 foot log cabin of large logs; made 25 bows and arrows; made a totem pole; cleared the parade ground of boulders; placed trail signs; repaired boats and raft. Four boats were in use, two of them being purchased this year.

The Maine guide, Harry Jordan, gave one week's instruction in bow and arrow making, and in log cabin construction. Captain Guy Winkler of the National Red Cross Life Saving division, instructed in life saving and swimming for several days; one member of the staff qualified as examiner in Red Cross life saving methods, and three scouts qualified as Junior Red Cross life savers.

Wilbur Smith, bird specialist of the state fish and game department for some reason was unable to be at camp.

Thirty-one merit badges in the following subjects were earned: Athletics, botany, camping, craftsmanship, first aid, forestry, life saving, masonry, personal health, pioneering, safety first, stalking, swimming, wood carving. Two scouts qualified for the life and star badge and several scouts learned to swim. Thirty-eight first class tests were passed; 12 second class tests were passed; 18 tenderfoot tests were passed; 697 points were earned in the point system; 7 scouts won their first year camp letters; 5 scouts won their second year camp letters; 3 scouts won their third year camp letters; 3 scouts won their fourth year camp letters.

Camp Tippecan's fourth season was the most successful one so far. The registrations were considerably larger than last year. The conscientious adherence to the scout program from reveille at 6.30 to taps at 9.30 gave the scouts a busy day and supplied a training that each scout can look back to with feelings of satisfaction and pleasure.

The good menu, unexcelled by any camp in the country, kept the boys in the best of health during the season, there being no sickness noted in camp.

The Maine guide was pleased with Camp Tippecan, and expressed a desire to return next season. We hope to have him with us again to take up instruction in other lines of work for which the time was too short this year.

Work will be continued on the cabin from time to time with the plan of fitting it for week-end and winter camping. The lines of the old farmhouse will be followed and the large stone chimney with its fireplaces will be restored to make it comfortable for cold weather.

The camp committee and the scout executive extend to Coe T. Briggs thanks for his grounds and many courtesies.

It was voted to have another reunion at the same place on the third Sunday of August, 1925.

THE SEASON'S DAHLIAS, AS GROWN AT FANNING PARK

This summer an attractive entrance to the Fanning Park dahlia gardens, in the form of a rustic fence and summer house has been built by Roswell J. P. Brown. Here visitors can rest and at the same time have an excellent bird's-eye view of the beautiful colorings shown in the magnificent blooms grown by Mrs. Brown.

Although this has been a backward season, these selected specimens have been most thrifty, exciting the admiration of all who visit the gardens. Of the new 1924 dahlias, Mrs. Brown is featuring Jersey's Beauty (Gold Medal Dahlia), Rodman Wanamaker, Elsie Daniels, Siskiyou, and George C. Meachen; and of the new California introductions the El Granada, Eliza Clark Bull, Dolly Varden and many others.

Some very handsome Davis dahlias, many of them ten and one-half inches in diameter grown by Mrs. Brown include the Alma Davis, Al Koran, Al Malaikah, Islampatrol and others, all prize winners. Jersey's Beauty is a fine pink flower of perfect shape, produced on long, straight, stiff stems. It is a very free bloomer and a splendid keeper. It was the winner of several gold medals the past year, and winner of the highest award at Storrs, Conn.

Rodman Wanamaker is a decorative peony, believed to be the largest dahlia in the world today. Measurement has shown that out of 26 consecutive blooms, they ranged from 9 7-8 to 11 1-8 inches in diameter. The blossoms are of the fine texture with a luminous sheen. This variety is entirely distinct in color, showing all the bronzy autumn shades harmoniously blended. The plant, which is a most profuse bloomer, is a giant: strong, sturdy and vigorous, with glossy green foliage, lace-like in formation.

Elsie Daniels, a new introduction for 1923, received a certificate of merit. The color of this wonderful dahlia is a pale orchid shade on the outer petals which are long and shagy, the center ones are white, making an excellent combination. The plant grows about four foot tall and the stems are strong enough to hold the extra large flowers erect above the foliage.

Siskiyou, has created a sensation wherever shown and attracted more attention than any other flower grown in the same garden last season. The bloom is pink-tinged mauve, held perfectly erect on strong stems. George C. Meachen is a large, beautifully formed flower and so deep and full that it is almost round. The face of the petals is pinard yellow, overlaid with golden sheen. Reverse of outer petals is an opal red, inner petals rose, streaked with yellow. This dahlia, which is a prize winner, also, has the reputation of being a sturdy grower and good keeper.

Of the new California introductions El Granada has the distinction of three first prizes to its credit. As the best six blooms of a three-year-old seedling it won the gold medal in 1922. It was awarded the prize as the best and most artistic dahlia at the 1923 show of the Dahlia Society of California, also won the award for the best twenty-five blooms. It is an immense vivid orange hybrid cactus. The petals twist and interlace showing at the tips a creamy yellow reverse. The high bushes are continually covered with large deep flowers. The Eliza Clark Bull is reputed to be the finest white dahlia in the world.

Since winning the prize for the best two-year-old seedling in 1921, it has been watched with interest by nearly every dahlia lover. This dahlia which for three seasons only received the morning sun was pure white. It won the beautiful Rockwood vase offered by Mrs. John Dee Warbham of Cincinnati, at the last show given in San Francisco by the Dahlia Society of California. Last fall it was grown in the hot sunshine and was pearly white. It was one of the biggest and deepest flowers of its class.

Grenadier stands alone in color and form. It is a purplish maroon shade combined with silver. The petals on one side are purple and the othre side, pale silver. The whole construction is unique as the petals quill and turn back, showing both colors. It is a monster flower and very deep, producing blooms liberally.

Dolly Varden, is a beautiful pink dahlia. The color is relieved by a creamy pink center. Formation of petals is irregular and while classed as decorative, it follows closely the hybrid cactus lines as the outer petals roll while the inner ones broaden out. The plants always bear vigorous blossoms, used most effectively for decorative purposes.

Other new creations of significance are Jersey's Jewel and Jersey's Emperor.

The nearly 4,000 hills planted in this garden include the very choicest of the California varieties, all of the New Jersey dahlias and many of New England varieties, which are raised by Mrs. Brown. The frontispiece of the 1924 Fanning Park dahlia catalog is a beautiful picture of Mrs. Brown's little daughter Barbara, holding a dahlia and gazing at its beauty, has attracted general attention and many visitors from day to day inquire and comment about it.

TERRIFIC RAIN STORM THAT SWEEPS CALLS HALT IN SPORTS PROGRAMS

New York, Aug. 26—Sports activity in the east, now at the height of one of the busiest late-season campaigns on record was abruptly halted by rain today on nearly all fronts.

A heavy over-night downpour played havoc with baseball, boxing, horse-racing, polo and tennis scheduled, disappointing performers and spectators alike who have been manifesting unusual interest in the various branches of activity.

In the metropolitan sector, play was suspended in the national men's single championship which opened in spectacular fashion yesterday at Forest Hills; interrupted the international polo practice matches at Westbury, in which an English team was to have played the California junior champions; blocked the boxing card slated at the Queensboro A. C., and prevented the New York Yankees from continuing their American League pennant fight with Cleveland as an opponent.

Elsewhere, the grand circuit harness races, at Readeville, Mass., were cancelled, while the baseball log showed three postponements altogether in the American League and three more in the Eastern League.

Tennis play at Forest Hills will be resumed tomorrow afternoon, if the weather permits, with today's schedule in force. This will witness the opening skirmish of William T. Tilden, defending champion, with his Spanish rival, Manuel Alonso, as a second round opponent. Another feature match brings together Watson Washburn, of New York, and Harvey Snodgrass, Los Angeles star. William M. Johnston, San Francisco veteran and twice former champion, will encounter his first real opposition when he faces Richard E. Schlesinger, of Australia, in another grandstand attraction. While special interest will be attached to the fortunes of George M. Lott, Jr., seventeen year old Chicago schoolboy, who caused one of the biggest upsets of the tournament's history yesterday when he eliminated R. Norris Williams, II, captain of last year's Davis cup team and No. 3 on the national ranking list.

Lott probably will oppose in his next match Willard Crocker, of Canada, who was on his way to victory when rain stopped his opening match with George Whitlocq, of New York.

Besides Williams, two other members of the "First Ten" were eliminated. Robert Kinsey of San Francisco, No. 10, falling before Washburn, while Carl Fischer, of Philadelphia, No. 7, was put out by the Wimbledon champion, Jean Borotra, of France. As a result of the first day's play. The original field of 82 players has been cut down to 55 for tomorrow's play.

The Queensboro fight card has been postponed until Thursday night.

GIANTS STAGE NINTH INNING RALLY AND BEAT CUBS

Chicago, Aug. 26.—The Giants earned an even break in the four games series today by scoring four runs in the ninth and defeating the cubs, 11 to 9. Two errors by Grantham on ground balls that should have retired the side runless in the ninth, were followed by four hits. These hits were made off Alexander, who made his first appearance since his wrist was fractured June 25. He relieved Blake in the first inning when the Giants scored six runs. Score:

SENATORS SPLIT TWIN PROGRAM WITH BROWNS

Washington, Aug. 26.—Washington divided honors with St. Louis today in a double-header, the visitors winning 7 to 5 before the locals triumphed 6 to 2. Shocker held the Senators to five scattered hits in the first encounter while his club hammered three Washington pitchers. In the second engagement, Ogden never was in serious trouble, but Danforth was free with hits and passes and was driven from the slab in the sixth. Scores:

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch
Fordham Manhattan Coach

Score is 3 to 2. Runners on first and third. Right handed hitter at bat. Double steal is attempted.

Who should cover second base on the throw from the catcher?

Unless you know how a batter hits, the majority of right handed hitters hit to left field, so if a double steal is attempted in a case of this kind, the second baseman should cover the bag. That prevents the batter from hitting through shortstop if the shortstop tried to cover the bag instead of the second baseman.

HAUSER'S HOMER IN TWELFTH BEATS CHICAGO

Philadelphia, Aug. 26—Joe Hauser, Philadelphia first baseman, drove the ball over the right field wall in the twelfth inning today, defeating the Chicago White Sox 4 to 3. It was Hauser's twenty first homer of the season and Chicago's thirteenth straight loss. Rommell retired from the box in the eleventh when a drive from Mostil's bat split a finger on his pitching hand. Score:

FIELD OF 90 PLAYERS AFTER WOMEN'S GOLF CROWN

New York, Aug. 26—A field of ninety players will start in quest of the women's national golf championship, starting Monday in the all-week tournament at the Rhode Island Country Club, Providence. Pairings were announced tonight by the United States golf association for the qualifying round on Monday which will determine the thirty-two players surviving for match play the rest of the week.

Miss Edith Cummings of Chicago, will defend her title against one of the most formidable fields in the history of the tournament. Her principal rivals include Glenna Collett, long-hitting Providence star, who won the championship in 1922; Miss Marion Hollins, of Southampton, N. Y., 1921 titleholder; Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, of Philadelphia, twice former champion; and Miss Mary K. Browne, of Los Angeles, former Tennis champion who is making a formidable bid for honors on the links.

The only prominent figure missing from the list is Miss Alexa Stirling, of Atlanta, three times champion, whose health has prevented her from entering the tourney for the first time since she first won it in 1916.

Miss Hollins is paired with Miss Miriam Burns of Merriam, Kansas; Mrs. Hurd and Mrs. S. S. Reinhardt, of Dallas, Texas; Miss Browne with Mrs. Quintin F. Feitner, of Chicago; and Miss Collett with Mrs. F. C. Letts, of Chicago.

IDLE HOUR A. C. TO PLAY SONS OF REST TONIGHT

Tonight at the Fairgrounds the Idle Hour team will clash with the Sons of Rest in what is expected to be a fast game. There has been a heated argument between the two teams as to which really is the most lazy of the two, the Idle Hours claiming the title while the Sons of Rest boast that not a member of their organization has done a real stroke of work in the past four years. How such an argument can be settled on a baseball field is a mystery unless the one getting the lowest score is declared the winner. As the players are afraid that if they tell their right names some one will give them a job, they are playing under the following cognomens: Sons of Rest—Cast Iron George, 1b; Hungry Hank, 2b; Pork Chop Sam, 3b; Flat-foot Ike, ss; Leaning Tower, c; Hopeless Bill, rf; No-account Mike, cf; Hambone Jerry, rf; Starvation, p.

Idle Hours—Shoeless Joe, 1b; Penniless Pete, c; Useless, ss; Big Nose, p; Weary Willie, lf; Sleepy Jake, cf; Impossible, 3b; Patches, 2b; Rags, rf.

The third and deciding game of the series between the Riverview club and the Submarine Base will be played on the hospital grounds this afternoon. This will be the last opportunity the fans will have this season of witnessing a real diamond conflict and all roads should lead to the hospital athletic field today.

The Naval Base has always been a rival of the Riverview club but have been obliged to run up the white flag on three different occasions. Bill Donovan's panthers journeyed down to the Submarine zone several weeks ago and silenced the guns of Lieut. Arnold's devil-dogs by the narrow margin of 2-1. Immediately after this defeat a mass meeting was held and several spokesmen (names omitted) in eloquent and vociferous tones explained to the gobs just how the game should be played. Now one sad thing about this meeting was that the umpires at that game were not allowed to attend. This oversight should be explained. Nevertheless, this meeting restored much needed confidence to the base nine and they navigated up the narrow channel of the Thames and bombarded the Riverview club to the tune of 4-2. There have been many opinions expressed relative to the legality of an attempted squeeze play in the ninth inning of this fray, but the decision went to the Base, and with it went the game, and that's that. The game this afternoon will be placed in the hands of a capable arbiter and any player who gets lonesome and discontented will be escorted to the showers where he will be entertained by the ground-keeper. The Submarine Base will use either Davis, Harrel or Metzka on the mound with the chances favoring Davis of spit ball fame. The Riverview club has been strengthened in two positions. "Tony" West arrived yesterday morning on the Federal Express from Baltimore and reports that his arm is in good condition. He will toss them up to the Sub Base mulers this afternoon. "Tony" states that he would journey from China to twirl against the Base. Belair will do the catching with the infield consisting of Couillard, 1b; Burns, 2b; Mills ss; Dugas, 3b. The outfield will be taken care of by Laffey in left Nogil in center and a new comer in rigat. This game will start at 2:45 p. m. sharp. Moran will be chief arbiter with the veteran Joe Cranker taking care of the bases.

STRIBLING PICKED AS FAVORITE OVER BERLENBACH

New York, August 26.—Paul Berlenbach, New York light heavyweight, will face the acid test tomorrow night at the Velodrome A. C., when he squares off with Young Stribling, sensational Macon, Ga., schoolboy boxer, in a six round encounter.

Stribling, who has been training, with Firpo at Saratoga Springs, wandered back to New York today and finished up his boiling-out process in the Madison Square Garden Gymnasium. At the completion of his light exercise he tipped the scales at 168 pounds, two pounds under the notch the boys signed for. Berlenbach is also well under the 170 mark, weighing 166 pounds today.

Stribling will enter the ring as the favorite, due to his defeat of Mike McTigue, world's champion, at Newark, N. J., on March 31, and also to his victory over Tommy Loughran of Philadelphia at the Milk Fund bouts. In 109 starts Stribling has scored 107 victories.

Berlenbach looks to be in better condition than his opponent but he has not been the same Berlenbach who met and was knocked by Jack Delaney of Bridgeport, Conn., at Madison Square Garden, March 14.

The match can go but six rounds owing to a ruling of the State Athletic commission prohibiting boxers under 21 years of age from participating in matches of greater length. Stribling who is out 20 years of age, four years younger than his opponent, comes under this ruling.

PLANNING $600 SERIES IN NEW LONDON LEAGUE

New London, August 26.—While all eyes are focues on the finishing of the times in the City league, another series has cropped out in the city, that judging from present indications will see considerable money changing hands. The proposed series is an all-industrial battle and concerns the New London Ship and Engine and the Standard Oil nines.

The Standard Oil through its manager, has issued a challenge to the Ship and Engine nine, the present leader of the Industrial league of which the Socony nine is a member. The best two games out of three is to decide the winner and the winner is to receive the entire gate receipts. Now Manager Jack Russell of the New London Ship and Engine, who is entirely in favor of the proposed series, has found a strong band of backers at the plant and has six hundred dollars to lay on the outcome of the series. It is the intention of the Ship and Engine manager to have this money covered partly anyway if not all before the series will get under way. Just what attitude the Standard Oil manager will take towards this proposed series with the amount mentioned above necessary to make both teams take the field against each other is causing plenty of speculation in the city.

WEST ENDS TAKE CLOSE GAME FROM FITCHVILLE

Sunday afternoon the West Ends of Willimantic defeated the fast Fitchville team at Fitchville by the score 9-7. Junior of the West Ends had the game well in hand until the ninth when Fitchville scored four runs.

By virtue of this victory the West Ends hold the right to challenge South Windham to another game, since Fitchville defeated them two weeks ago. Even though the West Ends have been defeated twice by the Windham boys, they are confident they can pull through with a victory now. Without Mathewson, South Windham is lost and they realize this already. There is no doubt in the mind of West End fans that if Manager Porter pitches Godack there is nothing to it but a West End victory. Since Godack quit Manager Heller's team cold and went with their rivals, the up street boys of Willimantic have been waiting eagerly for a chance to get at him. If Manager Porter of the All-Stars has any sporting blood in him he will arrange for a game or a series of games with the West Ends at the earliest possible date, instead of beating around the bush. Manager Heller's team would enter the field for fun, money or marbles

FEATHERWEIGHT TITLE IS NOW ON THE MARKET

New York, Aug. 26.—The world's featherweight boxing crown, returned to the state athletic commission last week by its owner, Johnny Dundee, because he had outgrown it, will be placed on the open market for the 126 pounds within a short time, the commission decided today.

The details of the competition were not revealed, but it was understood that the commission had in mind a plan which will give every 126 pounder a chance for the title.

The commission is considering a scheme to appoint a committee of newspapermen to draft a working plan and to match up the fighters who are eligible for the crown. That plan, if adopted, will be placed into operation immediately and a home for the crown found before snow flies.

A formal invitation was extended to the Prince of Wales by wireless to attend every boxing exhibition while in this country as a guest of the state commission.

Sailor Friedman, lightweight, was informed that if he fulfills a contract to fight in Atlantic City tonight he cannot fight at the Chadwick Park A. C., in Albany on Thursday night, the time interval between the two exhibitions being insufficient, according to the board's ruling.

MARRIED MEN—SINGLE MEN GAME ON FRIDAY NIGHT

The fourth game of the Married-Single Men's series on the East Side scheduled for Tuesday evening has been postponed until Friday evening owing to the heavy rain on Tuesday. The grounds were very slippery and the pitching box was a pool of water. Ted Coleman, who was slated to pitch for the Married Men, positively refused to pitch claiming he could not pitch a slippery ball and besides he was not going to risk contracting pneumonia by getting his feet wet. Manager Cook said Tuesday evening that Coleman has had an alibi for not pitching, the first claiming that he had a sore side and that his arm was sore. Manager Cook said that if Coleman sidestepped his pitching duties another time he would be released unconditionally, as he is getting such a swelled head that it is impossible to do anything with him.

EPINARD LEAVES FOR RACE AT BELMONT MONDAY

The first of the international races is scheduled for next Monday. Zev has worked five furlongs in one minute recently and is now regarded as a sure starter. The western contingent has two strong prospects in Wise Counsellor, owned by John S. Ward and his partner, and Baffling, owned by E. R. Bradley.

Jefferson Livingston recently offered $60,000 for Baffling but it was refused. "I want to see my colors in that race, and the horse is not for sale at any price." was Mr. Bradley's reply to the offer. The Cochran colors will probably be carried by Gothawk.

WORLD'S GREATEST SPRINTERS TO COMPETE AT ORANGE

Newark, N. J. August 26.—Four of the greatest sprinters of the world—Charley Paddock, Loren Murchison, Al Leconey and "Chet" Bowman — will compete in the 100 and 220 yard dashes at the national track and field championships of the A. A. U., scheduled to get under way at Colgate field, West Orange, September 5.

This was assured today with receipt of the entry blanks of Leconey and Bowman. Paddock and Murchison already have entered.

Game Called Off—Rain

New London, August 26.—The game which was to decide the winner of the City league this evening, at Morgan Park was called off on account of wet grounds. This game was to bring together the Knights of Columbus and the Fort Trumbull Stars and the top position to the league was to be the result of a victory to either team. The league was to wind up its affairs before Labor Day, but it will be later than that date now.

Albany Shuts Out Bears

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 26—Albany played a strong defensive game behind good pitching today and shut out Bridgeport 3 to 0. A home run by Wight and two spectacular gloved hand catches by Schinkel were features. Score:

Kundig to Swim at Ashland

Teddy Kundig will enter all the swimming events at the Ashland aquatic meet in Jewett City next Sunday. Kundig is practicing at Ocean Beach and will attempt the Fisher's Island swim this week.

SPORTING NOTES

When Dwight F. Davis, one of the runners-up in the national championship tournament in 1898, conceived the idea of offering a challenge trophy for international lawn tennis he probably had little notion how important his trophy would grow in the years to come.

An odd provision in the contract by which the New York American league club has purchased Benny Bedford, star outfielder of the Austin Rangers of the Texas Association, is the stipulation that the Yankees, with Babe Ruth in the lineup, shall play an exhibition game in Austin next spring.

The winner of the football game between Louisana and Arkansas universities, which is to feature the dedication of the Louisiana State Fair Stadium on November 1, will be presented with a sterling silver football, standard size, handsome in design and elegantly engraved, as a gift from the State Fair Association.

The Doncaster race meeting, which is held early in September, is the greatest sporting event of the year in the North of England, and it has been so for nearly four centuries. Long before the Spanish Armada races had taken place regularly on or near the Town Moor in the borough of Doncaster. The Doncaster Cup race, now the feature event of the meeting, was founded in 1766. At that time the race was run in four three mile heats, heats all taking place on the same day.

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Aug. 26.—Mercantile establishments are moving for the widening of Sparyard street and the removal of the engine house of the Niagara company to permit the change. It is pointed out that the street is narrow, that large vehicles such as are in use today cannot get through there safely, that thousands of people use the street, on which there is no sidewalk, and that in every way the business carried on there warrants the widening and improvement of the street. It is no secret that the taking away of the Niagara house, which has been in existence since 1850, will mean the provision of a fire apparatus house that will accommodate the Niagara company and the Allen Hook and Ladder company. This may mean the reorganization of the fire department, for when the consolidation appears there will be a reorganization of the companies referred to, and perhaps the establishment of a paid department. There is a well established opinion among many, and not a few members of the city council, that this city should not have two fire houses alongside each other, as is the case with the Niagara house and the Allen and the Niagara headquarters. It has been hinted long and often that these companies could be consolidated and that better service would result than if the firemen continue separate companies. The cost of maintenance and the increase in efficiency has often been broached, but it has never assumed the formidable shape it has now taken. A petition signed by a score of business houses was sent to the city council last night and there it was sent to committee, that the matter may be taken up and discussed in secret, so that action will be taken when the next budget is made up.

Eugene Maynard, 61 Colt street, will come before the police court tomorrow to answer a charge of operating an automobile on the highways of this city while under the influence of liquor. The case is serious for Maynard in that he was convicted of the same offense last April and then was fined $100, which fine he has not yet paid. He was arrested last evening. Today he appeared in court, but he was bad concluded that he wanted an opportunity to get testimony to show that he had not been imbibing intoxicants. He declared that he did not take a drink of liquor yesterday, but he will have a chance also to prove that he did not have a "hang-over" that made him uncertain in his operation of his truck. Three officers were subpoenaed by the state as witnesses because they saw Maynard driving the automobile, and they will be on hand to testify.

Capt. Charles A. Pinney caused a complete shakeup of the police sergeants today, for the head of the department issued an edict late yesterday which called for the shifting of all but one of the street sergeants and the transferring of one desk sergeant to street duty. Sergt. John Cavanaugh, who has been in charge of the police officers on duty from 11 at night until 7 o'clock in the morning, was ordered to perform plain clothes duty, and started this morning on his new work. Street Sergeant Patrick Murphy, who has been performing duty from 3 o'clock in the afternoon until 11 o'clock at night, is transferred to the shift herstofore handled by Sergeant Cavanaugh and which was filled by Sergeant Murphy three years and until Sergeant Cavanaugh was appointed a sergeant, two months ago. Sergt. Frank Howard, who was relieved of desk duties four months ago and assigned to plain clothes duty, has been ordered back to desk duty and resumed these duties this afternoon, his hours being from 4 o'clock until midnight. Desk Sergeant Samuel Hick, who has been performing station house duty since Sergeant Howard has been assigned to plain clothes duty, was placed back at his former duties as street sergeant from 3 o'clock in the afternoon until 11 o'clock at night.

Alfred Williams of 89 Hill street died this morning at Home Memorial hospital, at which institution he had been under treatment several days. The patient was a cook by occupation and is survived by no relatives except those residing in the West India islands.

An automobile owned by Frederick R. Swanson, 65 Connecticut avenue, while parked on Bank street this forenoon, was struck by a machine operated by B. D. Pagano, 151 Fifth avenue, New York. Both cars were damaged.

Patrolman Michael Dorsey in making his rounds on Main street last night discovered a rear window of the store of Richard Brater, 102, opened. The window was made secure against intruders for the remainder of the night.

Miss Betty Bernstein of New London and Mrs. Benjamin Putnam and infant daughter, North Plain, were patients dismissed at Home Memorial hospital today.

Walter Holmes of 209 Crystal avenue, employed by the Southern New England Telephone company, who fell from a pole upon which he was at work at Groton yesterday, is reported at Lawrence hospital this evening as being vastly improved. It was at first believed that Holmes had sustained a fractured skull.

Charles B. Jennings, former superintendent of schools, who has been ill at his home no Vauxhall street for two weeks, is gradually growing weaker.

The worst storm to strike New London in many years occurred today and as a result of the terrific downpour and hurricane gale much damage has resulted. Trees were felled in every part of the city and in some instances the highways were made impassable, while the telephone, electric light and firm alarm system has been crippled. About 700 telephones are out of commission and in several sections of the city no street lights illumine the highways tonight. While the fire alarm system has been hit, the greater part of repairs have been made.

The storm started shortly before 10 o'clock last night with an electrical disturbance, but with the early morning hours came the 60-mile gale which uprooted trees throughout the forenoon, knocked down telephone poles and brought down electric light and telephone and fire alarm wires. Throughout the entire forenoon the fire alarm was sounded because of wires that had been dislodged from poles being blown against each other and causing the whistle to sound. From Williams street, at the corner of Michegan avenue, to Ocean Beach, huge trees were blown down, making the highways impassable until gangs of the highway department removed the obstruction. At Ocean Beach, particularly on Bentley and Alewife avenues, trees were felled, while the former thoroughfare was submerged.

During the height of the storm a section of cornice on the Klinck building, corner of State and Bank streets, and occupied by the United Drug company and Canton restaurant, fell to the sidewalk, bringing with it several bricks. The cornice, which was over ten feet in length, together with the bricks, crashed to the walk with terrific force, but no pedestrians were in rang of them. Several craft at anchor in the harbor went ashore, the boats dragging their anchors until they landed upon the beach off the Pequot.

Benjamin Lewis, formerly of New London, now located in Torrington, is making a brief visit with his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lewis.

Nash of Brockton, Mass., were married last evening at the residence of the bridegroom in the presence of relatives and intimate acquaintances. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. Beveridge Lee, pastor of the Second Congregational church, this city. Mr. and Mrs. Simpson are on a trip to New York and Cape Cod and upon their return will reside on Chester street, Groton. Mr. Chester is employed by the Electric Boat company.

Miss Hilda Vogt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Vogt, has returned, having spent several days with New Haven friends.

Charles L. Boothe, Montauk avenue, has returned home, concluding three weeks' visit at the Boy Scout camp, Gardner Lake.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theater

Last time today, Colleen Moore and Conway Tearle in Flirting With Love, Mack Sennett's latest two reel comedy His First one Hundred Years with funny Harry Langdon, Pathe news and Palace supreme orchestra.

Three days starting tomorrow, the famous stage play, Cornered, which had a two-year run in New York, has been translated to the silver sheet and will be presented at the Palace theater for three days.

The dual role which caused both a sensation among theatergoers will be played by Marie Prevost, who is surrounded by a brilliant cast including John Roche, Rockcliffe Fellowes, Raymond Hatton and Cissy Fitzgerald.

The story deals with the resemblance of an heiress to Mary Brehnan, a girl of the slums. This fact is discovered by Mary's pals who make plans for her to establish herself in the household of the heiress as the mistress of the house.

Can you imagine the situation when the real heiress returns unexpectedly? One of the girls is a thief, but which one it is nobody knows. The story comes to a dramatic climax when it is learned that both girls are twin sisters.

There is plenty of action, plenty of romance, and clever acting.

As the director of this photoplay, William Beaudine must be given the honors. It is a Warner Bros. classic of the screen.

Added attractions: Story No. 8 of the Telephone Girl with bewitching Albert Vaughn and an all star cast, Pathe Review, latest Cameo comedy and Famous Palace orchestra.

Palace Theater

Radio fans will be much interested in the action of the Follies of the Day, which is slated to appear at the Palace theater for one day only Mon., Sept 1st. Most of the story has been written with the idea that the show is being broadcast to the multitude of crystal sets that are listening in, and will give the fans an idea of the performance that goes on while they get the benefit of the tuneful numbers and merry skits of the comedians. Of course, it will require attendance at the show to get the best part of it, for the head-liner is Boyd Snyder, the silent comedian, and his comical antics naturally cannot be sent through the ethereal blue. However, the antics of Elsa May and the supporting cast could have been broadcasted even as the story goes. Those who are to be found on the long list of entertainers with principal parts are Sam Green, Harry Seymour, John B. Williams, Bert Mathews, Beth Clark, Marie Tyler, the Avalon Four, Scotty Weston, Frank JuBan and the chorus, which has been carefully trained by Seymour Felix. Several hits of vaudeville are introducted in this edition of the Follies that are both novel and the latest word in this form of entertainment.

Palace Theatre.

A successful effort to retrieve the spirit of the ancient Bazdad melodies was made by Mortimer Wilson, conductor-composer of New York who wrote the musical score for Douglas Fairbanks'. The Theft of Bagdad, which comes to the Palace theater for three days only, Sept. 4-5-6. The stories the aged tale bearers of Bagdad told around the blazing fires to camel drivers and travelers centuries ago, have been preserved in The Arabian Nights, but the music of that day has been lost forever. Mortimer Wilson reincarnated it. He has caught all the romance, beauty, color and glitter of that ancient city and interpreted it in terms of notes and bars. The success of his efforts is due to the fact that he took his inspiration direct from the picture, viewing each scene shortly after it was taken and then setting his impressions to music.

Breed Theater

Seldom, if ever, is a moving picture actor called upon to topple off a cliff while mounted on his horse, but this feat, nevertheless, is performed by John Gilbert in the latest William Fox western production, Romance Ranch, which will be the feature attraction at the Breed theater today and Thursday.

You will be appalled by this remarkable scene. It is so realistic that you are led to believe that the handsome Fox star has gone to his death accompanied by his noble horse.

So horrifying was the accident that many of the camera men stopped grinding, the cooler, however, caught it all, and in Romance Ranch you will be thrilled by it.

For the second feature Irene Rich will be seen in Michael O'Halloran. This is the story of Mickey, the newsboy, who radiates gunshine and brings happiness to those with whom he comes in contact.

The Fox news completes this big double bill.

MARKET CLOSED IRREGULAR.

New York, Aug. 26.—Short covering operations imparted a firm tone to opening prices in today's stock market but the failure of speculators on the long side to follow up the advance led to a renewal of selling pressure, leaving the closing quotations decidedly irregular. Business was in reduced volume, total sales of less than 675,000 shares being the lowest in about a month.

Selling pressure was directed largely against specialties, which have been the subject of unfavorable rumors. Some of the most active selling took place in such issues as Chandler Motors. Famous Players, International Paper, Cuyamel Fruit, Kresge Department Stores and National Enameling, which showed net declines of one to 3 1-2 points.

Standard industrials showed mixed changes on the day. U. S. Steel closed 1-4 higher at 108 7-8 after having touched 109 1-2. American Can touched 134 3-4 and then eased to 133 1-2, up 3-4. Baldwin and Studebaker showed small fractional recessions. Chairman Gary's announcement that the improvement in the steel trade in the last few months had exceeded in expectations was not made until after the market closed.

Railroad shares showed mixed. One of the significant features of the July earnings report now being published is that net income for that month compares favorably with that of the same month last year, despite rather substantial reductions in gross. "Katy" common was one of the features of the railroad group, closing 1 5-8 higher at 16. "Nickel Plate" issues improved fractionally in reflection of the acceptances of the proposed merger terms by the Erie directors. Most of the anthracite carriers responded favorably to reports of increased July earnings.

International Railways of Central America touched a new top at 16, buying apparently being influenced by reports that the floating supply in London had been substantially reduced by the purchases of American investors.

Active selling of Congoleum, which broke more than three points to 45, followed the announcement of a new stock offering. Weakness of Chandler was again associated with unfavorable dividend rumors. Public utilities showed good gains during the early trading but they reacted with the rest of the list later. U. S. Cast Iron Pipe was one of the outstanding strong spots, touching a new high at 106 3-8 and then slipping back to 106 1-2, up 1 3-8. Jordan Motors and Fleischmann also sold at their best prices of the year.

Call money again held at 3 per cent. Time money rates were unchanged with business quiet. Commercial paper was fairly active with 3 3-4 per cent. the ruling rate for prime names.

Trading in the foreign exchanges was light but the principal rates held firm. Demand sterling was quoted drouna $4.48 1-2 and French francs ruled around 5.40 cents. Other European currencies showed only nominal changes.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Aug. 26.—Recent high levels attained by several public utilities on the curb market were shaded in today's trading by comparatively light profit taking sales. American Power and Light yielded about 21 points, closing at 278; Commonwealth Power lost 2 1-2 and American Gas and Electric 2 1-4; new common stock of American Power and Light was admitted to trading, crossing 40, but closing at 38 1-2, with initial transactions of nearly 1,000 shares.

The industrial group showed early indications of strength, but gains in some issues were reduced in the unsettlement that followed weakness in the Department Store shares. Grand Stores lost ten points. Small gains were shown by several industrials at the close Gillette Safety Razor managed to hold half of its early two point advance. Ford Motors of Canada revealed weakness, losing 5 1-4 points on the day on a small turnover. Other motor shares and the radios changed only fractionally.

Conflicting movements featured the oils the weak issues including Standard Oils of Nebraska, Kansas and New York, while slight gains were scored by Standard Oils of Kentucky and Indiana. Price changes were relatively unimportant.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Aug. 26.—Reactionary tendencies again predominated in today's bond market with Liberty bonds, foreign obligations and railroad issues participating in the downward movement. Trading was dull with price fluctuations mainly confined to narrow limits.

Conflicting movements featured dealings in the Wilson and Company issues, which attracted considerable trading interest in view of the receivership proceedings against the company. The convertible sixes and 7 1-2s recovered almost 4 points of yesterday's sharp break as selling pressure was diverted to the first 6s, which fell back 2 7-8.

Reports that the French government might float another external loan later in the year had a depressing influence on French bonds, but failed to bring about serious liquidation. The Republican 7 1-2s and 8s were heavy and several of the municipal issues averaged losses of about a point. Belgian and Serbian obligations also lost ground.

Continued liquidation of banking accounts was reflected in declining prices for investment securities, including Liberty and high grade railroad issues. Heavier commercial demands, it was indicated were causing banks to shift their capital into other channels.

An offering of $12,500,000 Pacific Gas and Electric 5 1-2 per cent. bonds today was oversubscribed. Local bankers were said to be figuring on a $15,000,000 issue for the Dominion Coal Company of Canada, a subsidiary of the British Empire Steel Corporation.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Aug. 26.—Improvement of crop propect ins Canada brought about free selling of wheat here today and prices dropped to a new low of th epresent downturn. At the finish wheat was 3 to 4 1-8c off, with September $1.20 1-4 to $1.20 3-4, and December $1.25 to $1.25 1-8; corn rose 1 1-4 to 2c; oats unchanged to 1-2c lower and provisions were the same as yesterday to 12 1 c higher.

A report to the Winnipeg Free Press suggesting a yield of 282,000,000 bushels of wheat for the three provinces, which, with the eastern provinces would make more than 400,000,000 bushels for the country has responsible for the sudden downturn in the wheat market here, toward the finish. Previously the market was inclined to rally from its early weakness, when buyers became active on the down turn.

Initial declines were attributed to the easier tone at Winnipeg, the break in Liverpool and report that yesterday's export business were greatly exaggerated.

Improved investment buying induced by receipt of unfavorable weather reports relative to the condition of the corn crop brought about a sharp upturn in the value of corn. Nebraska reported a heat wave and need of rain, South Dakota told of the unlikelihood of corn maturing, while central portions of the belt showed no material improvement under favorbale weather.

Oats encountered a good class of commission house buying, being influenced largely by the action of corn.

Provisions were firmer on scattered buying.

COMMON AILMENTS OF MIDDLE AGE are indicated in women by nervous conditions, irritability, melancholia, pains and aches in the back, dizzy spells, headaches and heat flashes. These trying conditions may be easily overcome and such symptoms controlled by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It will interest women to know that in a recent canvass among over one hundred and twenty-one thousand women, ninety-eight out of every hundred reported benefit from its use.

AMERICAN WOOLEN COMPANY

TRUE VALUES

THE true cost of a yard of woolen or worsted cloth is measured by the human endeavor that goes into its making and that endeavor can be traced from the wool grower in the field to the one who cuts, fashions and makes the finished clothing. The "per dollar" value of cloth and the "per dollar" value of money are therefore alike—each representing a certain amount of human endeavor.

YOUTH INSTANTLY KILLED BY HIGH TENSION WIRE CARRYING 4,600 VOLTS

Edmund Bugbee, 18, of Uncasville, son of Charles and Anna Bugbee, was instantly killed at 5.30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon when he accidently came in contact with, or touched a wire carrying 4600 volts, which had blown down about 500 feet from his home.

The boy, who would have been 19 years old today (Wednesday) was walking along the highway on the road that leads from Uncasville toward the Eastern Connecticut Power company station and evidently touched the fallen wire carrying 4600 volts.

Alex Kruprowski, a Polish resident, who was working nearby, saw the Bugbee boy touch the wire and saw a flash of flame. He ran out into the road and seizing a stick made an attempt to throw the wire from the body of the boy. He made three vain attempts. Each time the stick touched the wire he was hurled to the ground, narrowly escaping death himself.

Mrs. Bugbee, at her home some 500 feet away, heard a scream and running out of the house she looked down the road and saw what she thought to be a limb in the road. Running further she saw the body of her son, Edmund. By this time other people had gathered at the scene of the accident and an effort was made to keep Mrs. Bugbee from rushing to her son. She tore away from them and tried to pull the boy away from the wire. She was hurled to the ground, suffering severe burns to the right arm and left hand.

Men from the power company were soon on the scene and the power was cut off and word sent to Medical Examiner Dr. Morton E. Fox at Montville. As he could not go to the scene of the fatal accident he called Coroner J. J. Desmond of Norwich, who in turn called Dr. John J. Donohue of Montville and deputized him as medical examiner.

Dr. Donohue with his son, Dr. John J. Donohue, Jr., immediately went to the scene of the accident and after viewing the body gave permission to Henry Allen & Son Co., of Norwich to remove it. Treatment was given Mrs. Bugbee who was painfully burned and suffering from shock.

Death was instantaneous for the boy, his chest, abdomen and neck being burned to a crisp and a hole over an inch deep being burned in his left side. Practically all his clothing was burned off from contact with the high voltage.

Edmund Bugbee was born 19 years ago today (Wednesday), the son of Charles and Anna Bugbee, and had spent practically all his life in Uncasville. He was educated in the schools of that town and at the time of his death was employed at the Montville plant of the J. B. Martin Co. He is survived by his parents, two brothers, Merton and Ralph and one sister, Alice Bugbee, who live at home.

The boy was of a kind and loving disposition and a favorite with all who knew him. News of his untimely death came as a shock to the community and his family have the sympathy of many friends in their sad bereavement.

WILL SEND HEALTH EXHIBIT TO NORWICH

In a bulletin issued Tuesday the state department of health outlined the activities which it will undertake in connection with the state fairs which will be held throughout Connecticut during the coming month. The department will be represented at the following three fairs to be held this month: East Haddam, Aug. 27; Washington, Aug. 29; Middletown, Aug. 30.

"The state department of health," continues the statement, "is ready with its health exhibit and will set up it its tent at many fairs in the midst of the vegetable and fruit exhibits, poultry and cattle shows and the midway. This is an unusual opportunity for the parents directly. Their children will be weighed and exhibits will show the right food and clothing for children. There will be exhibits to interest the adults, food that makes for health (it is just as important to feed people right as cattle); suggestions for rural sanitation, pictures to show how diseases are controlled. Special arrangements will be made for showing moving pictures and a variety of popular health films will be shown.

"Last year fourteen fairs were attended. The health exhibit provided one of the most popular forms of entertainment and instruction on the grounds. Eighteen thousand people were reached at these fairs. This year even larger numbers are anticipated.

"During the month of September, the health exhibit will be sent to the following fairs:

"Goshen, Sept. 1; Norwich, Sept. 2-3; Griswold, Sept. 11-13; Woodstock, Sept. 16-18; Lyme, Sept. 17; Chester, Sept. 19; Brooklyn, Sept. 13-25; Guilford, Sept. 24; Brookfield, Sept. 26; Plymouth, Sept. 28."

CANCER DEATHS SHOW BIG INCREASE IN STATE

A half-century of cancer in Connecticut is reviewed in a bulletin issued by the state department of health, which states that the death rate from the disease has increased from 35.3 a 100,000 for the five-year period of four years ended 1923. The total number of the deaths attributable to the disease in 1875 was 304 and in 1923, 1,450. The averages for the five-year periods from 1875 to 1923 are as follows:

1875 to 1879 35.2; 1880 to 1884 41.5; 1885 to 1889 43.0; 1890 to 1894 50.2; 1895 to 1899 58.0; 1900 to 1904 69.4; 1905 to 1909, 78.9; 1910 to 1914 82.0; 1915 to 1919 89.2; 1920 to 1924 (4 years) 99.9.

"These figures indicate a rise of 184 per cent. in the cancer death rate from an average of 35.2 for the five years beginning 1875, to 99.9 for the four years beginning 1920. A similar increase is reported from other states and other civilized countries. Some think that the increase is only apparent and is due to better diagnosis, changes in age distribution and other factors. It appears likely that the figures reflect in large part a real increase in prevalence of cancer.

"The cause of cancer is not known. Specific preventive measures useful in communicable disease control do not apply to cancer. Such measures as are available must be applied by each individual for himself. Cancer so frequently develops in tissue subjected to long continued irritation that the prevention or removal of such irritation may be regarded as a measure for the prevention of cancer.

BRING COURT ACTION FOR DAMAGES OF $3,000

Bilderbeck and Langdon, Inc., of New London have filed in the superior court for this county a $3,000 damage action against E. E. Dickinson of Essex, this state. The plaintiffs claim they rendered services to the defendant by preparing plans, making estimates and superintending the alteration of his dwelling house in Essex. Plaintiffs allege defendant agreed to pay them 5 per cent of the cost of the alterations. The cost of the alterations was in excess of $35,000. The plaintiff received on account only $2,138.15.

A second count alleges that the plaintiffs drew plans for a solarium and south porch for the defendant's house and that he agreed to pay them what the same were reasonably worth. They represent that these services were reasonably worth $300 which is due them.

NEW FORMS FOR LIQUOR PRESCRIPTIONS

Nearly a month after the date on which the old form of liquor prescription blanks became obsolete more than 350 physicians in Connecticut have not yet returned the old forms to be exchanged for new blanks. Prohibition Director Frank T. Putney said. The statistics reveal a marked difference among physicians in the practice of prescribing liquor. Those who have not yet obtained new forms cannot have issued prescriptions since August 1, and their number comprises nearly one-fourth of the licensed physicians in the state. On the other hand a large number of physicians regularly issue all the 100 prescription blanks allowed them every three months, and in some instances issue emergency prescriptions.

When the old forms were returned to the prohibition office Aug. 1 it was found that doctors in some cases had not entirely used a book of 100 prescription blanks in three years' time.

An interesting sidelight on the prescription business, Mr. Putney said, is that, generally speaking, doctors with the largest practice issue the least number of prescriptions. The majority of the eclectic physicians whose licenses to practice medicine and surgery were revoked during the medical probe usually issued the total number of prescriptions allowed in each quarter, and often exhausted the book of 100 blanks in thirty days, said Mr. Putney, who also added that the number of emergency prescriptions had greatly diminished this year.

All physicians and dispensing druggists must, before Sept. 1, forward their applications for renewal of permits to dispense liquor during 1925, the prohibition director said.

PLAINFIELD REPORTS CASE OF SMALLPOX

EARLY HISTORY OF ROAD SOCIETY CHURCH

In view of the approaching 250th anniversary of the organization of the First Congregational church of Stonington (Road), the first church of any denomination established in the town, which will be celebrated on Sunday afternoon at 1.30 o'clock, standard time, the following sketch of the early history of the church is of interest. Miss Grace D. Wheeler has written the following for the information of the public:

The first religious service in Stonington was held in 1657 at the home of Walter Palmer, the fourth founder of the town, at Wequetequock Cove, by Rev. William Thompson of Braintree, Mass., who at the time was a missionary to the Pequot Indians. Four years later the planters built a meeting house on the present Montauk avenue, near the home of Noyes Palmer. It was raised May 16, 1661, and in September the commissioners of the United Colonies, led by Capt. John Mason, attended, worshipping there. Several ministers taught there till 1664, when James Noyes of Newbury, Mass., accepted the invitation to become their gospel preaching minister, and remained their pastor until his death in 1719.

He was paid at first a salary of 50 pounds ($242) annually, and it was agreed to give liberally towards building him a house. In 1670 the inhabitants decided to build a new meeting house. They met and looked over the ministry land, 500 acres of which had been set apart by the town and 200 laid out, about Agreement Hill, for the support of the ministry, and at last decided upon a location for the new church at Agreement Hill, "where for time to come it should be set up and stand without removing."

This house was built by subscriptions of timber, nails and labor of men and teams. The hill at that time was covered with heavy timber which was removed by voluntary labor. The meeting house was raised in January, 1673, and the church formally organized June 3, 1674, with nine persons, all men, as members.

Though there were but nine persons mentioned as beginning the church, viz.: James Noyes, Thomas Stanton, Nathan Chesebrough, Thomas Miner, Nehemiah Palmer, Ebenezer Miner, Thomas Stanton, Jr., Moses Palmer and Thomas Wheeler, yet the entire population had participated in laying out the ministry land, in organizing the town plot, and in the erection of the meeting house; and before 1696 nearly all of them were admitted to the church, as Mr. Noyes' ministry was very successful and sustained by his parishioners with great unanimity.

Mr. Noyes was ordained Sept. 10, 1674, and the next day married Dorothy, the daughter of Thomas and Ann Lord Stanton, at whose house he had been living. He built his house at Anguilla, which was then called Noyes' Brook, this being the first parsonage of the First Congregational church in Stonington, Conn., where he lived the remainder of his life. After a time his salary was raised to 100 pounds, and he had the use of the ministry land and also other grants of land.

In 1690 the town voted to "build near the church a small house, 14 feet square, with seven feet posts and fireplace, for Mr. Noyes to warm himself in cold weather between meetings."

Rev. James Noyes was a distinguished preacher and one of the founders of Yale college. During his pastorate there of 55 years and six months he baptized 1,178 persons. The church record speaks thus of him: "He lived much desired and died much lamented."

The small leather-covered record book in which he kept the records of the marriages, admissions and baptisms, is in his own handwriting and very legible, he using but little paper to record much of interest.

He died Dec. 30, 1710, aged 79 years.

WELL BABY CONFERENCE AT WAUREGAN TUESDAY

The bureau of child hygiene of the state department of health has announced that a well baby conference will be held in Waurekan, at the company hall, Tuesday, Sept. 2.

While many mothers have responded to this conference, there are many others who should be receiving the benefit of this thorough physical examination. Children should gain normally each month. By bringing the child to the well baby conference, it is possible to keep a record of the gain and find out almost at once if any physical defect has developed. Such cases are referred to the family physician, and mothers already have realized the value of having these corrected at once.

The conference will be held at the company hall from 2 to 4 p. m.

ABOU BEN ADHEM.

Abou Ben Adhem (may his tribe in

And saw, within the moonlight in h

Making it rich, and like a lily in bloom
An angel writing in a book of gold;
Exceeding peace had made Ben Adhe

And to the Presence in the room he sai
"What writest thou?" The vision raise

And with a look made of all sweet accor

"And mine is one?" said Abou. "Nay, n

Replied the angel. Abou spoke more low
But cheerily still; and said, "I pray the

The angel wrote, and vanished. The nex

MANY INJURED ON LINERS DURING HURRICANE AT SEA

White Star Liner Arabic Was Tossed About Like a Canoe in a River Rapids—Ship Was Stripped of Her Lifeboats and Her Portholes Were Smashed by Hugh Seas—More Than Fifty Person Were Injured—Five Large Liners Fought Their Way Through Waves Between 40 and 50 Feet in Height.

New York, Aug. 27.—Atlantic shipping paid heavy toll to the hurricane which raged over the seas from the south to the north Atlantic for the better part of the last three days.

With the arrival in port late today of the White Star liner Arabic bearing more than fifty persons injured in the 100-mile gale, shipping officials learned that the hurricane had caught many vessels in its sweep. At least five large liners, heavily loaded with home-coming passengers, fought their way through the gale that at times whipped the waves into battering hillocks between 40 and 50 feet in height.

The Arabic, her sick bay filled with injured, her decks stripped of lifeboats and her portholes smashed in, was the hardest hit. The Homeric, also of the White Star line, ran into the giant storm in its waning strength, and had eight injured and suffered damage to her superstructure. The Munson liner Munargo, from Nassau, and the Orizaba of the Ward line made port badly battered.

The Italian liner Giuseppe Verdi, with 155 passengers, escaped the heart of the hurricane and came through with nothing worse than a few smashed life boats and porthole glasses. All were from a few hours to a day late.

Of the 52 persons who received injuries necessitating the doctors' care aboard the Arabic, seven were so badly hurt they had to be removed to hospitals. Ambulances awaited the ship at her North River pier. Captain Mickson having apprised the White Star offices of their need in a wireless message sent earlier in the day. Of the Arabic's injured, 35 were passengers—nine of them in the third cabin—and 17 were members of the crew. A score or more of others suffered minor hurts which did not require medical attention.

One man was reported dead, a victim of the gale. This was the only casualty reported. The steamer Elisa Walker picked up a wireless message from the Danish steamer Nordfarer, en route here from South America, stating that a wave had swept the 2500-ton vessel and smashed its bridge and its master, Captain J. Madsen, who was piloting the little freighter, had been knocked overboard.

A wireless request for an ambulance was sent tonight from the Munson ship Mundelita, inward bound from San Pedro, saying the captain, J. F. Smith, was injured during the gale.

The Arabic, which sailed from Hamburg with 616 passengers Aug. 16, left Halifax for New York at 2:30 o'clock last Monday. Captain Mickson reported ideal weather was encountered until noon of the next day, Tuesday, when the barometer dropped and the wind began to freshen. At 3 o'clock, he said, the wind had attained a velocity of 120 miles an hour, and began to kick up veritable mountains of water which tossed the 16,000 tons of steel liner about like a canoe in a river rapids.

Shortly after 3 o'clock the hurricane, with no warning, lifted a gargantuan sea which slapped the Arabic about the bridge on the starboard side, and piled a hundred screaming, frightened men, women and children into a kicking heap in a corner of the main lounge. Mixed with the squarming human pile were articles of lounge furniture, paintings from the walls, tapestries, hangings and chunks of the half-inch glass smashed out of the portholes.

The water rushed over the decks in a torrential flood, sweeping all before it, crushing life boats, twisting heavy iron stanchions and gushing geyser-like through smashed portholes, and flooding virtually every cabin of the two upper decks. Four life rafts were swept overboard, as was a life boat. Nine other life boats were shattered and left in splinters. The deck companionways were washed and blown away before the fury of the sea and wind.

The wireless aerial was incapacitated for several hours. Porcelain bath tubs were cracked through the center. The seas that at times sent the liner over to an angle of 35 degrees, shifted her cargo until she had a list of ten degrees. As the hurricane passed all the crew that could be spared spent hours in replacing the cargo to again put the Arabic on an even keel.

At the height of the storm panic ruled the passengers on all decks. It was all the officers could do to calm the whimpering women and children while some of the male passengers had to be accorded rough treatment before they could regain their composure.

The shaken and injured, many of them suffering pitiably from seasickness, had no dry places to sleep that night. Table tops were transformed into couches, deck chairs were utilized and the decks themselves provided the night's lodging for a good portion of those aboard.

The ship's water was contaminated by the brine, and the thirsty had to content themselves with fruit juices and bottled waters until the Arabic docked.

The Munargo was the next hardest hit. Her captain, as well as the Orizaba's master, declared it was the worst storm they have ever weathered. The Munargo was in the thick of the gale from Sunday afternoon until 9 o'clock yesterday morning, many hundreds of miles to the south of the point where the hurricane hurled itself upon the Arabic 25 miles east of Nantucket. During that period nobody on board slept. Both the Munargo and the Orizaba were flooded from stem to stern, and each bore ample marks of the thrashing handed them by the storm.

FEAR FOR SAFETY OF THE GRAND BANKS FISHING FLEET

St. John, N. F., Aug. 27.—With a furious gale raging off the coast and over Newfoundland, fears were expressed tonight for the safety of the fishing fleet of the Grand Banks. Much minor damage had been caused today by the storm. Several vessels broke from their moorings in the harbor. Coastwise craft were unable to proceed. Trains were delayed by the storm. It was feared that the storm had caused much damage to fishing vessels.

ULLMAN FORCES WON REP. CAUCUS IN NEW HAVEN

New Haven, Aug. 27.—Efforts of the so-called republican reorganization forces, headed by Clarence G. Willard, assistant secretary of the republican state central committee, to wrest republican control in New Haven from the party organization headed by Col. Isaac M. Ullman were decisively beaten at the republican caucus here tonight to pick delegates to the republican state convention.

Unofficial returns show that the Ullman forces came out of the fight with a two to one victory, the unofficial figures being 78 to 46. The Ullman forces claim 20 1-2 of the 33 wards in the city, giving 12 1-2 wards to the Willard faction. In one ward, the Eighth, the vote was split.

The contest has been a bitter one and is a continuance of one fought some months ago when the anti-organization faction claimed a victory at the time of the selection of delegates to the spring state convention of the party. At that time the organization forces claimed that their ward leaders had been caught napping and prepared for the struggle which resulted in the Ullman victory at the polls tonight.

Willard, the leader of the reorganization faction, is an adherent of State Chairman J. Henry Roraback. Others prominent in the campaign to overthrow the organization faction were former Governor Rollin S. Woodruff, former Lieutenant Governor Dennis A. Blakeslee and J. Frederick Baker, clerk of the senate.

In the newest development of picture transmission the actual colors are not sent over the wire, but the colors are separated at the point of sending and reassembled when received, according to the announcement.

TWO PRIESTS DROWNED WHEN CANOE CAPSIZED

Marshfield, Mass., Aug. 27.—Two Roman Catholic priests were drowned at Sunrise Beach, near here, today, when the canoe in which they were paddling capsized. They were William J. Chittick, 30, of Boston, who was stationed in a Framingham parish, and Thomas F. Kehan, 29, of Boston, attached to St. Elizabeth's hospital in the Brighton district. Although members of the coast guard and local physicians worked to restore respiration, life was extinct.

The canoe overturned in less than six feet of water.

Rev. Father Chittick was chaplain of Bethany convent in Framingham. He was educated in Boston Latin school, Boston college, and was ordained at St. John's seminary, Brighton, in 1919. ANOTHER DELAY BY THE WORLD FLIGHT AVIATORS

On Board U. S. Cruiser Richmond, Ice Tickle, Labrador (By Wireless to the A. P.)—Further postponement of one day in the departure of the American army world fliers from Ivigtut, Greenland, to Indian Harbor, Labrador, was ordered this morning because of a storm which is reported moving north. Rear Admiral Thomas P. Magruder notified the vessels of the naval patrol that the flight had been postponed until Friday at the earliest.

Meanwhile the Richmond has put in at Ice Tickle, a few miles from Indian Harbor. The destroyers Lawrence, Charles Ausburn and McFarland are anchored at the latter place, but it was considered that Ice Tickle is a better harbor for a larger vessel.

Davis Straits are still foggy, and some icebergs are floating. The Richmond passed a huge ice mountain early this morning.

Lieut. Lowell H. Smith, commander of the world flight, messaged Admiral Magruder that the work of installing new engines in the army planes was progressing favorably, although hampered somewhat by the rain Monday. The work, the message stated, probably would be completed by tonight, and the aviators were planning to hop off for Indian Harbor Friday.

A further message stated that the fliers expect to hop off from Indian Harbor the day after their arrival there.

DANCE AND GROW THIN OR DANCE AND GROW FAT

Chicago, Aug. 27.—"Dance and grow thin," might as well read "dance and grow fat," Ned Wayburn, noted stage dancing instructor, told the forty-first annual convention of the American Dancing Masters' association here today.

"I had one girl pupil," said Mr. Wayburn, "who gained 23 pounds during a three weeks' course and in the same class another who lost 21 pounds.

"I would rather have a plain girl who can dance," he added, "than a beautiful girl who can dance equally well. The reason is that beautiful girls are difficult to make up for stage appearance, while plain girls can be made up to rival the most queenly of all beauties."

Penetrating Defense Of Loeb And Leopold

Chicago, Aug. 27 (By the A. P.)—Picking his way through a bewildering maze of technical terminology, State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe continued today his argument for a sentence to the gallows for Nathan F. Leopold Jr., and Richard Loeb.

He planted beneath the ramparts of the defense plea of mercy and theory of mental sickness two big charges of verbal dynamite, one a mine and the other a hand grenade. And then he watched them explode.

Mr. Crowe, although he had talked all day, was beaming when court adjourned. He cheerily announced he would be through in half a day tomorrow. Then will follow a brief formality concerning the indictment for kidnaping Robert Franks, after which the case will be ready for Judge Caverly's decision.

Mr. Crowe's mine was the Hulbert-Bowg report, frequently referred to in this case. In a manner calculated to rock the carefully reared structure of the defense, he read from the document penetrating hitherto unfathomed quotations from the two youthful defendants themselves, which tended in the view of the prosecutor, to controvert much of the alienists' testimony concerning the inadequate emotional nature of young Loeb and the superman obsession of Leopold.

He found in it two quoted admissions by the youths that the $10,000 ransom was the object of their plot and opinions by defense alienists that heredity had nothing to do with the crime.

Indeed, the state's attorney argued it was a question for the discretion of the court whether the defense claims on these points were not branded "undisguised and clumsy perjury," by these revelations of the boys' mental processes.

His second bombshell, less thunderous, but apparently as unexpected as the first, was in the form of letters addressed to Loeb from relatives and friends treating of his gambling debts—the debts important to Mr. Crowe, he said, as supplying the money motive for the crime.

The report, it was learned, came into the record while Dr. William J. Healy, a defense alienist, was undergoing cross-examination. A reference was made to it at that time and Mr. Crowe remarked that he could shorten the examination if he had the report itself.

"We will let you have it. In fact, we will place it in evidence," remarked defense counsel.

That night Dr. M. Douglas Singer, a state alienist read the report and then it went to Thomas Marshall, assistant state's attorney, who analyzed and cross-indexed it. Today Mr. Crowe relied upon the notes of his assistant in bringing out his points that money was the motive of the crime, that the defendants had exhibited emotion and that no hereditary taints had been found by the defense's examiners. He quoted, too, a remark by Dr. Healy that the report had never been intended to reach the state's attorney.

"That letter isn't in the record," said Benjamin Bachrach when Mr. Crowe started reading the missive in which Allan Loeb admonished his brother that he was "going too high" in his gambling.

"Oh, yes it is," said the state's attorney, and handed it to the defense attorneys.

Allan Loeb flushed slightly at this episode but it did not seem to bother Richard. The latter even said to Milton Smith, an assistant state's attorney, as they passed each other when court adjourned, that the letter from Allen would explain where he had obtained all the money he had deposited in two bank accounts.

Mr. Crowe read these bank records immediately after calling the court's attention to the letters. They showed deposits of from $50 to $730 each, number a score or more and coming on dates when Loeb's monthly allowance of $250 was not due from his father.

"Where did he get this money?" asked Mr. Crowe, and left the question unanswered, for Judge Caverly's consideration over night.

Mr. Crowe spent much of his time in elaboration of his theory that "money had everything to do with this crime."

PRISON GUARD CHARGED WITH BREACH OF TRUST

Wethersfield, Aug. 27.—Samuel Ritchie, a guard at the state prison here, was held under $5,000 bonds for the superior court today by a local justice of the peace, on a technical charge of breach of trust. It is alleged that Ritchie took a letter last Saturday night from Luman C. Beckett, serving a life sentence at the prison for the murder of Charles E. Taft, New Britain night-hawk taxi-driver, in 1921, and delivered it to relatives of Beckett in New Britain on Sunday.

The state prison officials refuse to make the letter public but stated that its contents dealt with a plan of Beckett to escape from the prison. Beckett became alarmed on Monday and fearing punishment, revealed the fact that he had given Ritchie the letter. The accused guard was arrested by the state police after complaint had been made to State's Attorney H. M. Alcorn.

NOMINEE DAVIS MAY CALL ON PRINCE OF WALES

New York, Aug. 27—John W. Davis will call on the Prince of Wales if the prince still is visiting on Long Island when the democratic presidential candidate, and former ambassador to Great Britain, returns from his western campaign tour, on which he will start Sunday.

Mr. Davis praised the prince today as a "very likeable human being," and declared his tact "is truly remarkable." Mr. Davis recited two incidents occurring while he was ambassador to Great Britain illustrating human, kindly qualities of the heir to the British throne.

One of these occurred at the Pilgrim's dinner, the guests at which included Walter Page, the son of the late Ambassador Walter Hines Page. Mr. Davis pointed Mr. Page out to the prince who immediately requested that he be presented.

Upon meeting Mr. Page, the prince first praised his father, who was the American war ambassador at the court of St. James, and then asked very kindly about his mother.

"That was his frame of mind," Mr. Davis said. "He is a very kindly, human person."

The other incident occurred at a dinner given by the Royal Academy of Arts at which the prince made an address. None of the speakers mentioned the retiring president of the Academy, Sir Edward John Poynter.

"When the addresses were concluded," Mr. Davis said, "the prince arose, said there had been an oversight which everyone would regret; then he proposed a toast to Sir Edward. I thought the whole thing had been beautifully stage-managed, but I was assured by the prince's secretaries that it had not been."

REICHSTAG APPROVAL OF DAWES PLAN IS DUBIOUS

Second Reading of the Dawes Bill Passed 248 to 174—Two-Thirds Majority is Required For Final Passage—Balloting Has Been Postponed Until Friday Because of Rioting by Communists—A Squad of Police Was Called Upon to Forcebly Remove Three of the Communists.

Berlin, Aug. 27 (By the A. P.).—Although the reichstag passed the second reading of the Dawes bill today by a general majority of 248 to 174, the balloting virtually leaves the government only a scant hope of obtaining the two-thirds majority required for final passage when the measure as a whole is up for its last reading, unless the nationalists conclude to give it negative support by permitting defections in their reichstag delegation when the fateful vote is taken.

The balloting has been postponed until Friday owing to prolonged interruptions at today's session by rioting communists. The nationalises are holding a secret caucus tonight, at which the party's attitude when the critical vote is taken will be determined.

The disturbances in the reichstag which treminated in a general exhibition of fighting finally compelled President Wallraf to call in a squad from police headquarters for the purpose of forcibly removing three of the communists. The incident has measureably quickened the yearning among the bourgeois parties for early dissolution of the reichstag, for which the socialists are the most insistent clamorers.

The middle parties, on the other hand, believe the present international situation an awkward period for new elections, inasmuch as delayed ratification of the London pact through a new reichstag would precipitate the gravest economic and political convulsion within Germany, even if the Marx-Stresemann cabinet proceeds to ratify the pact before the end of the month.

The opponents of a new election argue that at least a month would be needed for a campaign on the Dawes report, thus forcing Germany to pass through an interim of insecurity.

It is also pointed out that such delay would in all probability result in modifications or restrictions which would seriously impair the present prospects for a loan credit.

FURTHER DETAILS IN GRAFF MURDER CASE

New York, Aug. 27.—John Lugosy, for whom the police are searching in connection with the death of his partner, Aaron Graff, whose body was found in a sealed varnishing vat in the Lugosy cellar recently, was engaged in the hunt for the victim two days after he disappeared, according to information supplied officials today.

Mrs. Julia Edwards, who introduced Lugosy to Graff, was the principal witness before Assistant District Attorney Ryan. Graff disappeared on August 1, and on August 3 Mrs. Graff and Lugosy came to her and sought information regarding the missing radio cabinet maker. She said she had last seen Graff on July 30, but that he failed to keep an appointment to collect payments on a debt the next day. Lugosy seemed surprised when she first told him of his partner's disappearance, she averred.

Police are mystified by a hammer regarded as having a possible bearing on the case. They found it in the cellar where the body was discovered, and removed it to another cellar where Graff and Lugosy sold radio cabinets. When they returned to the first cellar the hammer was mysteriously back again. Once more it vanished and was found later in the radio manufacturing basement.

SILENT ABOUT CHARGE AGAINST P. O. INSPECTOR

Chicago, Aug. 27.—Police inspectors tonight were silent as to the methods by which evidence of alleged complicity in the $2,000,000 Ronduot, Ill., mail robbery had been obtained against William F. Fahy, one time "ace" of the local force of inspectors.

They would not verify printed reports that $14,000 of the loot had been traced to Fahy as his share of the proceeds of the holdup and that Fahy's downfall had been brought about through tapping the wires of his telephone.

The government officials tonight were continuing their checking of two new angles of the situation, Fahy's alleged affairs with women and his reported intention to leave the government service and establish a private detictive agency.

Fahy, in jail at Geneva, Ills., in default of $50,000 bail, asserts that his arrest is the result of a conspiracy against him and that he is innocent.

SUCCESSFUL TEST MADE OF THE DIRIGIBLE ZR-3

Friedrichshafen, Germany, Aug. 27.—(By The A. P.)—ZR-3, the dirigible which Germany built for the United States and which is soon to cross the ocean, made her baptismal trip today in a pouring rain when she completed a two hours' flight over Lake Constance.

"The ship behaved splendidly," said Dr. Hugo Eckener, director of the Zeppelin company, who was in command, "and everything worked well, excepting one pesky motor, which refused to function properly and as a consequence was shut off toward the end of th eflight."

Six Americans were aboard, and were well satisfied although they did not see much of the country below owing to the rain and mist. The ship kept just under the clouds, only reaching an altitude of 1,200 feet. The highest speed attained was little more than sixty miles per hour.

According to experts who examined the troublesome motor after the flight, the crankshaft was broken, and the engine must be replaced. This, it was declared, could be quickly remedied, and was not likely to delay the trans-Atlantic flight.

Captain George W. Steele, U. S. navy, said:

"I went as a passenger and thoroughly enjoyed myself, despite the rain, which prevented us from gaining a good view even of Friedrichshafen as we passed over the town towards Switzerland, although we were only five hundred feet up. This was really a joy ride for all the Americans. We had absolutely nothing to do with the navigation, as the Germans desired to try out the ship and see if there were any kinks anywhere."

The Americans aboard were Captain Steele, Commander Garland Fulton, Lieutenant Commander Sydney M. Kraus, Naval Lieutenant Karl Schmidt, Major Frank M. Kennedy, Army Air Service, and Jack Yolton, construction superintendent of the aeronautical department of the Goodrich Rubber Company.

WILLIMANTIC

The final touches were being given Wednesday at Elks' Park. Pleasant street, so that when the official opening of the Country Fair is announced this (Thursday) evening everything will be in readiness. The members of local Elkdom have displayed remarkable ability in handling such a colossal an undertaking as their annual Country Fair and attending with precision even minor details. Further this the Elks are constantly drawing from the huge supply of knowledge acquired through six years of experience in putting on a fair, so that each year new ideas are added to the old, consequently each fair surpasses the previous ones. This year the affair has taken on the proportions of a mammoth proposition, but the committees intend to prove once more to the public that they are equal to any task. Several changes have been made in the "city of booths" and new ideas feature that part of the attractions. The vaudeville acts, always the talk of the town, have been added to in number and variety and if possible, in high calibre. Chairman Charles W. Hill of the exhibits committee announced Wednesday that the exhibits would be received at the park as late as nine o'clock in the evening.

The opening parade, which inaugurates the Fair is to get under way at 6:45 o'clock, moving down Valley street, down Jackson, up Union and Main, down Bridge and up Mountain and Pleasant streets to Elks' Park. Eugene E. Mickey is to be marshal. Special trolley service to South Coventry will be provided each night by the Connecticut Company the last car leaving here at 11.55 o'clock (standard time). Little girls between four and ten are to be eligible for this feature.

In the police court Wednesday morning Stanley Yagelski was charged with assault on Mrs. Tecla Pyzo. The man pleaded not guilty, he in turn complaining that it was the woman who assaulted him Isadore J. Heller acted as interpreter for a number of witnesses. The alleged assault took place Sunday on Ives street. According to the Pyzo woman Yagelski came into her yard and berated her son, Benny Pyzo. When she interfered, Yagelski struck her in the face. He was drunk she stated. Benny Pyzo said that when the man struck his mother, he in turn struck him with a stick. Yagelski made rather light of the matter, stating that there was no foundation to the whole story. He admonished the Pyzo boy for bothering him and the mother came out and swore at him and struck him with a broomstick. He charged that the woman was drunk. Jim Chicon, Frank Nyck and Daniel Wack testified for Yagelski. The accused explained the situation when he stated that young Pyzo and another boy had threatened a man with a stick, at a picnic, two Sundays ago, when the man refused to give them a drink of whiskey. When Benny Pyzo was accused of this last Sunday the mother butted in. Judge Foss summed up the case as just another Bower village scrabble which had no definite cause and was without serious results. As the evidence introduced lacked strength, he discharged the accused.

Wolfe at Lakeside Park, early Sunday morning. The loot comprised about $40 worth of candy, cigars, cigarettes and trinkets. Following an investigation, State Policeman George Bahr, of the Stafford Springs barracks, arrested the youths Tuesday evening. They were held at the local police station during the night. Justice of the Peace George H. Andrews held the court session. He fixed the bonds at $300 each, which were furnished. Grand Juror Robert G. Arthur C. Chadbourne, 59 Blossom street, Arlington, Mass., was fined $25 and costs, amounting to $51.15 which he paid, in the police court Wednesday morning when found guilty on a charge of reckless driving of a truck which struck and injured Francis Bellwire on July 31. The accused pleaded not guilty. He was represented by a Hartford attorney. Chadbourne drove a truck owned by the Johnson Educator Cracker Company. Bellwire was still weak from his injuries and was assisted to the witness stand by his daughter, Mrs. Hinckley. Bellwire, who is an elderly man, said that he was crossing Windham Road, near the Willimantic Camp ground. An automobile slowed down to allow him to pass, but did not completely pass and the driver made some remark to the man. Bellwire then took a few more steps and was struck by a machine that came from behind the other car. Dr. F. M. Smith testified to attending Bellwire at St. Joseph's hospital and that the man suffered from lacerations on the head and a jagged cut on the upper and lower lip, also injuries to his abdomen and back. The physician believed that Bellwire had made a complete recovery since leaving the hospital.

Thomas Devoe and his wife, Jeannette Devoe, of New York city, at present from Hartford, stated that Chadbourne was giving them a ride into Willimantic and they were on the seat with the driver. The summary of the testimony given by Mr. and Mrs. Devoe and Chadbourne was to the effect that Bellwire was leaning against the side of the machine, which was stopped on the left of the highway, and appeared to be talking. When the truck approached the spot from the opposite direction, Bellwire stepped away and started across the road, walking directly in the path of the oncoming machine. The speed of the truck was estimated at 35 miles per hour and after the mishap it was brought to a quick stop. The claim was that the accident was unavoidable. Robert Rafferty, letter carrier at the local postoffice said that he had seen a man talking to the driver of the halted machine. The truck, he said, stopped within 30 feet after he had seen the man fall. Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Frank P. Fenton contended that Chadbourne was driving recklessly, in that he was traveling 35 miles an hour within the city limits, and that he did not sound his horn, as the defendant himself had acknowledged. The minimum fine was then imposed.

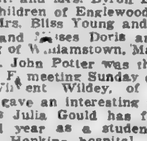
How Doctors Know That Nuxated Iron Helps Bring Health and Strength

THIS little picture shows you what the Doctor sees through his microscope when he looks at a drop of your blood when you are tired and run-down.

This is thin, pale, watery blood which keeps you weak, nervous and run-down. If you tire easily; if you look pale, haggard and worn it would probably astonish you to look at a drop of your own blood under the Doctor's powerful microscope and compare it with a drop of pure, healthy blood rich in iron. Actual blood tests show that a tremendously large number of people who are weak and ill, lack iron in their blood, are ill for no other reason than for lack of iron.

Without iron the blood at once loses the power to change food into living tissue, therefore, nothing you eat does you the proper amount of good, you don't get the strength out of it. As the result of this blood starvation people become generally weak-nerved, nervous and all run-down and frequently develop all sorts of conditions. One is too thin; another is burdened with unhealthy fat; some are so weak they can hardly walk; some think they have dyspepsia, kidney or liver trouble; some can't sleep at night, others are sleepy and tired all day; some fussy and irritable; some skinny and bloodless, but all lack physical power and endurance.



HERE is a picture of a nerve which belongs to a strong virile man, a man of blood and iron. If you are weak, nervous and run-down your nerve probably looks like the previous picture and not like this one. In such cases you should immediately take something to revitalize your worn-out, exhausted nerves and create new nerve force. This is most effectively accomplished by the free use of Nuxated Iron. This valuable product quickly aids in enriching the blood and thereby helps it to furnish an additional supply of new nerve force with which to revitalize and regenerate the brain and nerve cells. It also contains a product which represents the principal chemical constituent of active living nerve force in a form most nearly allied to that in the nerve and brain cells of men. Nuxated Iron may therefore be said to be both a blood and a nerve food as it furnishes strength-giving organic iron to the blood and the most important element of the nerve-vital fluid to the nerves. The effect of Nuxated Iron in cases of exhausted nerve force and impoverished blood is so remarkable and surprising that it often increases the strength and endurance of weak, nervous, "run-down" men and women in two weeks' time. In fact, the manufacturers guarantee satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money.

HERE is a picture of the very same drop of your blood will look under the microscope when you have plenty of good rich red blood. Blood like this is always rich with iron, but be sure that the iron you take is organic iron and not metallic or mineral iron which people usually take, as metallic iron is from just as it comes from the action of strong acids on iron filings.

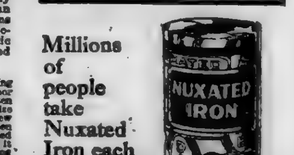
Organic iron is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. It may be had from your druggist under the name of Nuxated Iron. Nuxated Iron represents organic iron in such highly condensed form that one dose of it is estimated to be approximately equivalent (in organic iron content) to eating one-half quart of spinach, one quart of green vegetables or half a dozen apples. It is like taking extract of beef instead of eating pounds of meat.

HERE is another thing the Doctor could show you under his wonderful microscope. It is a thin, delicate nerve of a person who is all run-down. Every human being is born with a certain quantity of "nerve force"—some with more than others. Your body normally makes or generates nerve force only about so fast, and if through over-work, worry, constant nervous strain or other excesses, you use up your nerve force faster than your body makes new nerve force, then your nerve power becomes weakened, and as a consequence, your blood may become thin, pale, and watery, and you become feeble, cross, and irritable. In such a state you may not only suffer terrible tortures from a multitude of alarming symptoms, but in your greatly weakened condition you are an easy prey for the multitude of dangerous germs with which you must come in almost daily contact, and you may therefore easily contract some dangerous or even fatal disease.

Get Back Your Grip on Health!

You can tell which people have a firm grip on health—strong vigorous folks with plenty of iron in their blood who enjoy life every minute. They are the happy mothers of healthy children, the men who dominate in business, the athletes who win in every competition. You say they are lucky, but your doctor will tell you that it is not a matter of luck, it is a matter of rich red blood full of health-giving iron—the kind you get from organic iron—Nuxated Iron—as you can easily prove to yourself in two weeks' time.

Decide today that you will be well and strong. The manufacturers of Nuxated Iron have educated the public to the value of genuine organic iron, hence all the advertising you read about iron containing foods. Remember, however, that there is as much iron in one dose of Nuxated Iron as there is in a quart of vegetables and as much iron in a single bottle of Nuxated Iron as there is in $60 worth of raisins. The same is true of other foods in varying degrees. Your doctor will tell you that the quickest and surest way to get health-giving iron into your blood is to use Nuxated Iron.



Millions of people take Nuxated Iron each year!

MILLIONS OF PEOPLE generally are using Nuxated Iron. It will not injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach. A few doses will often show astonishing results in increasing your strength and energy. It costs about eighteen cents a month to take organic iron like Nuxated Iron, as it does to make metallic iron, though it costs you but little more. If you are not feeling quite up to the mark start taking Nuxated Iron today. Nuxated Iron for the blood and nerves is sold by all druggists.

Palace Theater

Cornered, the photoplay which is to be presented at the Palace theater for three days beginning today, is an intensely dramatic story based on the subtle intricacies of fate. It gives us an insight to life at its highest and lowest — its best and worst.

The story deals with twins who have been separated in childhood and have grown up without knowing of each other's existence. One, heiress to millions, has lived in a world of luxury and refinement. The other has known no other home than the underworld, no other companions than her Chinatown friends. Soon fate begins to complicate the situation. The heiress visits Chinatown on a slumming party, and it is then that the discovery is made by her sister's pals that there is a remarkable resemblance between the two. A plan is formed for one girl to take the place of her wealthy double and it is very conveniently arranged when the heiress is called away from the city. The story thereafter is the revelation of a very clever plot which terminates in the sisters' happy reunion.

The double characterization is portrayed by Marie Prevost. The rest of the cast includes a rare combination of talented players, including John Roche, Rockcliffe Fellowes, Raymond Hatton and Cissy Fitzgerald.

Added attractions, new Telephone Girl story No. 8, with bewitching Alberta Vaughn. Latest Cameo comedy, Pathe review and Palace famous orchestra.

Julianne Johnston, the beautiful and graceful Princess of Douglas Fairbanks' The Thief of Bagdad, attributes her success to her New England ancestry. Her fight for a place in the moving picture sun, was at times a bitter one.

"Whenever things were particularly bad" said Miss Johnston, "I thought of stories grandfather used to tell about his struggle to dig a living out of the rock strewn New England farm, and how each day from sun rise to sunset he would labor. He never lost faith in himself or his work. Then years later when the railroad came through, instead of being glad that he no longer had to work, it was with regret that he retired. Then my father who was only a boy went west and settled near Indianapolis, where I was born."

When David Butler produced Sitting on the World, he saw in Julanne an ideal heroine and paved the way for her succeeding engagements. Better Times and Seeing It Through for Brentwood, and Miss Hobbe for Paramount.

She will be seen at the Palace theater for three days only Sept. 4-5-6.

Palace Theater

Few productions on the Columbia Wheel have been staged with the magnificence and the elaborateness that will mark Barney Gerard's Follies of the Day which will be seen at the Palace theatre Monday matinee and night, Sept 1st. From all corners of the world, raiment of the most brilliant hues and the latest design have been gathered to compete with the excellence of The Follies which Mr. Gerard has produced for the last 11 years. Bozo Snyder, the silent comedian, heads the cast with Elsa May as the leading woman principal. Others to be seen are Sam Green, Harry Seymour, John E. Williams, Bert Mathews, Beth Clark, Marie Tyler, the Avalon Four Scotty Weston, Frank Juban and many others. A host of good looking young women comprise the chorus and have been especially trained in both their singing and dancing numbers which are said to eclipse any of the former efforts made in that direction.

At this particular time this community, as an important banking center, will be especially interested in the declaring by the Brooklyn Savings bank of this place of its semi-annual dividend of 4 1-2 per cent., as announced in the advertising columns of this paper this (Thursday) morning.

The Brooklyn Savings bank has made a remarkable record of growth and accumulated strength since it left Brooklyn Center in 1913, after having been located there from its organization in 1872, and located on the West Side, where it remained until the spring of 1914, and then removed to Danielson proper.

In October, 19913, the bank's deposits amounted to $1,660,761. Today they amount to $4,828,540, a gain of $2,667,689 in 11 years. This gain alone it will be noted is almost exactly a million dollars more than the total deposits of the institution when it left Brooklyn, that it might be in closer touch with more populous centers in this territory.

Today, on the eve of declaring its semi-annual dividend, the bank's resources total $4,776,015 and its surplus and profits account has reached the impressive total of $437,565. Of interest, too, is the fact that this coming semi-annual dividend to depositors will amount to $94,000, a tidy little sum for those who will share in its distribution. It is an increase over the dividend paid last March, when $91,000 was credited to depositors.

Notwithstanding the general depression in business during 1924, the Brooklyn Savings bank has had a very good year and now finds itself in the strongest position in its history. Treasurer Sidney W. Bard said Wednesday that the bank has paid dividends at the rate of 4 1-2 per cent continuously since 1920.

Funeral services for Mrs. Elizabeth E. Buckley were conducted at her home on Reynolds street, Wednesday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, by Rev. Leonard Richards, rector of St. Alban's church. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. The bearers were Judge W. Fenner Woodward, Thomas Jessup, Elmer Munroe and Joseph Hesketon. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Old Home day at Foster Center on Wednesday attracted attendants from many distant points. It was a repetition of the annual assembly of the old home town folks that has been going on for years. It was estimated by observers that from 300 to 400 automobiles were parked near the center of activities. Evidence that those who have left Foster and the descendants of these people have prospered was presented in the luxurious cars and highly expensive ones—in which numbers of them rode from New England cities to the home of their youth. The program of the day was along the usual lines. There was a "shore" dinner, and an excellent one, speaking, music and the happy features of a reunion for old friends and relatives.

Not until the sun was well down toward the horizon did a majority of those who came for the day head their automobiles homeward.

Weather equaling the best that the summer has produced favored the Old Home day crowd, and the day will long rank as one of the pleasantest—from every viewpoint—that has contributed to the making of Foster's annual reunions such happy occasions.

Although continued effort was being made to get in touch with his relatives during Wednesday, no one related to Wesley Hanlon had been found. Mr. Hanlon died at Pineville Sunday while on a visit to that village of this town, where he formerly was employed. In view of the fact that Mr. Hanlon was a member of the Masonic fraternity, members of Moriah lodge were interesting themselves in his case Wednesday.

There are no public bequests of any kind in the will of Timothy E. Hopkins, filed here for probate. The entire estate, one of the most important to be probated in Killingly in several years, is divided equally between Mr. Hopkins' son, Earle C. Hopkins of Worcester, and his daughter, Mrs. John E. Young of Danielson, excepting bequests to each of three grandchildren—sons of Earle C. Hopkins and the daughter of Mrs. Young.

There probably was no more amazed citizen over anything in this town than was Attorney Louis A. Wolsard of Danielson when he picked up a newspaper Wednesday morning and read of the arrest of William Fahy, an ace among the postal in the country, as the master mind in the Rockville mail robbery, in which $2,000 00 was lost in a holdup staged in the city in June. Before becoming a member of the bar Attorney Wolsard was in the postal service at Washington, D. C., and came to know Fahy, then regarded as a marvel of efficiency in his duties as an inspector and of impeccable character.

This Thursday brings the last half holiday of the season for the store forces of Danielson that have been enjoying such results from labor during July and August. Next Monday, as Labor day, will be a holiday, but that will be the end of such lay-offs until another holiday comes late in the fall.

The charge against the accused was filed by Louis Thebault, a rival milkman. Mr. Bessette established that he had purchased the milk bottles in question from Tessier Brothers.

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Louise Charon were held at the Sacred Heart church in Waureran at 9.30 Wednesday morning, Rev. Joseph E. McCarthy of All Hallows' church at Moosup being celebrant of the requiem mass. Burial was in Sacred Heart cemetery. The bearers were Fred Choquette, Alfred Aubin, Henry Bodoin, Louis Bara. Four girls acted as honorary bearers—Misses Cecilia Despathy, Cecilia Chenail, Mary Jane Bodoin and Juliette Brunette. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Wednesday was such a delightful day that it was enjoyed more than ordinarily, coming as it did after [illegible] as that of Tuesday.

Forty-four woodchucks in a season is nothing in the life of a Woodstock dog. Since a dog in Pomfret got into print, by killing 44 chucks this season, a Woodstock resident has belittled what was believed to be about as big a woodchuck story as anyone ever chucked. This Woodstock resident says that a Scotch collie owned by Kenneth Hicks, of North Woodstock, has captured 63 ground hogs this year and a hound owned by Louis Parshley of the same place, has captured a greater number—no figures given, and concludes the North Woodstock man "Taint a good season for woodchucks neither," this because one of the above dogs exterminated 65 last year and the other 104. So far the Woodstock dogs take the diamond studded "pelt."

Eighteen year old Edmund Bugbee, who was killed at Uncasville, Tuesday, when he accidentally came in contact with an electric light wire carrying a high voltage, was born in Putnam, 19 years ago Wednesday. The purpose of the campaign is to examine and weigh babies that are apparently perfectly healthy for the purpose of ascertaining if there are any defects not apparent to any but a physician's eye. If such defects are found steps will be taken to remedy them, not by physicians in attendance at the conference but by the family physician. This defect will be explained to the mother and she will be advised to see the family doctor. There are no charges of any kind for attending the conference.

Deputy Sheriff George F. Holbrook a veteran of the Civil War who carries a wound received at the charge on Fort Wagner, recently passed his 81st birthday. Deputy Holbrook has been confined to his bed for almost five years. Christmas day, 1919, was the last day that he was fully dressed and only once since then has he been out of bed and then only with the assistance of his family, who he sat in a chair for a few minutes.

It was a cold, raw, drizzly day in December 1919 that Deputy Sheriff Holbrook started with a young man who had been sentenced to a penal institution in the other end of the state. Although the deputy was taken with a chill shortly after he started on his journey he insisted on delivering his prisoner. When he returned home that night he was in a serious condition. He went to bed and physicians said that he would not live many weeks.

A constitution that withstood a serious wound from a rebel bullet, a wound little cared for during imprisonment at Bell Island and Libby Prison, those hell holes that ended the lives of thousands of northern soldiers, was able to withstand the ravages of disease, to the astonishment of the doctors. While confined to his bed day after day Deputy Sheriff Holbrook is uncomplaining and cheerful. It has always been his expressed wish that he should remain a deputy sheriff as long as he lives and he is serving under appointment of Sheriff Charles A. Gates of Willimantic, who learned of the deputy's wish. Mr. Holbrook was appointed a deputy sheriff 30 years ago the first day of last June. It is his boast that he never used a club on a prisoner, or drew a revolver and that he never lost a man.

DOES GILPATRIC SUSPECT THAT HE IS TO BE BLIND?

(Special to the Bulletin))

Putnam, August 27—There was no action Wednesday by either committee engaged in restoring banking conditions in Putnam. The Citizens' Committee members have stated their position to Commissioner N. S. Bean and the commissioner has made a personal investigation, questioning members of the committee on various phases of the situation. The commissioner will report the result of his investigation to Washington. Commissioner Bean did state that, in the event that the proposed Citizens' National Bank is granted a charter, it might be possible to begin business within a comparatively short time. The committee is now awaiting the result of Commissioner Bean's report.

At the Day Kimball hospital, Cashier Gilpatric continues to improve. It is said that he has seemed somewhat depressed the past two days, but this may be due to the rain. He is able to take short walks and sit up for a time every day.

There is no question whatever, doctors say, that his sight is hopelessly gone and that he will be totally blind. He has not been told this. For many days he was apt to mention that he had not seen daylight for so many hours. Recently it has been noted that he does not mention his eyes. This leads to a belief that he may have reasoned it out that he will never see again, or at least has grown to perhaps suspect. He has never asked the question. His strong mentality has asserted itself a number of times and due to this, those who visit him wonder if he has not reasoned out his condition himself.

PLAINFIELD

The electric light question in the town of Plainfield and vicinity has been causing a great many to condemn the Danielson and Plainfield Lighting Co. For the past six months, whenever there was a storm, almost without exception, something happened that caused the people of this vicinity to remain in darkness. A short time ago one of the reasons given was that an owl which roosted on the wires caused the lights to go out. Many times during this period people were deprived of their only amusement—the moving pictures—on account of a light storm. The graduating exercises of Plainfield High school were completely spoiled when, in the middle of the program, the lights went out and flashlights had to be substituted to continue the exercises.

The patrons of this concern pay at least one dollar a month, whether that amount of electricity is used or not. No one has heard as yet of any rebate being paid for services not rendered.

This vicinity gets the poorest service of any town or city in the country, without exception. Whether it is the poor material in the wires, the company does not state. They hardly ever give any reason, only that the storm caused the trouble.

Several times during the year the street lights are extinguished. The system being on one circuit, when a lamp happens to burn out or break the result is that all lights go out, and remain that way until the next day. As a local resident puts it, "the best we can hope for is that the wires do not get sunstruck, or we will be without lights for a couple of weeks!"

Westerly friends and acquaintances, beside many from near by cities who made the acquaintance of Horace Mann Pullen, who for 31 years directed the orchestra at The Ocean House, sorrow to learn of his death a few days ago in Bangor, Me. He was an accomplished swimmer, who interested all who visited the bathing beach at Watch Hill. His popularity in Bangor, his home town, was demonstrated on the 25th anniversary of the symphony orchestra, April 7, 1921, when a banquet in honor of the beloved founder and conductor was given at the Bangor House by his associate musicians. His ability as an organizer and leader was praised in the after-dinner speeches.

MYSTIC

As reports of the havoc caused by Tuesday's storm continue to come in, the damage seems to be even greater than appeared at the time. The loss to those with orchards is tremendous, many fruit trees being uprooted and others stripped of their fruit by the force of the wind, one man who raises fruit for market having had at least half of the half-ripe fruit blown from the trees. Considerable damage was caused to trees in the cemetery, one of the large elms, admired for years being one of those which fell. About one hundred and fifty telephone lines were out of commission; and numerous electric light wires and poles were broken, causing curtailment of service in some sections. It has been estimated that there were at least seventy-five trees blown down in various parts of the village. The storm seemed to sweep certain sections with great violence. The float up the river belonging to Miss Jobe's camp, Mystic, was torn from its mooring and washed up on the shore a considerable distance down the river. As is usual in bad storms, a number of fishing boats from Noank were anchored in the river on Tuesday. Owing to the wind being northeast, the tide was not as high as it frequently is during a bad storm but there were white caps on the river and boats securely moored were filled with water. Men in the employ of the highway department of both Groton and Stonington were at work as soon as the storm ceased, trying to clear up, but it will take a long time to get the streets in normal condition, for limbs partly split off from trees will have to be cut after the more important work is attended to. In Quiambaug at the summer home of Mrs. Warren Rathbun, four trees were uprooted in the garden west of the house, also one or two fruit trees and a poplar tree on the hill west of the house; a large silver leaf poplar across the road east of the house was nearly uprooted, the ground around the base of the tree being badly cracked.

Clad only in a nightdress, the body of Mrs. Harry A. Gordan, 52 years old, was found on top of a pile of paving blocks in front of her home in Worcester.

POETRY

MY HOST.

My host of old Katahdin,
He doffs his cap of cloud
To pledge the royal bounty
He gives his heart-avowed:

"Thrice welcome to the mountain,
Thrice welcome to the glen!
By Rod and Pack and Paddle,
The woods are yours again!
Again my winds shall call you,
My trails shall tempt your feet;
I'll pour you laughing water
And berries cool and sweet.
In slack or rocky shelter
Where you may choose to house,
Your couch shall be of brackens,
Your bed of balsam-boughs.
And when the mood shall move you,
To cast the feathered lures,
Katahdin Brook, my darling,
And forty pounds are yours.
There's hemlock-shadowed Abol
And Beaver, deeply massed,
There's Windypitch and Grassy,
There's Lilypad and Lost,
The deer shall stand before you,
The dappled fawns at play,
While overhead shall banter
The squirrel and the jay.
And Peace shall be your comrade
On every bowered quest;
And through my darkening treetops
The stars shall watch your rest."

Above the seaward rivers,
My host is old Katahdin
Among the pines of Maine.

—Arthur Guiterman.

A HUNDRED YEARS TO COME.

Oh, where will be the birds that sing,
A hundred years to come?
The flowers that now in beauty spring,
A hundred years to come?
The rosy lip, the lofty brow,
The heart that beats so gaily now,
Oh, where will be love's beaming eye,
Joy's pleasant smile, and sorrow's sigh
A hundred years to come?

Who'll press for gold this crowded street
A hundred years to come?
Who'll tread yon church with willing feet
A hundred years to come?
Pale, trembling age, and fiery youth,
And childhood with its brow of truth,
The rich and poor, on land and sea,—
Where will the mighty millions be,
A hundred years to come?

We all within our graves shall sleep,
A hundred years to come;
No living soul to us will weep,
A hundred years to come;
But other men our lands shall till,
And others then our streets shall fill,
While other birds shall sing as gay,
As bright the sunshine as today,
A hundred years to come!

STONY BROOK STORAGE.

If we are to judge by the small number who attended, and the lack of opposition, it can be inferred that the citizens of Norwich were practically of one mind concerning the expenditure of $60,000 for the purpose of increasing the storage capacity of Stony Brook reservoir.

Norwich has been told that in spite of the additional supply provided for some years ago, the demand has increased to the point where in a dry year there is danger of a shortage. With more water being used as development takes place it becomes evident that it would be unwise to wait until a shortage was actually upon us before making a move to relieve the situation.

Warned of the conditions and shown a reasonable way of providing for the ponding of a greater volume of water, the logical course was pursued in authorizing the raising of the Stony Brook dam and providing the money required to do the work.

As has been said this does not increase the Stony Brook watershed. It doesn't provide for getting any more water than falls on the present watershed, but it does contemplate the saving of a greater volume of what flows into Stony Brook reservoir for such use as the city has for it.

Should it happen that a dry season should be experienced when the reservoir does not fill there would be no additional means of getting water into the Stony Brook basin through the proposed work. What is aimed at is to provide a place for storing as much as possible of that water which goes to waste when the spillway at Stony Brook overflows. It is possible to take care of more than 100,000,000 gallons of what might easily go to waste during the rainy season, and that can certainly be put to good use by the city.

When provision is made to prevent waste the result is quite as satisfactory and probably obtained at less cost than the acquisition of a new reservoir, which expense may come all too soon.

REGULATE AVIATION.

With all outdoors to operate in it might seem as if there was plenty of room for the aviators, both good and bad, to navigate in without endangering that portion of the human race that is content to remain on the ground. The great trouble is of course that those that go up must come down. Sometimes they are able to govern that return to earth and again they cannot. There are those that land gracefully and safely and there are those that come down in a heap. There are good and bad aviators and there are good and bad machines. A poor aviator with an old and unstable machine is a serious combination. It presages harm for many more than the aviator.

It is for that reason, and because of the many who have lost their lives from the flying machines that were not properly handled, that there is a demand for the regulation of aviation that will check recklessness and bar the inexperienced.

Leading in a project of present conditions and seeking early regulations is Major W. J. Hensley in command of Mitchel field, Long Island, who points out that itinerant aviators are flying when and where they please in machines that may be fit or otherwise and he intimates that there is little cause for surprise over the death of three in a recent Long Island airplane accident.

Much is being said these days about the safety of the highway being decreased because of the great number of old cars in all stages of dilapidation, but how much worse is it for aviators to fly old and discarded airplanes over cities, or points where many people are congregated, and especially if the person at the wheel lacks sufficient experience.

The demand for the regulation of all flying, quite the same as there are restrictions for the army and navy fliers is not unreasonable. If the latter fliers must have two years' experience before being permitted to fly it is only right that the same provision should be required of others. Even under such conditions there will be enough accidents.

FROM THE SEA BOTTOM.

Success has favored the work of salvaging the gold in the sunken Laurentic from the time operations were begun. It is not to be supposed that it was a simple operation for the Laurentic sunk by a German submarine back in 1917 went down in 97 feet of water, but consideration was given to the conditions to be encountered and the divers were provided with instruments for the detection of gold. Gold was known to be in the vessel in large amount and gold was what was sought.

Salvaging work was directed to the Laurentic chiefly because of the valuable metal it was known to have been carrying. The case of getting at it was no greater than in the case of other sunken vessels, barring the possibility that others might have been sunk in deeper water. The various conditions surrounding such work all had to be taken into consideration in making the preparations and safeguarding the lives of those who descended to search the wreck and remove the bullion. But it has been demonstrated, even to the extent of searching the recesses of the wreck where just before it had been planned to abandon the job as completed a million and a quarter in solid gold bars were uncovered, that it is possible to engage in salvage operations on a much bigger scale and at points which hitherto had baffled the divers.

Taking $35,000,000 from the Laurentic has covered a period of six years and it has cost a large sum of money but there has been recovered a sum that could have been obtained in no other way and which had the effort not be made would have been a complete loss.

Not all the ships that were sunk by German submarines, or that went down for other reasons, carried so much bullion. Not all would have furnished sufficient reason for going to the heavy expense involved in the case of the Laurentic, but it has been demonstrated that science has progressed to the point where fortunes at the bottom of the sea need not be regarded as absolutely lost. The success of the Laurentic operations gives encourage to increased along such lines. Davy Jones locker may yet be investigated.

CONVINCED BY CONTACT.

There have been many who have gone from this country to Russia, some intent upon remaining there and others solely for purposes of observation, although in many cases there has been the feeling that the soviet government provided an ideal that was irresistible.

There have been the conducted investigators and those who have seen for themselves, and it is invariably the case that there is quick disillusionment. The latest of the investigators who has had a leaning toward the soviet government and who has seen enough to convince her that the charms of sovietism are not what they are painted is Fannie Hurst. She may not have been as ardent as some of those who rate themselves as reds but she had a leaning in that direction. She was at least favorably inclined. She found much that gratified her in the theory of the soviet government as studied from afar.

She has been to Moscow and Leningrad. She has seen and she has become disgusted. She pictures the frightful condition of the Russians and says that Trotzky is the only one there with an idea. Her fancy for sovietism has soured. She has seen its workings and has become a backslider because of the horrible mess. She refers to sovietism as a half mad monster on its back in death agony and has no desires to return to soviet Russia.

It can be readily recalled that she is not the only one who has been convinced against their will. The reds of the deep as well as those of the light hue, who have gone to Russia find it is no place for individuals who are accustomed to the advantages and freedom of such a country as this. And yet there were those who picked soviet Russia in preference to the United States.

NEW AMBASSADORS.

Two important diplomatic posts were recently made vacant by resignations, that at Tokio where Cyrus E. Woods has been stationed and that at Mexico City where Charles B. Warren has served. Both assignments are of particular importance just at the present time in view of the situation which has developed with Japan because of the immigration act with its exclusion provision and the improved relationship which has been created between this country and Mexico.

Men who have made a particular success of their work in these respective posts felt that they had reached the point where their particular mission had been completed in one case and where family ties required withdrawal from such service in the other.

Because of their conspicuous service it has been no easy matter to fill their places, but men of high qualifications and sound diplomatic sense have been named to fill the vacancies. The fact that they have not been members of the diplomatic corps does not weaken their fitness. They are men of good judgment, of high standing as lawyers and their selection means that they are prepared to capably represent the administration.

Edgar A. Bancroft of Chicago, who will become ambassador to Japan, and James R. Sheffield who will be the next ambassador to Mexico, assume their duties at a time when strong and able representatives are needed. It is believed that such have been obtained and that both the Japanese as well as the Mexican situations will be well handled.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

It distresses many in the summer time if there is only one heat wave about which to complain.

The man on the corner says: Some people are most proficient at nursing when there's a grievance.

Not all those who have been casting glances at Mars recently can be regarded as official observers.

What does a change in seasons mean to the fellow who has been wearing a felt hat all the summer!

It would have been interesting to have learned from Mars how many years ago bobbing was abandoned there.

The wonder is that Mars has been permitted to draw away even a little bit without someone trying to dispose of the franchises for the use of the canals.

No progress can be made in determining the proposition before the city for the purchase of the gas and electric plant unless there is adherence to common facts.

For the past several days August hasn't been providing that warmth which is considered necessary for proper corn production. Someone should get August's ear.

Are you any better prepared for the close of the straw hat season less than three weeks hence, than the youngsters are for the opening of school next Wednesday?

NO CASUALTIES

The man with the large package of grass seed in one hand and a special hoe in the other turned on a glint in his eye when he ran into the gentleman waiting for the train with the spindly rosebushes attired in burlap petticoats.

"Hello," he began. "I see you are trying again to grow things out at your place — too bad the luck you had last year! You never saw anything like the way the grass and shrubbery are booming at Artichoke Manor! We're always a month ahead of the other suburbs because of our height above the sea level and our splendid soil. Or maybe it is the humidity. Anyhow, you can't bet us!"

"I'm glad you are still satisfied with your grounds," the gentleman with the rosebushes said consolingly. "When we drove past there in the winter we saw how all your top soil had washed away down that slope. I suppose that was why the previous owners were so anxious to sell. That's one reason we're so delighted to think we picked out Languishing Heights when we moved out of Chicago. It's piece and level and when you by a lot it stays there and you don't wake up after a spring freshet and see your flower garden swimming down the street.

"I notice many men living at Artichoke Manor walk with quite a pronounced limp and I have just discovered the reason for this deformity. You are so up hill and down that nearly everybody lives on a slope and when you run a lawn mower all summer back and forth across a hill one leg naturally stretches out a bit and in time discrepancy in length becomes permanent. You are getting a touch of it yourself. I noticed it as you came through the depot. What you doing with that hoe?"

"Hoe!!" stammered the man with the article in question, his mind being engaged upon the slanders he had just heard. "I suppose you don't realize Nightrate, that the reason my garden is so successful is due to the continued use of this very article. Of course you are an amateur and when you stick things in the ground you think that is all you have to do, until you walk out and pluck the full-grown cabbages and other fruits off your bursting vines. This is a new kind of hoe that executes six different kinds of attack on the soil with every jab and I'd advise you to get one, although nothing short of a dynamite blast outfit would really be of any service to you with that hard clay soil you have all through your town.

"How anybody could locate at Languishing Heights is beyond me! Before I bought I took samples of the soil and knew what I was doing. And of course our water supply at Artichoke Manor is so bountiful and of such wonderful quality that it helps to keep our suburb the place of luxuriant blossoming that it is. Why, people driving through in the early summer are just about overcome with the flowering beauty on all sides."

"Too bad that garbage reduction plant is so near your best residence section," commiserated the gentleman with the hopeful rosebushes. "Not having any real brainy men at the head of things is a great drawback. Now Languishing Heights is noted as the best governed and most progressive—"

"Yes, they had to step lively out there a year ago and do some tall advertising to keep the Heights from being an absolute failure," agreed the man with the new hoe. "Men will resort to desperate means to avoid losing what they have invested! Why, do you know it isn't possible to rent a house in Artichoke Manor, such is the constant demand from town—"

"Everybody owns his own home in Languishing Heights and that keeps out the riffraff—"

"I grew tomatoes weighing a pound apiece last season—"

"My lilac hedge was said to be the best in the county—"

"They've called the train!" said the man from Artichoke Manor, and both of them ran."

"Aw, heck!" growled the man who had been breathlessly listening in. "They were just going good and I ain't seen a real fight for amonth o' Sundays!"—Exchange.

Grace Earned 15 Cents an Hour

Eugene G. Grace worked his way through college, where he was a baseball star and valedictorian, but had to ask credit for his tuition, and after he was graduated he became a laborer.

Son of an ex-sea captain in little Goshen, N. J., the lad went to the nearby school and helped in his father's store.

Winning a scholarship, he attended Lehigh university, and in his freshman year won a prize in mathematics. He became the best shortstop the college nine had ever had, was made captain, and his team defeated Yale, Princeton and clubs of other large institutions. At 23 he was valedictorian of his class when he was graduated. But he did not have enough funds to complete his courses, and the authorities agreed to defer his tuition payments.

Immediately after leaving college, he went to work for the Bethlehem Steel Co., at Bethlehem, Pa., where he worked 12 hours a day and received 15 cents an hour. He had studied electrical engineering, and was placed in charge of an electric crane. He studied at night, and he practiced strictest economy until he had saved enough to pay his Lehigh tuition.

Made superintendent of yards and transportation, he did so well that President Schwab sent him to Cuba to straighten out the company's mining troubles there. Completing the task in six months, he was placed in charge of constructing the Saucon steel plant. At 30 he was made general manager and elected a director of the Bethlehem Steel Co.

At 37 he was elected president of the company, three years later he was made head of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, and was earning $1,000,000 a year.

Enthusiastic over his work, he went to Europe to carry through an international enterprise that was to be the largest in the world, and was winning success when the world war broke out and killed the project.

Then came five years of driving work without a vacation, making ammunition and supplies for the Allies. In 1917 he was made president of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corp. Today, at 47, he still is at the head of the Bethlehem organization.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

William Hayward, who has announced his candidacy for the republican nomination for governor of New York, has been active in national politics since 1908, when he became secretary of the National Republican Committee and took charge of the Chicago headquarters of the party. Before that he had done much political work in Nebraska, his home being in that state. During the Spanish war he served with Second Nebraska Infantry and rose to the rank of colonel. He established a residence in Ney York in 1910 and since 1921 he has been United States district attorney for the southern district of New York. During the World war he went overseas as commander of New York's old Fifteenth Regiment of colored troopers and received the medal of the French Legion of Honor for valor and intrepid leadership in holding the road to Paris. In his student days at the University of Nebraska Col. Hayward was a widely known football and baseball player.

TAKING TIME WITH A CHILD
Mary S. Stover

A dear woman of my acquaintance spent her childhood amid pioneer conditions in the Canadian bush. As the family sons were all daughters it soon became her task to bring home the cows pastured fully a mile away.

One afternoon, as she was running down the brush bordered lane which was the last of her route, the child saw what appeared to be a very strange animal with downbent head and terrifying horns. She stopped and watched from a distance, but it remained in the same menacing attidude at the side of the lane.

If there had been some other way to reach the cows and drive them home, Laura would have gone on, but she felt that no little girl ought to get any nearer to that peculiar creature. She ran in panic to the place where her father was at work.

He assured her that there were no dangerous animals about and said she must have taken fright at one of the steady old cows. Laura couldn't believed this, she was certain it was some monster very different from anything with which she had had to do, but of course it might have gone away, so she dutifully started back.

The creature had not left the lane, and the early dusk made it appear even more formidable than before. Back she ran in tears. This time the father left his work, took the child by the hand and, talking calmly, led over the whole way again, so that she could see with her own eyes how harmless was whatever had frightened her.

It proved to be just a dead tree that the child had daily passed in unconcern till something in the atmosphere of this afternoon, or the angle from which she first caught sight of the gaunt old ruin, stimulated the young imagination to transform it into a frightful beast.

In her womanhood, Laura, cherished this experience as one of the most precious memories of her father. He was a somewhat stern man, preoccupied with his many tasks, exacting, if judged by modern standards, and she knew what it meant for a farmer to leave his work and patiently walk a mile beside a frightened child.

Yet for him to have gone after those cows by himself would not have meant nearly as much. A man who did that would be likely to say: "You were scared of just an old tree!" Such a statement, no matter how kindly given, would have bruised the child's spirit. There is doubt if it could have fully convinced her.

Taking time with a child in need is a far more valuable service than investments of time, patience and effort merely given for him. What skill is required to impress the ordinary child with the importance of anything that is merely done for him! Whereas the kindly service undertaken with him to meet a felt need of his wins both immediate and lasting appreciation. Wise, therefore, is the parent who is not so cumbered with much serving of a material sort as to fail the boy or girl in acts of comradely helpfulness.

Stories That Recall Others

Forever.

A business woman in the thirties celebrated her birthday recently. One of her men friends, without realising what he did, asked her how old she was. "Twenty-six," she smilingly returned.

"Really?" he was astonished.

"Yes, twenty-six," she returned placidly. "Twenty-six years ago I celebrated my 20th birthday for the first time, I had such a happy day I said, 'I shall be 26 forever.'"

The friend was left wondering as to just how long that famous birthday had been left behind.

"Terrible as an army with banners," said the old timer—probably after watching a political parade from the grand stand.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

The Clever Hummingbirds

"Hello, little rabbit," twittered Mrs. Hummingbird, lighting on a hollyhock as the bunny boy sat on the back stoop whittling a whistle. "Have you seen a spider web anywhere?"

"Just back of the little red barn," answered the bunny boy. "Old Lady Spider sits in it all day long waiting for flies."

"I must get some spider-web," went on Mrs. Hummingbird, looking anxiously about. "But I don't want to spoil Old Lady Spider's house."

"Hello, little rabbit," said Mrs. Hummingbird.

"There's an old web in the barn, up high in the corner," answered the little rabbit. "I saw it this morning." and up he jumped to hop across the grass.

"Just the thing," chuckled Mrs. Hummingbird, tearing off a piece. "Thank you, bunny boy," and away she flew toward the Shady Forest.

"What is she going to do with it," the little rabbit asked himself, and being a curious bunny boy, away he went after her, clipperty clip, lipperty lip, until pretty soon, not so very far, he reached a big tree, on one of the limbs of which Mrs. Hummingbird was busily at work.

"I just couldn't wait to see what you were going to do with that bit of spider web," panted the little rabbit, looking up at her.

"I don't believe you can tell even now," answered the tiny lady bird, with a smile, as she hovered about what to the little rabbit seemed a knot or bump on the limb.

"Please explain," begged the curious little bunny.

"I'm covering my nest with lichen," she answered.

"What!" exclaimed the astonished little rabbit.

"Yes, indeedy," replied the tiny lady bird. "I use the spider web to make the bits of lichen stick to the nest. When I've finished you would think it had just grown on the limb. These bits of lichen, (which is a kind of tree-moss, you know, little reader) make my nest seem a part of the tree," and Mrs. Hummingbird chuckled as she kept busily on at work.

"Oh, my but you are clever," sighed the bunny boy.

"We hummingbirds mush be careful" she answered. "Chatterbox, the red squirrel, is ever on the lookout for birds' eggs. But he won't find mine. No indeedy."

Pretty soon she hopped out a little way on the limb to admire her handiwork.

"I declare, I don't know what I'd do without the spider web," she admitted. "It holds the bits of lichen so well. Just a little piece will hold a patch of lichen."

"You stick it on just the way Lady Postmistress Grasshopper puts on a stamp," laughed the bunny boy, and away he hopped to tell Lady Love, his pretty bunny mother, all about it. But the lady rabbit wasn't at home when he reached the back porch. She had gone over to visit Cousin Cottontail for the afternoon, so you must wait, dear little reader, for the next story to hear what happened after that.

NATIONAL GUARD REACHES EUSTIS THREE HOURS LATE

Battery B and First Battalion Headquarters and Combat Train, 102d artillery, C. N. G., arrived at Camp Eustis, Va., Sunday morning three hours late, according to word received Wednesday by The Bulletin from one of the Combat Train boys.

We have arrived, says the letter, three hours late, due to an unexpected pleasure "seeing Baltimore at midnight without moonshine."

This was the result of a hot box on one of the cars.

When we arrived at Baltimore and everyone had "piped down" for the night, came the sergeant's whistle. "All up; roll your packs; transfer over to those box cars. The war has just begun." What those boys did say!

When camp was finally reached they became so "hat up" to sling packs that they threw some of their equipment clear out of the windows and had to ride back miles to get it.

After locating quarters and getting assignments the usual army jokes prevailed and 15 men slept on cots with no mattresses and 39 missed their pillows.

Today (Monday) they are all trying to locate a dry spot in the barracks. All drills were off for the afternoon, as the rain was too much. The initiating started at dusk tonight with a most efficient degree team. Standing in a raging brooks about two feet deep in water and about four feet below the road, they sang one verse of Oh! Look What God Gave Us! The candidates were then fondly baptized in murky water, a rapidly applied "mud pack" covering them.

All the water used for drinking purposes here must first be boiled and chlorinated.

Corp Doherty has turned to peddling milk for that reason and can be seen just outside the first sergeant's office.

The boys haven't forgotten mothers, sisters and friends at home and are beginning to call out "Hey, sergeant, any mail in yet?"

The feature of the evening was a mock marriage, the principal parts being taken as follows: Miss Elizabeth Coughlin, groom; Miss Anna Brown, bride; Misses Nancy Partridge and Hattie Murray, flower girls; Miss Grace Risley, minister. Besides this feature vocal and instrumental selections were given by the guests.

The party was arranged by the Misses Emma Rosiene and Grace Risley who were assisted by Mrs. Lewis Hull and Mrs. Louis Waters.

An official of the Eastern Connecticut Power Co. stated Wednesday evening that the high tension wire which killed Edmund Bugbee of Montville, Tuesday, was not one of their wires, but a Connecticut Power Company wire.

FINAL EXHIBITION BY PLAYGROUNDS TONIGHT

This (Thursday) evening at 6.30 p. m. (d. s. t.) weather permitting, the Norwich Playgrounds will hold their final exhibition on the Academy campus, followed by a band concert on Chelsea parade. The programme has been arranged without rehearsal for the purpose of showing the dramatic ability of the children of the playgrounds and also a few of the daily activities, taken from the programme at the play centers. After a few remarks by Mayor Mile R. Waters, the children will stage a "Pageant of Patriots," each playground presenting an episode. Following the pageant, organized play, physical training and mass athletics will be demonstrated. Swahn's band will entertain the public on Chelsea parade immediately after the exhibition.

The "Pageant of Patriots" bringing into action the children of all the playgrounds is the central feature of the exhibition, opening with a well-spoken prologue by Miss Mary Dodd. The first episode, "Princess Pocahontas" presents an Indian encampment in the open glade busy with Indian braves, maidens, squaws, and children. Princess Pocahontas, Chief Powhatan and Captain John Smith, the principal figures make the episode very interesting and picturesque.

Last, but not least, the East Side will present "Abraham Lincoln" back in pioneer days. The scene is a clearing beyond the cabin of Lincoln's father, Little Creek, Indiana, in 1819.

Field hockey, dodge ball, straddle ball, group games, boxing and volley ball follow the "Pageant of Patriots."

Following is the programme complete for the evening:

Reveille, Mayor Mile R. Waters; dramatics, Pageant of Patriots, prologue, Miss Mary Dodd; Princess Pocahontas, Lake Street; Pilgrim Interlude, Greeneville; Ferry Farm, Hobart Avenue; George Washington's Fortune, Laurel Hill; Daniel Boone, Patriot, West Side, Abraham Lincoln, East Side.

The police believe that he will turn up in Springfield, his former home.

He is about 5 feet 6 inches in height, is of slim build and has a long thin face. OVER 1,500 PEOPLE AT ST. PATRICK'S LAWN FETE

St. Patrick's parish lawn fete had a crowd estimated at over 1,500 on its opening night, Wednesday, and with promise of an even larger crowd this (Thursday) evening indications are that the event will be highly successful. The lawn fete was scheduled to open Tuesday evening, but owing to the severe rain and wind storm that day it was postponed until Wednesday night.

The Knights of Columbus grounds, where the event is being held, was brightly lighted with strings of electric bulbs and three floodlights strung over the center and the dozen or more booths are attractively decorated, this work being in charge of a committee headed by John P. Corcoran. All the booths received a very liberal patronage, and those in charge put in a very busy evening taking care of the many wants of the patrons.

During the evening the Hartford K. of C. minstrels entertained the large crowd with a splendid program. Their opening number was a novelty rendition of Why Did I Kiss That Girl? Those taking part in the program were Tom Kelly, K. of C. entertainer, who sang Going South; Miss Mary Ducey, well known over the state as a soloist, song Old Irish Mother of Mine, and Jack Barry, one of Hartford's leading entertainers, sang She's Everybody's Sweetheart. Dominic Massaro, a sweet voiced tenor, was heard in a solo, O Sole Mio, and was followed by Miss Mabel Barnes, a well known Hartford vocalist, who sang It Had To Be You. Philip J. Walsh put A Smile Will Go a Long, Long Way across in good style. The well balanced program closed with an ensemble number, That Old Gang of Mine. At the piano were Miss Betty Roy and Timothy Cronin.

Later in the evening dancing was enjoyed in the K. of C. home, a local orchestra of five pieces furnishing the program. Those in the orchestra were Timothy Cronin, piano; Robert Kirkup, banjo; Herman Houston, drums; Leonard Suntheimer, saxophone, and Frank Zukowski, violin.

APPLE CROP DAMAGED BY TUESDAY'S STORM

Housewives can save money by preserving apples, said County Agent Walter T. Clark of the New London county farm bureau Wednesday. The storm of Tuesday resulted in as much damage as if did good to the farmers of this locality, he said. Wednesday Mr. Clark visited a number of orchards and found that about one-half the apple crop had been blown off. This means that there will be a large quantity of apples on the market during the next week.

This will of course mean that apples will be cheaper than they have been. If the housewives will take advantage of this it will materially help everyone concerned. The remaining crop on the trees is about half, and apples will sell much higher this fall than they would have. These windfall apples can be converted into applesauce and used this winter. The sauce will be as good as from new apples, and these windfalls are just right for that purpose.

THE HOLY NAME SOCIETY INVITED TO WASHINGTON

The president of the Holy Name Society of St. Patrick's parish, Letter Carrier Michael J. Murphy, has received from Washington details of the great national demonstration of the Holy Name members, to be held in Washington, Sept. 18-21, in commemoration of the 650th anniversary of the founding of the organization by Pope Gregory X, Sept. 20th, 1274.

Arrangements are being made for an assemblage of fully 100,000 men, representing over 6,500 branches throughout the nation. President Calvin Coolidge is to review the procession and welcome the visitors, who will take along 150 bands of music. The exercises of the convention will be held at the Catholic University of America, of which Rt. Rev. Thomas J. Shahan, formerly of Norwich is rector.

Incidentally, the visitors will attend the ceremonies at the unveiling of the costly memorial to the nuns of the battlefield, being erected at Washington by the Ladies Auxiliary to the A. O. H. There will be a patriotic pilgramage to the home and tomb of George Washington at Mt. Vernon, and the exercises of the convention will conclude with a final act of patriotism and religion at the foot of the Washington Monument, Sunday, Sept. 21st.

On that date, one Washington paper is to be a special Holy Name edition in compliment to the 100,000 or more visitors. The society stands, not alone for veneration of the Holy Name of Jesus, but for clean speech in general—and naturally for clean lives.

MYSTIC MILKMEN JUMPED BEFORE TRAIN STRUCK CAR

The Bulletin's Mystic correspondent writes: Two men named Weglarz, who recently purchased the Philetus A. Brown farm at Mystic and have been engaged in selling milk in the village, had a narrow escape at the railroad station Tuesday morning about eleven o'clock when their Dodge car was struck by one of the through express. The men started to drive over the track at the crossing east of the station, to deliver milk to a customer when the express from the east bore down upon them and they jumped just in time to escape with their lives. The train struck the machine and threw it up into the air as if it had been a toy balloon, scattering milk, bottles and wast was left of the machine when it again touched the ground in all directions, the ground on the south side of the track being covered with the wreck for a distance of fifty feet. About all that was left of the car was the motor. The men lost about thirty quarts of milk, a dozen or so cases for holding bottles and a quantity of bottles.

SEEK RELATIONS OF FORMER NORWICH MAN

A letter has been received by Chief of Police George Linton from Chief Inspector Walter Almond of the New Bedford police department asking for information regarding relatives of Frank P. McCarty who died suddenly in New Bedford August 20th. The letter says:

Frank P. McCarty, of 1398 Acushnet avenue, died very suddenly in a restaurant in this city on Aug. 20, 1924.

Up to the present time, we have been unable to locate any of this man's relatives. We learned through the New Bedford Institution for Savings that this man was born in Norwich, Conn., on May 15, 1865. His father's name was Thomas and his mother's maiden name was Mary Eagan.

Among this man's belongings was found a letter he had written apparently to a nephew, but it was not addressed. He was inquiring for the address of his brother John's children, Lawrence, Johnny and Katie McCarty.

Any information that you could give us concerning this man or any of his relatives, you may be able to locate, will be appreciated.

WEDDING.

Cox-Martin.

The wedding of Miss Marjorie Hollister Martin, of Hebron, and Paul William Cox, of Boston, took place Tuesday noon at St. Peter's Episcopal church at Hebron. Rev. Theodore D. Martin, rector of the parish, and father of the bride, performed the ceremony. Miss Marian Will of Merkimer, N. Y., cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. Edward G. Cox of Boston, the groom's brother, was best man. The ushers were Alan Dwight Will, and John G. Will of Herkimer, N. Y., cousins of the bride. The bride entered the church walking with her brother, Prof. Horace D. Martin, of the state normal school of Louisiana. His three-year-old son, Dwight, acted as flower boy. Prof. Austin Warren of the University of Minnesota was at the organ.

The bride's dress was of white crepe de chine. She wore her mother's wedding veil. The dress of the maid of honor was coffee colored voile. The bride carried a bouquet of white roses, the maid of honor carrying yellow roses.

Mrs. Cox, who has been in hospital library work since the war, is at present librarian of U. S. Veterans' hospital No. 44, West Roxbury, Mass. Mr. Cox is an overseas man and saw much active service in the war, having been wounded.

The church was artistically decorated with hydrangeas and golden glow.

At the close of the ceremony the bridal party, in accordance with a French custom, held an informal reception at the door of the church. Afterwards there was a quiet gathering at the rectory which was attended only by members of the two families. A Willimantic caterer served the wedding luncheon.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Irving G. Will of Herkimer, N. Y., Prof. and Mrs. H. D. Martin, of Natchitoches, La., and Mrs. F. W. Lydon, of Boston, who is aunt of the groom.

TONY WEST PITCHES RIVERVIEW TO VICTORY OVER BASE IN DECIDING GAME

With Tony West, property of the Baltimore Orials, in the box the Riverview Club took the third and deciding game of the series with the Submarine Base winning, 9 to 2, Wednesday afternoon at the State Hospital. Tony was in fine form and did not exert himself to win although he fanned 11 men and allowed but six hits. He should have been credited with a shut out victory but one costly error by Joe Belair in the third inning that let 2 runs, the Base's only tally.

The Base played a loose brand of ball making seven errors, five in the fourth inning. These accounted for six of Riverview's nine runs. Lefty Harrell starting the game pitched fairly good ball for five and two thirds innings and then was pulled out in favor of Metzka who was wild and ineffective, the Riverview scoring 2 runs off his delivery.

Tony West, who arrived from Frederick, Md., Tuesday night to pitch yesterday's game, made his debut of 1924 on the Riverview diamond by fanning the first three men that faced him. The hospital fared little betted in their first round against Harrell and it looked like a pitcher's battle. West in the second frame continued his good pitching but Riverview had better luck with Harrell.

Old Chip Dugas, grand old man of baseball, opened the second inning with a two-base blow to right center scored when Honeycutt mused up a thrown ball at first West went to second when Dugas scored and registered when Belair dropped a Texas leaguer in right.

The Base's first and only tallies of game came in the first half of the third when Anctil, the first man up singled to right. Honeycutt fanned and House laced one out to right field, Anctil pulling up at third. Haynes hit Eddie Burns at second and Eddie made a beautiful peg to the plate to get Anctil but Belair mussed up the play and the ball rolled to the grandstand Anctil scoring and House following him over the plate. This ended the scoring and only two men after that reached second.

The fourth inning was a wild and woolly exhibition of baseball on the part of the Gobs. Five errors were made in this inning and two runs scored without the assistance of a hit.

The worst error of the five was made by his Majesty, Lefty Harrell and it made the Pride of the Good Ship Concrete look ridculous. Lefty, who is always bubbling over with confidence, juggled one of those tantalizing pop flies and the runner was safe. This seemed to have a bad effect on the rest of the team and errors became a common occurance. Orsi offended twice on easy hit balls and the first baseman contributed one while the right fielder threw in another. Compton in right, however, could be excused for his misplay as it came after a catch which robbed Laffey of an all-spectacular one-handed shoe-string most sure hit. Compton threw wild to double West off first.

The sixth inning saw Harrell's retirement from the box. After two were out Artie Coullard waved his war club at one of Harrell's fast ones and smacked the ball over the centerfielder's head into the old Cabbage patch, Artie circling the bases. Red Charron followed Coullard with a sharp single to center and Harry Mills sent the redhead scurrying across the plate with a crashing two bagger to centerfield. The Big Chief, Hawes by name, persuaded Harrell that this was the opportune time for him to hand in his resignation and retire gracefully to first base, a position which Harrell is well qualified to fill. Metzka was rushed to the mound but was as trifle wild. He finished out the inning and came through the seventh all right. In the eighth he developed another wild streak and passed the first two men and then an error by LaBlanc let in a run and an infield out let in the last run of the game.

Eddie Burns was the fielding fiend of the Riverview tea mand his work around the second sack was beautiful to behold. Eddie covers more ground than a circus tent and is as sweet a little keystone sacker as has been seen in these parts in a long day. There were no flies roosting on Chip Dugas either for he contributed his usual spectacular one-hand stop at a critical time. The outfield boys had little to do Harry Noel getting the only outfield put out of the game. Score:

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS! INSIST ON BLEACHODENT

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch

There is a runner on first base. The batter has three balls and two strikes. On the next pitched ball, he hits to the third baseman.

Where should third baseman play the ball?

When a batter is in this position, he will either walk or hit at the ball if it is caught. That means that the runner on first will have a running start and if the ball is hit to the third baseman, he will have to throw to first base. There is only one possible chance to catch the runner going from first to second on a hit of this kind, that comes when the ball is hit from plate right to the third baseman.

Boston, Aug. 27.—Detroit and Boston divided a double header today, the Tigers winning the first contest, 5 to 4, and Boston the second, 6 to 3. Hal Chase has received several new entries for the annual County Track meet which is held in connection with the New London County Fair. Two entries of especial interest are those of Artie Couillard and Jimmy Murphy in the professional 100 yard dash. These two boys ran a great race last year and a good race is expected this time. The Riverview club has entered a team in the 1-2 mile relay event. Three of the members of the team will be Couillard, Burns and Laffey. Leo Vincent of Plainfield is entered in the 440 yard event. Mr. Chase would like to get a fast tug-o-war team to compete against the Ashland champions.

MILLER SETS MINOR LEAGUE RECORD FOR HITS

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 27.—Eddie Miller, Bison second baseman, established today what is believed to be a world's record for hitting in a class "AA" professional baseball series, when he made seven hits in a like number of times at bat in today's double header with Baltimore, bringing his total number of safe hits in the three game series to eleven in twelve tries of which were consecutive.

During the present series, Miller hasn't failed to make an error in the field, handling twenty chances.

STRIBLING AND BERLENBACH FIGHT SIX FAST ROUNDS TO A DRAW

New York, Aug. 27—(By the A. P.)—W. L. (Young) Stribling, Georgia light heavyweight, and Paul Berlenbach, slugging New Yorker, fought to a draw tonight in a slashing battle between two of the ring's youngest and latest fistic sensations.

A shade of ringside newspaper opinion apparently favored Stribling, but there was a little outburst of approval when the judges declared the match a draw after six rounds of speedy fighting before a crowd of approximately 25,000 in the New York Velodrome, Tex Rickard's Harlem arena.

Berlenbach, on the other hand, carried the fight to Stribling in the last three rounds and rocked the Georgian with a series of rights and lefts to the head in the fourth round that kept a stream of blood flowing from the southerner's nose. Stribling was guilty of holding repeatedly. He was cautioned several times by the referee and once was booed by the crowd, for pounding Berlenbach while the latter's back was turned.

Stribling had an effective defense for Berlenbach's famous knockout punch, a blow that has floored more than two score of his opponents for the final count. Except in the fourth and fifth rounds, when Berlenbach was at his best, Stribling's elusive style of battle had the New Yorker baffled.

The Georgian easily piled up a lead in the first three rounds on his speed alone, while he stuck his long left into Berlenbach's face.

At close range, Berlenbach landed heavily about Stribling's ribs and toward the end of the third round a glancing left started the blood from Stribling's nose. Berlenbach was the aggressor from the fourth on, but he found Stribling a difficult target. Once he forced the southerner against the ropes after they had exchanged stiff wallops to the head and sent his right and left crashing into the Georgian's chin, but Stribling quickly ducked out of further danger.

The fight, most critics agreed, was too short a test of the fighting abilities of either boxer to be conclusive. It was made so, however because of the New York law which prevents boxers under 21 from engaging in more than six round encounters. Stribling is only 19.

They were closely matched physically, both weighing 167 1-2.

ROUND ONE

ROUND THREE

They met in the center of the ring in a furious exchange of blows, wrestled to the ropes where Berlenbach almost fell out of the ring when one of his rights missed its mark.

ROUND FIVE

They both missed rights, Stribling tying up Berlenbach in the clinches. Berlenbach chased Stribling about the ring finally landing his right weakly to his rival's jaw. Stribling landed twice with his left jab. Both landed heavy rights to the body. They were jockeying as the bell ended the round.

ROUND SIX

TILDEN DISPOSES OF ALONSO IN FOUR SETS

Forest Hills, N. Y., August 27.—(By the Associated Press)—William T. Tilden began the defense of his national tennis crown today by vanquishing his spectacular Spanish rival, Manuel Alonso, but the series of startling upsets that has struck the ranks of his challengers since the tournament opened continued to mark the downfall of favorites in the most thrilling battle in history for the American singles laurels.

While the tall Philadelphian, four times champion, put his colorful Spanish opponent to rout in four sets, 4-3, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4, two of his other rivals—Pat O'Hara Wood, brilliant Australian veteran, and Harvey Snodgrass, Los Angeles, star—were eliminated while two other "seeded" players—Howard Kinsey, of San Francisco, and Jean Borotra, French holder of the Wimbledon crown— escaped defeat by the narrowest of margins in the most thrilling play of the afternoon.

Wood's downfall at the hands of Kirk Reid, of Cleveland, former Cornell crack, in five sets 2-6, 8-0, 7-5, 4-6, 11-9, was the biggest reversal of the day, closely rivalling as a sensation the elimination on Monday of R. Norris Williams, former champion, by George Lott, Chicago schoolboy star.

Snodgrass, No. 9 in the National ranking, went down before the steady play of Watson Washburn, New York veteran, who added the second "first ten" scalp to his belt when he disposed of the Californian by scores of 2-6, 6-4, 6-1, 6-2.

Scarcely less sensational than these were the close calls experienced by Borotra and Kinsey. The French star ace of his country's Davis cup forces, met an unexpected tatar in E. W. Feibleman, of New York, former Harvard student, and appeared headed for defeat because of his erratic play when his young rival wilted in the fifth set. Borotra pulled out the match by scores of 6-3, 6-8, 6-3, 3-6, 7-5.

Kinsey likewise snatched victory from defeat when he staged a sudden rally in the fourth set against Dr. George King, of New York who was within two points of triumph. The Californian, joint holder of the national doubles crown with his brother Robert, who was put out by Washburn on Monday, swept King back to square the match and then raced through the final set to win by scores of 1-6, 6-4, 7-5, 6-3, 6-3.

Besides the defeat of Wood, two of his remaining three Australian Davis cup teammates, R. E. Schlesinger and F. E. Kalms, were eliminated, while the defeats of Jacques Brugnon and Alain Gerbault, removed half of France's representation of the tournament.

John Hennessy of Indianapolis, eliminated two other foriegn threats when he disposed of Takeichi Harada, Japanese national champion, in a five-set battle, and then conquered Paul Kong, of China's Davis cup team, in straight sets.

Willard Crocker of Canada, the remaining invader to go out was a victim of George Lott, Chicago holder of the National Junior championship, who won in straight sets with the same brilliant brand of tennis that gave him victory over Williams.

Lott was among eight who advanced to the fourth round of the title struggle as a result of six stenuous hours of battling today before a crowd of nearly 6,000 in the big West Side stadium.

Altogether, twenty four survivors emerged from the fray. The remaining sixteen gaining third round bracket.

Tilden's most formidable rivals, on the basis of tournament play so far, appeared to be the veteran Californian, William M. Johnston, Vincent Richards, youthful Olympic champion, and Gerald Patterson, hard-driving Australian Davis cup captain.

Johnston displayed all the old-time power of his famous forehand drive today in vanquishing Schlesinger, Australian, while Patterson, after encountering some difficulty and losing a set to Paul Martin of New York, gained his second

NEW LONDON HAS PLANS IN SHAPE FOR DEFENSE DAY OBSERVANCE

New London, Aug. 27.—

Defense Day will be observed in New London Sept. 12th for arrangements are already under way for the celebration. Brigadier-General Morris B. Payne is in charge of the arrangements, which include a street parade in which the personnel of the submarine base, the military unit at Fort Wright, Fishers Island and local units of the National Guard and civic organizations will participate.

John Rinardi, 17, on parole from the State Reform School at Meriden, was found beastly drunk in an alleyway, off Pearl street last night by Motorcycle Officer William Babcock and Patrolman Clarence Martin. The youth was unconscious and when conveyed to the police station it developed that he had been drinking a poor brand of hooch. When Rinardi could not be revived Dr. Charles Kaufman was summoned and prescribed for him. This morning Rinardi returned to consciousness and several hours later he was given into the custody of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield. Rinardi had been about the city during the early evening and after procuring numerous drinks of the home-made liquor he wandered to Pearl street where he staggered into the alleyway and collapsed. Motorcycle Officer Babcock's attention was called to the condition of Rinardi and he was taken to the police station.

Gene Maynard sprung a new defense in a case wherein the operating of an automobile while under the influence of liquor was alleged when he was in the police court this morning. He declared that "medicine" he was using to cure him of neuritis was the odor that police officers concluded was the smell of whiskey or other intoxicating liquor. Maynard was positive that he did not have a drink Monday, the day he was apprehended because he still had in mind the experience four months ago when he was fined in Waterford for the offense he was charged with in court today. He became emphatic when he announced that he would recommend the remedy he was using to anyone afflicted with neuritis. Then it developed that the remedy was composed of 55 per cent. alcohol. Officers were called to Howard street Monday where a man was reported to be corkscrewing along the highway in a motor truck. Officer Murphy, Martin and Philopena found Maynard to be the driver complained of. Each of the policemen expressed the opinion that Maynard was under the influence of liquor. Judge Crandall, who was on the bench today gave Maynard little leniency, but fined him $100 though, as Maynard has not been able to settle the fine and costs that were given to him in Waterford, time was allowed for him to pay the New London fine.

John A. Bliven, who a few days ago was accused of having run over and killed a dog on Ocean avenue, was in court, but was not prosecuted, having made an arrangement with the owner of the dog to compensate her. Mr. Bliven declared that he did not realize that he had hit any dog until some time after the accident and then when he was told of the fact by others.

Elmer A. Hill of Norwich was charged with operating an automobile without having proper registration for the car. Hill had made a change in his machines and changing the number plates on the cars had come to New London to get the registration needed. He was picked up by an argus-eyed officer and was ordered to court. The offense was deemed so excusable that the complaint was nolled.

The yellow cabs rolled into their first accident here yesterday and this morning Walter Pulaski, the driver of the cab was fined $25 in court, for recklessness. He was conveying a passenger north on Bank street while a submarine base truck was at the curbing receiving a lot of bread. Johnson, driver of the truck started to move out from the sidewalk after Israel Northam, a steward at the base, waved a signal of all clear to Johnson. The latter moved to come into the travelled section of the street, but as he did so the yellow cab with Pulaski at the wheel crashed into him, the impact sending the yellow car against a Hudson sedan owned by M. L. O'Connell and operated by John Glynn. The latter was hurled against the seat of the Hudson and a rear wheel of the sedan went to smash. A second truck was mixed in the mess but was not damaged. Pulaski declared that his foot was wet and that it slipped from the emergency brake to the accelerator, thus occasioning the disaster. Mr. O'Connell testified that Pulaski was watching a car coming out of Pearl street and did not see the movement of the navy truck.

The New London police are continuing their search for a young girl, who ran away from her home in Pawcatuck a week ago; it is believed by the mother of the girl that the latter is in this city. The mother came to New London this afternoon and visited the police station where she let it be known that her daughter had a girl friend on Shaw street and it was possible that the missing girl would go there to visit.

Mrs. Elizabeth DeVault, proprietress of the Fournier house, Bank street, complained to the police this forenoon that she had been robbed of wearing apparel. Sergeant John Cavanaugh's investigation revealed that Mrs. DeVault had loaned an acquaintance a coat and blouse yesterday and that the young woman had not returned them. Neither could she be located. It was known that the girl had two prospective positions, but inquiry at those places disclosed that she had not been at either to go to work.

Lillian Lewis, 3, daughter of County Detective William Lewis, Jefferson avenue, who was operated upon recently at a local private hospital for blood poisoning, is getting along favorably, although not yet out of danger.

Louis Sharaf of Fairs Harbour place is in Boston for a day or two on business.

A superintendent of the electric light and water works of Groton borough will probably be appointed within the next few days, a vacancy existing because of the recent death of Edward R. Gorman.

Miss Eleanor Gilmartin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Gilmartin, of Williams street, is at Grant's Manor, Staten Island, where she will be the guest for several days of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Berrigo, former residents of New London.

Fred J. Butler, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Butler and Miss Althea L. Chapman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Chapman, all of Waterford, were married Saturday evening at the home of the bride's parents, by Rev. George H. Strouse, pastor of the First Baptist church, Waterford. Fred Carlough was best man and Miss Irene Chapman, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. Following a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Butler will reside on Huntington street, this city.

The storm of yesterday caused considerable damage to fruit crops in Waterford. The terrific gale blew off apples, pears and peaches.

Betty Quinn, of 35 West Coit street, Christian Orlando, Waterford; Charles Hablin, 8 Connecticut avenue; John Elliott, Waterford; Wesley Clark, Mystic; Paul Rowley, Waterford, and Lois Huxford, 207 Ocean avenue, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

The automobile owned and operated, by Rev. William C. Fitzsimons, pastor of St. Joseph's church, was in collision with a Connecticut company trolley car, corner of Montauk avenue and Bank street, late yesterday afternoon. The automobile was damaged.

Mr. and Mrs. William C. Kaneen are spending a few days at Atlantic City.

Frederick Gay, of Lynn, Mass., and Walter Gay of Sangus, Mass., are visiting their brother, J. Warren Gay at his cottage on Niantic river.

Mrs. Homer L. Marvin, of Montauk avenue, is at a sanatorium in St. Albans, Vt., where she will remain indefinitely. Mrs. Marvin has been ill for some time.

Miss Angie E. Ham has returned to her home in Portland, Me., having visited her brother, Francis H. Ham, of Thames View, Waterford.

An automobile owned and operated by John Miller, 892 Bank street, was in collision with a commercial truck owned by the American Railway Express company on Bank street this morning. Both machines were damaged slightly.

The petition of merchants doing business on Sparyard street and their neighbors on Bank street, for the removal of the Niagara Engine company house and the widening of Sparvard street, has aroused great interest among the members of the Niagara and the Allen Hook and Ladder companies, the understanding of the situation being that the movement means the establishment of a paid fire department here. Members of the Niagara company assert that Sparvard street originally included a portion of the land now occupied by the Chappell Coal company office building. The statement is made that the building encroaches on the street some 13 feet. The Niagara house was constructed south of Sparyard street and is not in what was the highway to which [illegible] has attached. Members of both the fire department companies are positive in the assertion that no two volunteer fire companies could ever agree under the same roof, as their interests would be in conflict in many ways. They point out that each company would have its own ideas about things and that neither would be satisfied with the conduct of a house that was under the joint control of two companies. It is prophesied that the next move will be for the abolition of either the Nameaug or the Kohomoc house and the housing of those companies under one roof. Or perhaps the abolition of one of these companies will be sought. So the members of the fire department in this city may see some great changes in the organization at an early date.

All over the city electric lights failed tonight. In spots the city was in darkness. This was the result of the storm Tuesday which raked wires and twisted them. Not in years, in winter or summer, have so many electric lights been out of service.

The condition of Mrs. John Maloney, Summer street, who was operated upon at Lawrence hospital ten days ago, is gradually improving and it is believed that the patient will be able to sit up within a day or two.

The streets where lights failed tonight were those that are ordinarily dark and it made walking more dangerous. The Connecticut Power company, which corporation furnishes the power for the lights, has a large force of electricians at work perfecting repairs, but it will probably be another day or two before these are completed and all of the streets illumined.

Several New Londoners are in Bridgeport this evening and witnessed the Frank Moody-Jack Delaney fight, the bout having been postponed from Monday night on account of the storm.

A fellow who had partaken too freely of strong drink, collapsed on Pequot avenue tonight and the police were summoned to the spot where the man lay, but when the patrol and officers arrived, the fellow had disappeared for some of his friends had seen to it that he was gotten off the avenue.

Niantic was hard hit by the storm of yesterday for at Pine Grove 17 trees were down. Some of the trees to fall were the largest and oldest in the grove. Several pleasure craft that were moored in front of the railroad station, dragged their anchors and were ashore, but little damage resulted.

Mr. and Mrs. Austin J. McGarry of Garfield avenue are entertaining Mrs. Abbie Lynch and Mrs. Mary Picard, of Bayonne, N. J., and Mrs. Sullivan, of Franklin, N. J.

An attempt was made to burglarize the Arbelh rooming house, Ocean Beach, last evening. Daniel C. Wetmore, proprietor of the place, happened to step from the hall to the veranda about 1 o'clock and surprised the crook at work endeavoring to force one of the windows. The man saw Mr. Wetmore and, leaping to the ground, disappeared in the darkness.

The city council evidently does not mean that there shall be any fire menace from the installation of gasoline tanks in the interior of buildings in this city. The ordinance concerning the placing of gasoline tanks is stringent, especially where the tanks are in buildings in which families are resident. That rule the city council means shall be enforced to the letter. At the last council meeting several applicants for permission to install tanks were denied the privilege until the tanks could be inspected and the work and location was passed upon.

The city is making improvements in outer Bank street, or Town Hill, as it is known. The work is the construction of a cement street, the laying of water and sewer pipes and the establishment of culverts, catch basins, etc. All that needs to be done to have the road such as will wear for a long term and which shall not be torn up for the installation of any pipes is being accomplished. Something the city seems to have disregarded is the use of the macadam for the present street surface, after it has been removed for the laying of cement. It is estimated that such top surface as shall be removed can be relaid on other streets and made use of so that it will save the city some $2,000 or more. It is now being discussed whether the contractors shall have the macadam removed to make way for the cement or whether that surface is the property of the city—the party awarding the contract to do the work. The tar and blue stone that has come from repaired streets has of late been used to fill in at crosswalks and has been well used as such.

INDUSTRIAL SUBJECTS WISELY INTRODUCED IN TEXAS SCHOOLS

The Legislature of Texas revised its "rural aid law" in 1923. One of the important provisions of the revision is the stipulation that state aid not to exceed $250 may be granted to one school in any district with which to purchase the necessary equipment for teaching industrial subjects according to plans furnished or approved by the state department of education. Although but one year has passed since the opportunity for introducing this phase of school work into the small rural schools was offered, 180 schools located in 65 counties have received aid under the act according to reports made to the United States Bureau of Education. As a means of stimulating schools to take advantage of the provisions of the law the state department of education has just issued a bulletin showing what has been accomplished in a year, the requirements of rural schools seeking state aid for equipment for industrial training, a two-year plan of work, and instructions as to qualifications.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS DULL.

New York, Aug. 27.—Stock prices drifted irregularly lower today when professional bear traders renewed their attacks against certain specialties. With relatively few exceptions, net losses were small. Trading was restricted in volume because of the absence of many large operators over the Labor Day holiday.

Opening prices were firm on buying undoubtedly influenced by the French senate's approval of the London agreement on the Dawes plan and the encouraging resume of the business situation by Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation. The weekly trade reviews also testified to the improvement in that industry.

Unfavorable dividend rumors continued to play an important part in the day's proceedings. Declaration of a quarterly dividend of $1 on the common stock of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company, instead of the usual payment of $1.35 was not known until late in the session. Chandler was hammered down to a new low at 39 3-4 on reports that the annual rate would be reduced from $6 to $4 at the next meeting, but it rallied later to 41. A block of 5 3-4 points in National Enameling preferred, to 30, the year's low also raised the uestion of the safety of that dividend.

Erratic fluctuations took place in American Can which opend at 135 1-2 advanced to 138 1-2, broke 3 1-2 points, and then moved up to 131 3-4 for a net loss of 1 3-4. Other pivota. industrials showed only nominal changes. United States Steel common sold above 110 at one time, but closel unchanged at 109 7-8.

High priced industrials were in rather free supply during the late trading. General Electric broke from 278 to 269 1-4, closing slightly above the low for a net loss of 3 5-8. National Lead dropped from 161 to 153 and then rallied to 154, off 5. United Fruit, Union Tank Car, International Business Machine, Sloss-Sheffield Steel, May Department Stores and Famous Players recorded losses of 3 to 5 points.

Independent strength was shown by a number of issues, new 1924 highs being recorded by Cuba Cane Sugar, preferred, International Railways of Central America, Fleischmann Co., Jordan Motor, Foundation Company and International Telephone, the last named showing an extreme gain of six points in response to reports that it had received a contract to reorganize the Spanish Telephone system. Other strong spots included Chicago Steel, General American Tank Car, American Water Works and West Penn Power.

Rails were mixed with good gains being recorded by Rutland preferred and Pittsburgh and West Virginia preferred.

Call money ruled unchanged at 2 per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates were steady with business quiet.

Foreign exchanges moved slightly higher, demand sterling ruling around $4.38 5-8 and French francs around 5.53 cents.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Aug. 27.—Bond prices steadied today as selling pressure was lifted from the market, enabling high priced railroad and other investment securities to score moderate recovery from their recent depression. Trading, however, continued in light volume with activity centered in a comparatively few issues.

Although the reaction of the past week has carried bond prices considerably below 1924 top levels, leading investment authorities today expressed the opinion that the interruption to the upward tend was only emporary, and that conditions for the flotation of new issues were less favorable.

With directors of the St. Paul Railroad due to consider refunding problems at their meeting tomorrow, trading interest continued lively in the road's bonds. Toward the close of the market, the 4 per cent. bonds maturing next year broke 3 1-4 points and the convertible 4 1-2s a point. Most of the other active rail isues recorded fractional gains.

Erratic fluctuations marked dealings in Wilson & Company issues, with the appointment of friendly receivers for the company aiding the recovery of the bonds. At the close the first 6s were more than a point higher and the convertible liens about a point lower, a reversal of the position held earlier in the day when the convertible 6s rallied 3 points.

Application of the Florida East Coast Railway to sell $15,000,000 five per cent bonds probably will be followed by an early offering, although bankers indicated that it would await at least informal approval by the interstate commerce commission. The Kennecott Copper Corporation will redeem a $15,000,000 note issue of November 1.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—Corn occupied the spotlight on the board of trade today, unfavorable crop reports giving the market an upward swing which at one time carried values around 7 cents above the low for the day and December delivery going 12 1-4c over the Monday's low point. The close was strong, at a net gain of 6¾c to 4 1-4c. Wheat finished 1 to 1 1-2c up, with September $1.21 1-8 to $1.21 1-4 and December $1.26 to $1.26 1-8; oats rose 3-4c to 1 1-8c and provisions advanced 15 to 35c.

Starting somewhat easier in sympathy with the break in wheat, corn recovered rapidly on receipt of continued bullish crop reports from interior points. The market as a whole was broad and a number of stop-loss orders in the new deliveries were caught on the way up. Commission houses and individuals were active buyers, and offerings became scarce. Shortly before the finish, however, profit taking set in and caused a reaction.

Wheat averaged somewhat higher in sympathy with corn and on removal of hedgers against export sales, the latter being reported as quite liberal. Southwestern offerings of wheat were not as large as of late, there being a tendency to advance asking prices. Early weakness in wheat was quickly offset by the action of corn, the market reversing its course. There was a decided change in sentiment in some quarters with a belief that the decline had been sufficient for the time being.

Oats were active and higher with corn and on reports of a good demand for cash room which suggested export business.

Provisions strengthened with corn and on scattered selling despite a decline in hog values.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Aug. 27.—Speculative interest in today's curb market was at low ebb with irregular price tendencies in evidence through the session. Oils continued to sag in further reflection of the recent gasoline price cuts, Prairie Oil and Gas losing a point and most of the active issues yielding fractionally. Standard oil of Nebraska was a conspicuous exception, jumping five points on a few odd lot sales. Vacuum and Woodley Petroleum improved fractionally.

Considerable irregularity developed among the public utilities, American Power and Light opened 12 points higher and then lost five points of its gain. Commonwealth Power reacted nearly two points and then recovered half of its loss.

United Bakeries was an outstanding spot, touching a new top at 83 7-8. Dubilier and Rova Radios each lost about a point.

Camel Fills Many Roles

From time immemorial the camel has been regarded as one of the most useful animals of the east. In the hot, dry desert regions the camel is the horse, the cow and the sheep of the herders and traders. He carries all the burdens, he furnishes flesh and milk for food and his hair or wool furnishes material for weaving cloth. At night in camp the children of the chief get cups of the camel's thick, cheesy milk, mixed with water. On the chief's table is cooked camel flesh. The herders wear robes and turbans of brown camel's hair cloth. The master sleeps under a camel's hair tent.

Avery, which was accepted as read, showed the following resources:

The election of officers resulted in the re-election of officers of the previous year, president, William I. Allyn; secretary, Frederick W. Burton; treasurer, Billings T. Avery. Trustees remain the same as in previous years, Isaac G. Geer, Jacob Gallup, Rev. A. E. Kinmouth, Rev. W. F. White, William I. Allyn, Charles A. Gray, Billings T. Avery, Charles S. Hewitt, Joseph E. Holdridge, Joseph A. Clark, Everett Gallup and Frederick W. Burton.

Resolutions on the death of Henry W. Hurlbut of Gales Ferry, adopted at the meeting in 1923, were distributed among the directors and resolutions on the death of John M. Gray, a director who died during the past year, were read into the records.

The public exercises following the meeting of the library association, were held in the Congregational church. President William I. Allyn spoke briefly and announced the program as follows:

"Spring's Awakening" E. Bach; "Memory's Garden", Lucien Denni; Guile Trio, Prayer, by Rev. G. F. Goodenough; solo "O'l Car'lina", words and music by James Francis Cooke; "I Fear No Foe", words by Edward Oxenford; music by Ciro Pinsuti; "The Cooper's Song", from Von Suppe's "Boccacio", baryton, William H. Rush; accompanist, Miss Nellie S. Howie; violinist, Miss May Guile; violin obligato played by Miss May Guile; address "Cooperation" by Rev. Emmons White; solo, "When You and I Were Young Maggie", J. A. Butterfield; "One Fleeting Hour", words by Karl Fuhrmann, music by Dorothy Lee; "The Bird and The Rose" words by Robert S. Hichens, music by Amy Elsie Harrocks; Orchestra Selections, "O Sole Mio" My Bright Sun Neapolitan Serenade, Eduardo Di Capua; "A Southern Dream" waltzes, Harry J. Lincoln; benediction, Rev. William F. White.

The main address of the day was delivered by Rev. Emmons White of Aruppukottai, India, whose father, Rev. W. F. White, of Trumbull, was a former pastor of the Ledyard Center Congregational church. Rev. Mr. White spoke on Cooperation, mentioning some of the happenings during his boyhood days in Ledyard that taught cooperation. Cooperation, he said, means working together. This library would not be here unless there had been cooperation.

As a missionary I must speak of India, said Rev. Mr. White, and tell you what cooperation means to 315,000,000 people. People say why bury yourself in India, that isn't being alive. I think its really living and the work of 90 years has shown this to be true. In India the denomination does not count, for we have learned to cooperate. There are no Congregational, Baptist, Methodist, Episcopal or any other denominations, we are members of the Church of Christ and there are 200,000 Christians in that church.

Fifty years ago, where I have been working, a mission was opened, the missionary and his wife and servant being the only Christians there. Now there are thousands and these people who once were lower than dogs, even in their own estimation have built a church for themselves, raised the money by saving grain from their table daily to sell it and pay their pledges. It helps you realize that this work is worth while, I believe in it and I am going back.

As a final plea I ask that the United States does not stop where it is now, but that it continue to take a larger part in world cooperation, we will gain by it and as descendants of a people who gave their life for liberty, we should go ahead with the same work until the goal is reached for real world unity.

Following the service in the church the annual dinner was enjoyed, beh served at the tables set near t church. The afternoon was left to t enjoyment of the visitors, some i specting the fine library, others vi iting familiar places, while, ma more enjoyed a social afternoon t gather in the shade of the trees.

WARNING GIVEN TO SHIPS OF ANOTHER HURRICANE

Storm is Moving Northwestward From the West Indies—In Hurricane Earlier in the Week at Least Five Lives Were Lost and Four Ships Wrecked Off the Canadian Coast—Fishing Schooner Dorcas Towed Into Gloucester, Her Captain Missing.

New York, Aug. 28.—As half a score gale-battered ships made port today with their storm-weary passengers and crews, wireless messages were warning all ships in this part of the Atlantic to be on the lookout for another hurricane which, from present indications, threatens to blow up as lusty a sea as that which recently wrought such heavy havoc on shipping.

Tropical disturbance of considerable intensity is now central 60 miles southwest of St. Kitt's Island, the West Indies, and is moving rapidly west northwestward," read a weather bureau storm warning. Further advice were promised for early tomorrow.

Shipping officials, their minds relieved by the final passage of the Sunday-to-Tuesday hurricane which now is lashing out its waves somewhere near the Arctic seas, now feel that a number of big liners now in the central and North Atlantic sea lanes may run their noses squarely into the new storm giant gathering its strength in the South Atlantic. Among the ships several days out of this port are the Leviathan, the Majestic, Cedric, United States, American Banker, Orduna, Ohio and President Roosevelt. From South American ports still others, much smaller and therefore in greater danger, are on their way.

Of the half score ships to make port today, the Danish freighter Nordaker was the first worst sufferer. Her captain was swept overboard by a wave that towered far above the vessel's deck fifty feet above the water. The boat was badly battered in her 36-hour fight with the gale off Hatteras—a fight which many times had the Doughty Dane's decks under tons of water. She came into port with her flag half-masted.

Probably the most fortunate of the storm wrecked vessels to arrive was the Hamburg-American liner Westphalia, which arrived with 336 passengers. The storm hit her Tuesday afternoon off Georges Bank, but did not catch her skipper unprepared. For four hours, her engines driving her but three knots an hour, the liner waged her battle, and she came through with little damage and with none injured.

Today's arrivals, including the Westphalia, San Pablo, Indian Prince, San Jose, Corsican Prince and the Commodore Rollins, brought the total number of ships to feel the storm's fury to a score. Others are expected tomorrow.

DEATH TOLL OF STORM ALONG CANADIAN COAST

Halifax, N. S., Aug. 28.—Atlantic shipping along the Canadian coast paid heavier toll than did New York-bound vessels caught in the hurricane of Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, it was indicated today.

It was thought that at least seven lives had been lost as the result of the storm, which seemed to increase in fury as it got into North Atlantic water, while the list of wrecked ships totalled four late today.

The British schooner Anna MacDonald, a three-master, is thought to have foundered with her crew of six. Parts of the vessel were washed ashore on the lonely prospect ledges.

A member of the crew of the schooner Lizzie E., was drowned when that vessel piled upon rocks near Yarmouth.

The American cruising yacht Shanghai was reported a total loss off White Point Bluff, Canso, where she was driven aground by the pounding seas and terrific wind. All aboard were saved.

Lifeboats which miraculously survived towering seas were employed to save 70 passengers and crew members of the coastal steamer Aspy at Neil's Harbor, Cape Breton, Tuesday night. The Aspy piled up on a reef near the shore and was reported to be pounding to pieces.

GLOUCESTER SCHOONER WRECKED, CAPTAIN MISSING

Gloucester, Mass., Aug. 28.—A helpless hulk, the fishing schooner Dorcas of Gloucester, with her captain missing, and with both masts, her dories, rails and all loose gear carried away by the storm that swept the coast Tuesday, arrived at this port today in tow of the Provincetown schooner Funchal. The nine remaining members of her crew brought with them a tale of being buffeted by wind and sea from Tuesday until early Wednesday after the craft had been stripped and disabled by the gale.

The Dorcas was lying to on Georges Banks, 50 miles off the coast awaiting the storm when she was struck by the first heavy sea. Captain Joseph F. Silveria of Gloucester was swept overboard and was not seen again. Domingo Nunes of Gloucester and Joseph Brown, of Boston, members of the crew, were carried overboard by the same wave but were swept back aboard the craft by the next sea.

Early, both masts were snapped off, all of the dories, fishing gear and rails carried away, her auxiliary engine disabled by the deluge of water in her hold and her rudder rendered useless. From 11:30 Tuesday morning, she drifted before the storm until the wind had abated in the early hours of Wednesday morning.

At 3 o'clock Wednesday morning, two of the crew of the Funchal heard the fog horn which the crew of the Dorcas was sounding as a signal for help. Putting about, Captain Louis Deare picked up the wrecked craft.

The trip was to have been the last of the season for Captain Silveria.

NANTUCKET LIGHTSHIP PARTED ANCHOR CABLE

Boston, Aug. 28.—Nantucket lightship, Beacon, guarding the Nantucket South Shoals, so much dreaded by navigators, parted her anchor cable in the terrific storm of Tuesday and was forced to leave her station unguarded for 24 hours, according to word received here tonight.

The steel ship, one of the most modern in the service, snapped the inch and a half chain which tethers her to a mammoth anchor. Under her own power she made the shelter of Vineyard Haven and waited there until the tender Anemone brought out a new chain. The lightship resumed her station on the shoals 35 miles from Nantucket yesterday.

POSTMASTER GENERAL BELIEVES FAHY GUILTY

Washington, Aug. 28.—Postmaster-General New declared today that information in his possession forced him to the conclusion that Postoffice Inspector William F. Fahy, now held for complicity in the $2,000,000 mail robbery at Rondout, Ill., last June, was guilty of wrongdoing.

"When this robbery was first reported to me," said Mr. New, "I called into conference Chief Inspector Simmons and other attaches of this office. It was my belief as well as the inspector's that this robbery was pulled off as a result of information furnished by someone who had intimate knowledge of postoffice matters, and who was thoroughly acquainted with the movements of the trains, their arrival and departure. It could not have been accomplished in any other way. The robbers apparently had been tipped off by someone in possession of the very information which they needed.

"Every phase of the situation was gone over very carefully and every detail of the robbery taken into consideration. The inspectors were then put to work on the case and have been steadily at it, night and day, keeping me informed of each bit of information uncovered by them. Suspicion pointed to Fahy as being implicated in the robbery, and the work carried on by the inspectors assigned to the job has proven that they were on the right track from the very beginning.

"We were all greatly shocked when the facts were laid before us connecting the name of Fahy with this robbery."

TWO CHILDREN SUFFERING FROM POISON WHISKEY

Syracuse, N. Y., Aug. 28.—Discovery within 48 hours of two children suffering from the effects of poison whiskey today resulted in orders from city and federal authorities to determine responsibility in both cases and to clean up conditions which brought them about. Peter Kajatek, 14, was found unconscious in a park last night, and Marjorie Jordan, 14, an Indian girl, was taken to a hospital in a serious condition the day before.

Marc Buckland, chief of the Syracuse district prohibition enforcement forces, in a statement today declared his men are working with the police on the cases. "If it can be learned where the boy got the liquor," he said, "we will prosecute to the full extent of the law."

Regarding the case of the Indian girl, Chief Buckland stated that the fact that she obtained liquor which caused her collapse on the Onondaga Indian reservation is no bar to action by the federal authorities. "The Indians can't defy the United States government and get away with it," he said. "I'll have as many men as I need to accomplish what I want to accomplish."

WORLD FLIERS POSTPONE FLIGHT UNTIL SATURDAY

On Board U. S. S. Richmond, Ice Tickle, Labrador, Aug. 28 (By the A. P.).—Postponement of the flight of the American army world fliers from Ivigtut, Greenland, to Indian Harbor, Labrador, until Saturday, was definitely decided today because of the continuing stormy weather.

The gale which had raged throughout Wednesday night off Ice Tickle had died down this morning and the rising barometer seemed to promise a possibility of the fliers continuing their air voyage from Ivigtut to Labrador tomorrow, in accordance with the prearranged schedule.

During the day, however, the cruiser Milwaukee, which is stationed off Ivigtuf, where Lieutenants Smith and Nelson are waiting to make their last overseas jump, reported that the storm which had been moving up the coast for several days, affecting the Labrador side of Davis Straits, had reached the Greenland shore during the night and that the wind was blowing with some severity. Therefore it was decided to put off the flight until Saturday.

COURT REBUKES PROSECUTOR IN THE LOEB-LEOPOLD CASE

He set September 10, as the date on which he will announce the penalty for the crime, and ordered all would-be spectators barred from the building that morning.

But before reaching that point he struck out as "a cowardly and dastardly attack upon the integrity of this court," and as "intended to incite a mob and intimidate this court," remarks which came just at the close of the final summing up by Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney.

Mr. Crowe's jaw dropped and he paled.

"If Your Honor please," he beseeched, "I merely wanted to put my personal feelings plainly before the court. I had no other intention."

The state's attorney knew." went on the inexorable tones of the court, "that it would be heralded all over this country and all over the world, and he knows, too, that the court had opportunity to do other what he did."

"This court will not be intimidated by anybody, at any time or any place."

Then, scarcely changing his tone, Judge Caverly started reading a prepared statement, in which he flayed critics who had aired their views in public prints or in letters and telegrams to the judge. He said this criticism came "from many well-meaning people who knew no better; some from those who should have known better."

The judge said he considered ten days about the proper time in which to consider his finding because he had "practically 2,000 pages of exhibits to study."

BOY WAS CRUSHED BY ELEVATOR IN NEW HAVEN

New Haven, Aug. 28.—Paul A. Benanti, the 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Benanti, of 235 Davenport avenue, was killed instantly late today when he was caught between the second and third floors of the elevator shaft of a six-story building at Wooster and Wallace streets. The body was discovered by Dora Carbone, a girl employed in the shop of Fegeire and Halever, when the boy also was employed, fifteen minutes after the accident.

Firemen cut out the floor of the elevator and released the body.

Just how the accident occurred is not known. The boy, who was employed by the firm to run errands, had been sent to the basement for a can of oil. On the way back in the elevator it is thought that he might have spilled some of the oil on the floor of the elevator and then slipped and fallen out. It is also thought possible possible that he might have had his head out of the car and struck the second floor. Death was due to a crushed chest and internal injuries.

Besides his parents, the boy is survived by two brothers and three sisters.

Acrimony at The New Haven Rep. Convent'n

Col. Ullman Indulged in Caustic Comment Prior to the Selection of Delegates.

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 28.—Controlled by the supporters of the republican organization headed by Colonel Isaac M. Ullman with the exception of the delegates from the ninth senatorial district, tonight's republican city convention named six of the district delegates and four of the delegates at large to the state convention, to be held in this city September 9 and 10 who are favorable to the Ullman organization and two delegates from the ninth district, who were chosen by the insurgent faction headed by Clarence G. Willard.

The convention on motion of Col. Ullman adopted a resolution endorsing Senator John M. Wadhams of Goshen for governor. Col. Ullman, addressing the convention to name his brother, Major Louis M. Ullman as first delegates at large to the state convention, referred to a speech earlier in the evening by Mr. Willard pledging the support of his organization to the republican ticket and declaring he "had been forced into a personal fight and that what has taken place can never be erased by the silver tongue of the young man who has used the newspapers of the city, particularly the democratic ones, in a manner that will redound to the benefit of the democratic party."

Hisses were mingled with the applause of the organization supporters at the caustic references by Colonel Ullman to the recent contest.

Chairman Frederick W. Orr of the republican town committee in a lengthy speech referred to Colonel Ullman as "the best leader the republicans ever had in the city, the state of the nation" and nominated him for fourth delegate at large, amid the cheers of his supporters and a few hisses. The nomination was made unanimous, but Colonel Ullman, in another dramatic effort, declined the nomination, saying that attending the state convention had "come to be a habit, which I am getting over." Thanking the delegates for their action and the resulting ovation he named Frederick W. Kaye, who was unanimously chosen.

Besides Major Louis M. Ullman and Mr. Kaye the other delegates at large to the state convention chosen were Victor E. Rosien and Mrs. Henry H. Townsend.

The district delegates were: eighth district, Michael D. McGovern, Harry G. Tolliver; ninth district, Former Lieutenant Governor Dannis A. Blakeslee and J. Frederick Baker, clerk of the state senate; tenth district, Joseph F. Morrissey and Alfred J. Lorenzi; eleventh district, Louis Feinmark and D. W. Celotto.

The convention, without opposition, chose Prosecutor Edwin S. Pickett of the county court of common pleas, an Ullman delegate for chairman without opposition. In seconding Mr. Pickett's nomination Clarence G. Willard, assistant secretary of the state committee, and leader of the insurgent forces in the city contest said:

"We have had a controversy. So far as we are concerned we are on the short end. But we wish to be good losers. We are beaten. We have 800 active workers. We have put over 4,000 named on the republican voting lists. This organization as far as the individuals in it are concerned, at a meeting voted that we would be at the disposal of the Chairman of the town committee to do anything in the interest of the republican party that he may ask."

The speech was loudly applauded and the convention divided into four district conventions to name the district delegates. The Ullman organization controlled all districts but the ninth, where the insurgent forces won by a close vote of 24 to 22, selecting a chairman and two delegates.

The convention then reassembled, and Colonel Ullman arose to say:

"Governors and lieutenant governors may come and go but ingrates are with us forever." He was interrupted by hisses and applause.

He then went on to refer to a man in this town who has done much for the republican party in this city for which I have been given the credit."

"Possibly it is his misfortune that he is my brother," he continued. "It's my good fortune that he is."

He then referred to the fact taht his brother had been a candidate for delegate to the state convention last spring and said that "it was a sorrowful thing to me that during my absence in Europe those delegates who, when elected were expected to cast their votes for him did not do so." They were within their legal if not their moral rights he said.

"It was no great loss," he continued. "I've been going to state conventions for many years. I don't know why. He then referred to having been forced into the recent personal fight and concluded by saying that it "proved a pleasure, however unethical, to name my brother as first delegate."

On a motion to make the selection unanimous there were a few nays.

"Put 'em," yelled someone in the crowd.

Colonel Ullman said the show of opposition had cast suspicion on the delegates and asked that the motion be put again. Chairman Pickett again called for ayes and nays and there was not a sound of opposition. There cheers were proposed and given for Major Ullman.

Following Mr. Orr's nomination of Colonel Ullman and his declination, former Secretary of State Frederick W. Perry read resolutions, which endorsed Coolidge and Dawes and declared their election already assured, declared "confidence in our own Colonel Tilson, who has made a record in congress surpassed by no man," and concluded:

"We admire the record in the public service of the Hon. John M. Wadhams, of Goshen and believe that the nomination of a man of his calibre for the office governor would be in line with the best traditions."

The resolutions were adopted without dissenting voice.

Clarence G. Willard then addressed the convention, declaring that it was impossible to vote against any portion of the resolution as it was framed with reference to President Coolidge and Dawes.

Colonel Ullman was on his feet immediately to move reconsideration of the motion which was adopted. On his further motion the resolution was divided and the Coolidge-Dawes-Tilson sections adopted without dissent, while the reference to Senator Wadhams was declared adopted, though there was a chorus of "nays" in opposition.

Break in The Dem. Machine in Texas

Dem. National Committeeman Declines to Support Candidacy of Mrs. Ferguson.

Dallas, Texas, Aug. 28.—Announcement that he would not support the candidacy of Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, of Temple, for the governorship of Texas, and that he had forwarded his resignation as democratic national executive committeeman for Texas, to Clem L. Shaver, the national chairman, was made here this afternoon by Thomas B. Love of Dallas. Mr. Love was elected national committeeman at the state democratic convention held in Waco recently.

This information was contained in a lengthy statement prepared by Mr. Love in which he outlines his long political career and explained his decision to withdraw from the leadership of the democratic party in Texas, an office which he has held for five years and to which he had just been elected for an additional four year term.

Mr. Love though denying his support of Mrs. Ferguson, "earnestly and whole-heartedly" endorses the national candidacy of John W. Davis and Governor Charles W. Bryan for president and vice president.

"As a matter of law, I do not believe the democratic nominee (Mrs. Ferguson) is eligible under our constitution but regardless of that I cannot escape the conviction that it is the duty of every good citizen, regardless of all considerations of party regularity and of all other considerations, to leave nothing undone that legitimately may be done to prevent the restoration of Fergusonism to power in the state capitol at Austin," the statement continues.

In commenting upon the Ku Klux Klan he declared that this issue was forever removed from Texas politics by the primary of August 23, and asserted "while I have outspokenly opposed the klan from the beginning, my own belief has been that Fergusonism was ten times a greater menace than Ku Kluxism."

New Haven, Aug. 28.—E. H. Woodford of Unionville was elected president of the Southern New England Lumber Manufacturers' association, holding its annual meeting here today. The afternoon session was held in Sage hall, the new building of the Yale Forestry school. New York, Aug. 28.—Directors of the Pere Marquette Railway Company today approved the offer of the Van Sweringen interests of Cleveland to join the proposed "Nickel Plate" merger, assuring completion of one of the greatest railroad consolidations in history.

The last of five railroads to accept the Van Sweringen's cher, the Pere Marquette will be combined with the Erie Chesapeake & Ohio, the present "Nickel Plate," hocking Valley, into a mammoth new "Nickel Plate" system with total assets of $1,500,000,000 and more than 14,000 miles of trackage traversing the eastern section of the country. Unified control and operation of the properties will be directed by O. P. and M. J. Sweringer, Cleveland real estate and railroad magnates, who later will effect a complete physical consolidation of the road.

Stockholders of the five companies will be invited simultaneously to deposit their shares for an exchange into stock of the new "Nickel Plate" corporation. With their acceptance virtually assured, the Van Sweringens will seek final approval of the merger from the interstate commerce commission.

WHAT HENRY FORD REALLY SAID ABOUT KU KLUX KLAN

Detroit, Aug. 28.—In further denial of the report that Henry Ford in a statement to a Montreal Star reporter had said that the Ku Klux Klan was misunderstood, his offices today gave out another wireless from Mr. Ford's yacht, quoting exactly what was said concerning the klan.

While the manufacturer's yacht was being taken through one of the locks of the St. Lawrence river en route to Detroit, a number of reporters sought to interview him, the wireless stated. Numerous questions concerning political matters and President Coolidge's chances for re-election were asked, and then one reporter asked:

"What do you know about the Ku Klux Klan?"

"What do you know about it?" Mr. Ford countered.

"Nothing," the reporter answered.

"Neither do I," Mr. Ford returned, and the interview was ended.

MERIDEN ASKS LEGION CONVENTION NEXT YEAR

Torrington, Aug. 28.—Meriden post announced at this afternoon session of the state convention of the American Legion being held here that it would ask that the next year's convention be held in that city. Hartford, which had planned to ask for the convention, it is understood, is now willing to wait until 1926.

Austin T. Hawes, state forester, was the speaker at the noon luncheon of the delegates, served by the legion auxiliary. National Commander John R. Quinn, of California, is to arrive here Saturday.

The business of the convention will be handled chiefly at tomorrow's session. All that occurred today was the choosing of convention committees. No resolutions were brought in or acted on today, the principal business aside from choosing of committees, being the examining and accepting of credentials.

CRUISER WAR BUG SEIZED WITH 200 CASES WHISKEY

New York, Aug. 28.—Showing marks of many direct hits by coast guard marksmen, the speedy cruiser War Bug, with a crew of six and 200 cases of whiskey, was brought into port today.

Patroling off Roamer Shoals, the coast guard boat sighted the War Bug, without lights, heading in from Rum Row, according to the revenue men. Immediately the rum-runner put on speed, but hove to and made a dash for the open sea after the chase had lasted from Sandy Hook to the Narrows.

The government officers countered with a fusillade that raked the runner fore and aft, bullets flying through portholes and shattering cabin windows. Several rounds of ammunition were used before the fugitive's motors went dead and she surrendered.

Lynchburg, Va., Aug. 28.—Senator Carter Glass is confined to his bed at his country home, Mount View farms, near here suffering from erysipelas. His physicians stated today that it would be several weeks before he would be able to attend to any business or political matters.

M. C. A. tonight. Officials of the Y. M. C. A. said he was struck by another bather who dived into the water, striking Lynch who was swimming under water, in the back. Dr. Donald Wells, who attended Lynch, denied this. He said Lynch dived and struck another bather whose name the Y. M. C. A. officials refused to divulge.

Plymouth, Vt., Aug. 28.—President Coolidge turned toward Washington and the cares of office and a campaign tonight, refreshed and rested from the two weeks' vacation with his father and family in his boyhood home. This afternoon Mr. Coolidge sat with his family on the tiny front porch of the home, receiving the farewell visits of old friends and neighbors.

The annual services of the Pinney family, of which he is a descendant, in the one-room union church across the road, were clearly audible.

Their first thought on arriving was their last in leaving and the president, Mrs. Coolidge and their son, John, stopped on the way to Ludlow, tonight, where they boarded the train for Washington, to pay a final visit to the cemetery in which are buried the president's son, Calvin, and mother and sister.

Early this morning, the president walked with his father about the farm, over the sloping hillsides overlooking the Green Mountains.

Preparing again to resume in full swing the work of his office, Mr. Coolidge, as on previous days this week, waited in the temporary business office here held here that it would ask that the next year's convention be held in that city. Hartford, which had planned to ask for the convention, it is understood, is now willing to wait until 1926.

Before completing the packing, Mrs. Coolidge this morning took down from the post in the garden across the road, the wind vane, made by Calvin Jr., who died last month, and which she had put up upon her arrival. The youth last summer had written and asked his mother to take it down for the winter before leaving, in its place Mrs. Coolidge hammered on a bright colored heady-made vane which will whirl in the winds until the family comes again next summer on their annual vacation.

The president has several speaking engagements listed for Washington and one for Baltimore on September 6th. Tomorrow he will address the fraternal congress from the south portico of the White House. He has accepted an invitation to address the Holy Name Society convention in Washington Sept. 20 and some believe if he intends to make a reply to John W. Davis, democratic nominee on the Klu Klux Klan he may do so at such a time.

BELIEVES IN THE OLD NEW ENGLAND "SQUARE" DANCES

Hudson, Mass., Aug. 28.—Believing that proficiency in the old New England "square" dances is necessary to the host and hostess of the Wayside in, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ford of Detroit have invited Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin B. Lovett of this town to be guests at the Ford home early in September to instruct the automobile magnate and his family in the arts and graces of the quadrille, lancers, caprice and masourka.

The invitation was received today by the Lovetts and was accepted. The local couple came to Mr. Ford's attention recently when friends in Sudbury told him of their prowess in the old time dances. After a conference with the Lovetts at the inn, Mr. Ford decided to obtain their services in anticipation of social events to come later at the old hostelry. After a week in Detroit, the Lovetts will return to instruct some of the Fords' friends in the east who are to be guests at future social affairs at the inn.

CONFERENCE OF STATE SUPERVISORS OF SCHOOLS

Hartford, Aug. 28.—The annual conference of state supervisors of schools, which closed today at the capitol after a three days' session, discussed the new courses of study which will be put into effect in September in all rural schools coming under the direction of the state department of education. Details of the new courses have not yet been published by the department of education. It is known, however, that no radical changes are embodied in the new courses, which aim rather to incorporate the best features of the old courses with the latest and most authoritative methods developed since they were put into effect.

Thomas Sheehan and James Mahoney, expert steeplejacks of Northampton, Mass., are at work on the steeple of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church, the cross of which, surmounting the spire is 173 feet from the ground. The edifice was built fifty years ago and was the largest in Eastern Connecticut at the time.

The work being done on the steeple is the removal of all slate shingles, which are to be replaced with copper ones. Sheehan and Mahoney started on the work Thursday and have made considerable headway in removing the old shingles. The steeple towers 103 feet from the ball deck to the foot of the cross and is octagon shaped. Five of the eight sides were stripped Thursday afternoon. The old shingles are lowered to the ground in a novel manner. A breeches buoy is rigged from the top of the steeple to the foot of a tree in the Natchaug school yard with a connecting pulley. A canvas container suspended on a rope is arranged by the side of the steeplejack as he work while seated in a bosun's chair. The shingles are placed in the container until it is full and then lowered to the ground. The principle is similar to the overhead carrier system used in a department store.

All the shingles are expected to be removed by Saturday night or Monday. Then the work of covering the steeple with the copper shingles will be started. This process will, of course be somewhat slower. However, Messrs Sheehan and Mahoney believe that with good weather they will complete the job in five or six weeks. The copper shingles interlock and are guaranteed to last as long as the edifice does. About thirty thousand shingles will be required to cover the steeple Although St. Joseph's church was built a half century ago, the timbers were found to be in excellent condition. The last job on the steeple was done about a dozen years ago by Steeple Tom Fitzgerald of this city, who lowered the twelve-foot cross from the steeple, covered it with gold leaf and then replaced it.

CONGRESSMAN FREEMAN OPENS ELKS BIG COUNTRY FAIR

Willimantic, August 28—The Elks Cuntry Fair was successfully opened this (Thursday) evening. The opening exercises were inaugurated by a street parade. Three local bands, the B. P. O. E., White Eagle Polish-American and the Boy Scouts', furnished music and there were about 200 members of the lodge in line. A platoon o. police headed the procession. City and town officials with the guest of honor, Congressman Richard P. Freeman, of New London, occupied automobiles.

Upon arrival at Elks' Park where the fair is being held, th pearaders encircled the grounds once. The combined band rendered a snappy selection, after which Acting Mayor eGorge Hickey gave the introductory address. Congressman Freeman was the speaker of the evening. He dwelt chiefly upon the spirit of friendliness, the basic principle of the establishment of the Elks' Order. At the conclusion of his address the fair swung into action.

The park was thronged. The vaudeville acts were of high grade. The patrons bestowed their money generously at the many booths which dot the park. Dancing was enjoyed to music from the Peerless orchestra of this city. There were many other forms of amusements. Fifteen automobiles and the den of "harmony" which are to be given away on the closing night of the engagement were conspicuously displayed. The lighting effects were beautiful and greatly enhanced the attractiveness of the grounds. Dare Devil Oliver and Frederick DoBell provided the feature act.

Joseph M. Berard is chairman of the general committee of arrangements, all the members of which were getting many compliments tonight for the success of the big project.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

HEAVY LOSSES FROM MANGE MITES OF HOGS

Heavy losses of pork products due to mange mites of hogs have been reported lately to the United States Department of Agriculture by its inspectators in the Central West. In addition to being an irritation to hogs, resulting in general unthriftiness, mange mites cause meat losses running into hundreds of thousands of dollars annually, according to recent information obtained. Reports by J. O. Wilson, chief veterinary inspector of the Bureau of Animal Industry stationed in South Dakota, are now being studied by department specialists from an economic, as well as from a veterinary standpoint. Through the courtesy of H. F. Weenker, superintendent of a large packing house in Sioux Falls, S. Dak., Dr. Wilson obtained sufficient evidence of avoidable losses to suggest concerted action throughout the Central West in reducing the ravages of the mange parasite.

Fully 40 per cent of the hogs slaughtered in South Dakota during the winter months of 1923-24 showed evidence of the mange mites, though only about one-half of that number were sufficiently affected enough to cause definite losses. The mange parasites damage the hams, becons, and picnics principally—the parts of the hog that are of greatest value. The pest is most troublesome during the colder months when most hogs are marketed.

The damage to hog carcasses caused by the mites assumes the form of roughened skin and inflamation. In some cases the meat is entirely unfit for food. In other instances the injury places the pork products from such hogs in the lower grades, which have a reduced value of from 3 to 5 cents. The observations made in South Dakota are believed to be typical of other important swine-growing states.

The United States Department of Agriculture points out that losses due to mange mites are largely preventable. Treatment consists in the application of various simple remedies, ranging from mixtures of kerosene and lard to specially prepared mite-control dips. The hogs may be treated by hand application, hog oilers, spraying, medicated hog wallows, or by dipping. In applying the treatment swine owners should always treat the entire herd, whether all animals show infection or not. Medicated hog wallows are one of the most practical means of reducing mange-mite infection, since the instinct habit of hogs is to wallow in water. By medicating the water in properly constructed wallows, the remedies take effect with a minimum of expenditure of money, time, and labor.

Dates of Frosts

A killing frost is one that is destructive to vegetation growing at the time it occurs. Over the northern two-thirds of Connecticut, a killing frost may occur as late as May 10 one year in two. In the southern third, the chance of a killing frost after May 1 is slight.

Except in the northern portion of Litchfield and Tolland Counties there is slight chance of a killing frost before October 1.

Over most of Connecticut, the average length of the growing season between the last killing frost of spring and the first in the autumn is approximately 160 days. In northern Litchfield County and in the higher portions of Tolland, Windham and New London Counties, the growing season will be less than 150 days at least one year in five.

If planting is delayed in the spring until the chance of injury by frost is one in ten, the available growing season ranges from 120 days in the higher sections to more than 150 days in the areas near the coast.—R. E. Dodge and H. Connecticut Agricultural College Review.

More Money in Alfalfa

In all the argument about alfalfa a great deal of emphasis has been put on the value of this crop for feeding purposes, and the large yield possible, but not much has been said about the low cost of alfalfa hay as compared with other hay or about the real profitableness of the crop.

Figures from the Sheldon farm in Suffield illustrate the importance of this point, however, says Allen Manchester of the farm management department of Connecticut Agricultural College. On this farm it cost $14.50 per ton to raise and store alfalfa hay, while other grass hay cost $15.30 per ton. The alfalfa hay was worth at least $5 per ton more than the other hay, making at least $5.80 per ton greater than that on other hay. The profit per acre on alfalfa was $61.08 while on ordinary hay it was $30.43.

The figures on the Sheldon farm are typical of those on quite a few farms from which the farm management department has gathered figures according to Mr. Manchester. Hay is one of Connecticut's profitable crops. Raising alfalfa by suitable methods and on suitable soil doubles the profit from this crop at the same time that it helps the dairy business by furnishing better feed. In these facts lies much of the reason for the rapid expansion of alfalfa growing now taking place in central Connecticut.

KEEP COCKERELS IN DARK SO THEY WON'T MOVE ABOUT

Poultrymen who wish to fatten cockerels for market should shut the birds up in a coop where they will have no room in which to run about or move about. Darken it carefully and take care that the house shall be cool rather than hot and stuffy. Then prepare the cockerels for a quick feeding by giving them the first day only water and grit. On the second day feed them a ration consisting solely of cracked corn,—on the third day begin to feed the fitting ration which should consist of two parts of corn meal and one part of middlings mixed to a crumbly wet mash by the addition of skim milk or sour whole milk. This feed should be continued for the next seven days.

The poultry men should keep in mind the fact that birds fed in this way will lose their appetite after approximately the tenth day in confinement. However, a maximum gain in flesh of a very desirable quality can be obtained if these instructions are closely followed. The feeding should be done three or four times daily and the birds should be permitted to have light only while they are feeding.

When to Fatten Pigs

When shoats reach the weight of 100 pounds or more they should be fattened by the self feeder plan unless one is feeding garbage, says an Improvement League worker. Pigs sold at the live weight of 150 to 200 pounds generally bring the largest profit because it takes less grain to put on one pound of pork from 100 to 200 pounds. In fact, on the average it takes about four and a half pounds of grain to make one pound of pork during the early stage and about seven pounds during the latter stage.

A good feed mixture for the self feeder consists of 200 pounds of cornmeal, 100 pounds of brown middlings, 30 pounds of digester tankage, or meatmeal and three pounds of salt.

This should all be mixed up thoroughly and fed in three feeds the first day, increasing the feeds each day until the feed is kept before them all the time. Skim milk and green feeds should be given up until the last 10 days, when all green material and milk should be taken away.

APPLE GROWING EAST OF THE MISSISSIPPI

The fundamental principles of apple growing are discussed in a new bulletin just issued by the United States Department of Agriculture which treats in particular of apple growing east of the Mississippi river. The fruit grower, says the department, who best understands the principles involved and applies them wisely is the one who usually succeeds because he best meets the conditions of nature with which he contends. There is no "rule of thum" method of procedure which can be laid down to fit all localities and conditions.

From their inception, says the department, many orchards are doomed to failure or to mediocrity of success only, because they are poorly located with respect to soil, local temperature conditions, or for some other reason which is inherent in the surroundings and which might easily have been avoided and the principles of good orcharding been observed in the beginning.

With the high costs that enter into the development and maintenance of apple orchards, any advantages of site and location and of favorable conditions with respect to regularity of crops, abundant yields, and perfection of development of the fruit may make a wide difference in the financial aspects of an orchard enterprise, as compared with one where adverse conditions occur.

To Devise Means of Improving Rural Schools

Teachers College, Columbia University, has adopted the Old Quaker Grove School in Warren County, N. J., for a period of five years, according to reports received by the United States Bureau of Education. This is its experimental rural school. The principal occupations of the neighborhood are dairying and truck farming. Last year 20 children were enrolled in grades 4 to 8, and 30 in the first three grades. The large number of children in the lower grades is due to the presence of a considerable number of Polish families, largely young people, with children under 10 years of age. This heavy load of primary pupils has the advantage of compelling steady attention in the first and second grades, which is frequently neglected in one-teacher schools. The distribution of pupils in the upper grades is similar to that in thousands of rural schools in the United States.

It is hoped that the experiment may show that by providing the one-teacher school with standard term, equipment, teacher, and supervision, and by adapting course of study, textbooks, methods and devices to rural-school needs, means may be devised whereby the advantages of small schools may be used to counter-balance their disadvantages and limitations.

Pighe announce the opening of the second season Wednesday evening, Sept. 3rd and call the attention of their patrons to several important changes at this popular "dansant jocale" which makes it today the most attractive place of its kind in eastern Connecticut. The interior has been redecorated and the lighting system greatly improved. An innovation will be introduced in a palm garden in the deep recesses of the gallery where refreshments and light foods will be dispensed by Hallock, Inc. The Peerless orchestra of eight pieces, Prosper Veglard, director, will play for the concert and dancing on the opening night. During the season, leading orchestras in this section will be heard at gatherings at the Al-Pierre which are to be held each Wednesday and Saturday evening through the winter and the spring months.

Strand Theatre.

Bigger than the biggest circus. Not even the extravagant press agentry of the greatest show on earth could excel the truth regarding the production of The Covered Wagon for Paramount which comes to the Strand theatre next Monday. Fifty carloads of material were shipped to the location at Baker, Nevada.

In addition, one thousand Indians, and more than two thousand white persons are seen in the picture. Also there are upward of 1,000 horses, several hundred mules and 500 covered wagons. The center of activities was at the Baker ranch. Prior to arriving there, Director James Cruze spent several days at Antelope Island in the Great Salt Lake, making a buffalo hunt with 500 head of bison on that island. J. Warren Kerrigan and Lois Wilson head a splendid cast.

Note: This feature masterpiece will be presented first at the Broadway theatre for Sunday night only. You'll see it at popular prices with augmented orchestras.

Lyceum Theater, New London

Allan Dinehart, of whom it has been said, no better comedian is playing on the American stage, is featured with Claiborne Foster in Richard Herndon's production Apple Sauce which comes to the Lyceum theater on Friday and Saturday, August 29th and 30th, with matinee on Saturday. Barry Conners is the author of this three act comedy that depicts the home life of any American family of moderate circumstances in any American city or town. Apple Sauce does not depend on sex problems or the eternal triangle to create interest. On the other hand its claim for patronage is based on the eternal optimism of young people in contrast to the conservatism that comes with age. When young love calls to its mate what difference does it make if the groom proposes marriage with only six dollars in his pocket and a strong and healthy constitution and the young couple start out in life with a two room flat on flight above the town barber shop. Apple Sauce will bring back more pleasant memories of loves young dream than any play seen hereabouts in many ages.

How Coal Mine Looks.

A coal mine has the appearance of a crushed centipede, says Nature Magazine. If the surface could be lifted off, as one cuts open an ant hill, the mine, with its main corridor and its lateral chambers would look not unlike a long bridge, with frequent supports, laid over on its side.

One finds a distinguished illustration of the length of time that may be covered in the lives of a parent and child in reflecting on the fact that Oliver Wendell Holmes, the poet, was born 115 years ago today, while Oliver Wendell Holmes, his son, is still an active member of the supreme court of the United States.

Music of the Week.

"Little Orphant Annie" is a regular nursery institution and it naturally remained for Louise Homer to sing an arrangement of it this week on a record well calculated to bear out the delightful spookiness of the original. On the other side the famous contralto sings another American folk-poem, "The Barnyard Song" from the Kentucky mountains. This makes another fine contribution to the fund of American folk-lore.

Fritz Krejier plays a graceful tribute to the memory of his friend, the late Victor Herbert, by recording this week the latter's waltz, "A Kiss in the Dark." It is melodious to begin with, ennobled by the master's bow. Paired with it is Poldini's "Waltzing Doll," a swift, fantastic strain.

It may be news to some that Johann Strauss wrote marches, but here are two of them this week on a new record by the Goldman band. Splendid marches, too, barbaric and brilliant, are "Persian March" and "Egyptian March," played with spirit and finish.

Victor orchestra plays a number of European folk-songs this week that form an interesting little recital by themselves. There are eight to a record, sixteen in all, a group garnered from many corners of the Old World, some of them familiar and all delightful in their simplicity and eternal freshness.

The quaint simplicity of the old negro spirituals is both amusing and touching and, of course, there is no gainsaying their melody. This week Marian Anderson records two more of these hymns of her people in her rich contralto. "Go Down, Moses" is the exhortation that the prophet call upon Pharaoh to let his people go—weird, rich harmonies threaded with the mellow tones of the tenor oboe. "Heav'n, Heav'n" on the other side is less solemn and more jubilant.

Lou Holtz's "Oh Sole, Oh Mo!" is almost as famous as Caruso's record of the original which it burlesques. This week Lou has a second installment, equally farcical, with some unexpected turns of rhyme. If memory serves, the hero pounded his head with a hammer because it felt so good when he stopped. He is equally logical in this subsequent version. His plaint on the reverse side is "I Can't Get the One I Want," apparently an original observation.

Paul Whiteman runs true to form in his latest fox trot. "The Song of Songs"—that is, if there be a Whiteman formula for achieving unusual fox trot effects. Excellent company for it is "My Dream Girl—Medley Waltz" from Victor Herbert's last musical comedy, happily entrusted to the Troubadours.

Jan Garber and His Orchestra state a universal wish in "I Want to Be Happy," a fox trot which will help along. The same orchestra gives the reverse English to its first sentiment in "I Never Care About Tomorrow," unless they mean that sufficient to the day is its measure of joy.

The Garber organization makes another record—"Hinky Dinky Parlay Voo," enough of a two-step to lure old-timers into the fox trot. "You'll Never Get to Heaven With Those Eyes," of George Olsen and His Music, is a lively enough fox trot, too.

Provision for better health service for Indians was made by the Congress in recent appropriation bills. An addition of $30,000 was made to the general appropriation for preserving health and for medical treatment, and a tuberculosis sanatorium was established for the Chipewa Indians of Minnesota. Nurses in the Indian Service now recieve $1,500 a year, with quarters, heat and light.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theater

The 19th edition of Barney Gerard's Follies of the Day announced as the attraction at the Palace theater for Monday only Sept. 1st is a production unique in showdom in that the principal vehicle used to amuse the audience is pantomime, which is one of the oldest forms of entertainment. In contrast, one of the most modern inventions, the radio, gives the basis of action for the story that is interwoven throughout. Practically all of the 28 spectacular scenes are hooked up with the idea that the show is being broadcasted to the world at large, and the songs, dances and comedy, are being sent to the great open spaces. Boso Snyder, the reputation as a funmaker is so well established that it scarce needs comment. Elga May, formerly with Fred Stone, is the leading female principal, and offers both songs and dances that are the latest word in this form of endeavor. Snyder is again supported by Sam Green, and the rest of the cast includes the old mag and new favorites, such as Harry Seymour, John B. Williams, Bert Mathews, Beth Clark, Marie Tyler, the Avalon Four, Scotty Weston, Frank JuBan, and many others. Twenty young chorus girls chosen for their symmetry and beauty round out the company. These have been trained by Seymour Felix who is a past master in getting all that there is in the way of dance steps from a bevy of girls. Beside the action of the offering as a whole, there are several vaudeville specialties which carry their own individuality. Gorgeous crowns as well as the latest Parisian modes carry a special appeal to the ladies who make a practice of attending the matinees and evening performances.

Palace Theater

Douglas Fairbanks will be seen in the marvelous Arabian Nights tale, The Thief of Bagdad, at the Palace theater, Sept. 4, 5, 6. It was, according to all accounts, the great good fortune of the screen, that Douglas Fairbanks came upon this amazingly romantic love story and that he undertook to make it into a photoplay. Moving picture critics, in such cities as The Thief of Bagdad has been shown, have been unanimous in asserting that it is the greatest film ever made.

The Thief of Bagdad is no mere spectacle; no mere bringing together of crowds to appal the multitude. When a crowd or even an army is desired the Thief simply takes a seed from a box, throws it on the ground, and lo! a huge army with banners springs from the earth. The sort of thing is the woof and woof of The Thief of Bagdad. With Douglas Fairbanks it in the story that is all important, and The Thief of Bagdad is a rousing dramatic narrative told with enchanting charm. This picture will positively not be shown at any other place in this city this year.

Palace Theater

Cornered, which was unfurled at the Palace theater yesterday, was a display of rare talent. It seems as if instead of suiting the characters to the roles, the Warner Bros. had each characterization written for a particular actor.

Marie Prevost, to whom is given the stellar honors, does some admirable acting in her dual role as Maragaret Waring and Mary Brennan, and John Roche, who takes the male lead, must be given credit also for carrying away some of the honors. Raymond Hatton as Nick The Dope, and Rockcliffe Fellowes, as Jerry, The Gent, are as convincing as the authors of the play meant them to be.

Alberta Vaughn in her latest Telephone Girl story No. 6. Cameo comedy, Pathe Review and Famous Palace orchestra completes the program.

Broad Theater

One of the most daring pay roll hold-ups on record has just become known through the press of Frank Scott, ex-sheriff of Las Vegas, and his accomplice known as Mexican Joe.

An unusually heavy pay roll was being seen under guard from the county seat to Las Vegas by stage coach which ran between the two points. When the coach was nearly at the top of the hill near Twin Forks, midway between the two points, the driver and guard were suddenly startled by the appearance of two masked men who quickly ordered them to throw up their hands. One of the hold-up men secured the strong box while the other covered the driver and the guard. The box was broken open and the currency was removed and placed in two sacks and tied to the pummels of the hold-up men's horses, on which the two men quickly mounted and galloped off into the foothills.

The hold-up was witnessed by a cowboy at a distance, and how he trailed the bandits and unmasked one as the ex-sheriff, is but one of the countless thrilling episodes which make The Man from Texas playing at the Breed theater today and Saturday, one of the most exciting features on the screen.

William Duncan will also be seen in the third chapter of The Fast Express and the Pathe news and a Sunshine comedy make up the remainder of the bill.

Broadway Theatre.

Again the patrons of the Broadway theatre were enthusiastic in their praise of the wonderful vaudeville and picture show as presented for the first time yesterday at the Broadway theatre.

Girls with a great deal of ability which is given dynamic force with delicate charm, open the show. The McCaulister Sisters are juvenile contortionists and to say that they made a hit is putting it mildly.

In Immigration, a comedy skit presented by Dave Genaro and Frank Caverly, you'll get plenty of laughs and some pathos. It is a fine skit.

Sam Hearn, orator, vocal-ist and violin-ist, is just what he claims to be. He literally took the house by storm.

The closing act was also the feature on this program. Twists & Twirls introduce a clever sextette who dance their way into your hearts. Pretty scenery sets this act so that it towers above similar acts.

Score another triumph for Priscilla Dean, charming star of the Universal Pictures Corporation. Also score another triumph for Universal, for in presenting The Storm Daughter, which opened yesterday at the Broadway theatre, it had a distinct achievement. Tom Santschi, William B. Davidson, J. Farrel McDonald, Bert Roach and Cyril Chadwick, are names widely known to devotees of the screen forms of entertainment, and all have forceful parts in The Storm Daughter, and contribute much toward its perfection of type.

The second adult death from the infantile paralysis epidemic occurred in Syracuse when Mrs. Marguerite W. Clark, a registered nurse, fell victim to the disease.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

At the school grounds in Dayville a copious flow of fine, cold water has been struck at a depth of 50 feet, in the course of an artesian well drilling operation. The success of the venture is hailed with delight by members of the town school committee, for it assures an ample supply of excellent water for use in the school building, which will come into use for sessions again Tuesday of next week.

The old well on the school grounds has not been in use for a considerable period, the water being found to have become contaminated. Last year water for drinking purposes was brought from a well some distance from the school. Development of the artesian well will relieve that situation. The flow from the new well is at the rate of five gallons per minute—300 gallons per hour—this being more than an ample supply for all needs of the school.

Of special interest to the Polish Catholic people of Danielson and vicinity is the announcement of Rev. Joseph Deschaux, M. S., that a Polish priest is to be at Danielson this (Friday) evening, Saturday and Sunday to minister especially to their spiritual needs. Word of this visitation will be passed about among the Polish people today (Friday).

It appears to be a difficult matter to to arouse interest in things political among the rank and file of party organizations in August. At least that is the case in Danielson this year. An attendance comparable to corporal's guards was the rule at the caucuses called here this week to name delegations to the coming state conventions of the republican and democratic parties. Many hundreds of voters paid no heed to the caucus calls, though the business to be before them was important.

Difficulties caused by the heavy northeast storm of Tuesday were reflected for the public here and in nearby territory by the uncertainty of the street lighting service Tuesday and Wednesday nights, when it was much after the historic circumstances of "Off Agin, On Agin Finnigen." There were periods when the lights were on and other periods when they were not. However, it was stated Thursday that the troubles had been adjusted.

Clerks in stores in Danielson view with regret the passing of the summer half holiday period. They are especially regretful this year because of their failure—last winter—to induce favorable action through the Chamber of Commerce or individual business men to extend the half holiday period throughout the year, excepting in the Christmas holiday season. That proposition—as to closing—apparently is dead as a doornail. But it is still contended by the clerks that, in many instances, half holidays for them could be arranged without suspending the business of the places where they are employed. That thing has been done for years by one store here and has worked out splendidly.

Clerks are one of the few remaining groups of workers who do not regularly get a half holiday. In addition they are called upon to work some evenings each week. Why there is opposition to granting them a concession now generally enjoyed by so many classes of workers is one of the puzzles of the times, but it is a fact, nevertheless, that there is that opposition.

The caucuses to name Killingly's candidates for town offices are just ahead—scheduled for the early days of September. To date there is little to indicate that there will be any radical changes in the lineup of the republican and democratic tickets as they have been presented on town election days for several years past. Already in sight is a sharp contest for the office of tax collector. Very naturally the republicans will have a candidate for this office, likely in the person of Attorney Louis A. Wolsard. It will be recalled that Killingly elected a tax collector from the democratic party last fall in the person of James R. Walsh, who has made a splendid record. Mr. Walsh is the first democratic tax collector in Killingly for time out of memory. The good showing he has made insures his getting a great many votes on the first Monday in October, and that particular thing is what is going to make the contest for the collectorship interesting.

Misses Andiana and Almira Bernier, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Bernier of Reynolds street, have returned here after attending the sessions of a summer school at Hartford.

Exodus of occupants of summer camps on the shores of lakes in this vicinity will begin next Tuesday, although some are planning to remain in their quarters during at least a part of September.

From the Norton farm on the Moosup pond road, not distant from the old Hubbard's sawmill, comes the report of the loss of practically all the fruit on 50 heavily laden trees, as the result of Tuesday's storm. The fruit, just ripening, was blown from the trees and ruined.

Danielson relatives are at Baltic this (Friday) morning to attend the funeral services for Mrs. Henry Reeves, mother of Abel L. Reeves, and for many years a resident of Danielson.

The corn crop hereabouts was hard hit by Tuesday's storm and blow. In the aggregate, many acres of it were knocked flat and damaged in such degree that the loss represents a great deal of money.

From Camp Eustis, Va., where the boys of the Service battery have rounded out a weke of duty, come letters and cards telling of the interests of camp life—the work and the play that goes to make this annual tour of duty so interesting.

Tomorrow, Aug. 30, brings the close for the season of the Y. M. C. A. camp at Black pond in the town of Woodstock. The camp has been open since June 27.

Promoter Frank Barber has plans for staging a series of boxing exhibitions at the Casino arena here as soon as cooler weather comes, probably late in September.

Mrs. Mary Taylor and Miss Helen Aylward will return here Sunday after spending a week with relatives in New York.

Mrs. W. H. Judson remains seriously ill at her home on Academy street.

Though little has been said about the matter, investigation is being made of a break a few days since at a store in one of the villages of the town of Killingly.

A delegation of local Elks and their friends were at Willimantic Thursday evening for the opening of the Elks' fair in that city.

Danielson will have a large repre- sentation at the Old Home gathering in South Killingly on Labor day. There is close affiliation between the Congregational church at South Killingly, where the exercises of the day will be held, and the Westfield Congregational church of Danielson.

PUTNAM

Leo Vannose of Putnam, after having his freedom for over a month, was taken back to the state reformatory at Cheshire, Thursday afternoon by an officer who came after him.

Following Vannose's escape, the reformatory offered a reward of $25 for his capture. Sergeant Laird of the Putnam police force, who captured Vannose, is entitled to the reward. It has been customary in such cases in former years for the common council to allow a police officer to accept rewards.

While Vannose was at liberty he stole a quantity of clothing and other personal property from a rooming house in Nashua, N. H., and the Nashua officers had notified the Putnam police that Vannose was wanted here.

Vannose admitted the theft, while locked up in the Putnam police station and turned over a stick pin valued at $35. He also turned over a check for a dress suit case which he had left at a shoe shine place in Worcester, also a pawn ticket from a Worcester loan company. The total value of the goods stolen was $188.06. Vannose stated that most of the things would be found in the dress suit case. He said that a watch he took he had sold for a dollar.

Sergeant George Laird was in plain clothes, Wednesday night. He saw a Ford automobile pass him and thought he recognized Vanpose. He blew his whistle for the car to stop and jumped on the running board. He saw that his suspicions were correct and took Vanpose into custody. He also saw that the driver of the car, Walter Bodo, was drunk, and arrested him.

In the city court Thursday morning, Bodo was sentenced to 10 days in jail for driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor and was fined $20 for being drunk.

Vannose told the officers that he had become a trusty at the Cheshire reformatory, where he was sent on June 6, 1923, after he had pleaded guilty to breaking and entering, at a session of the Windham county superior court. He was allowed considerable liberty and decided to leave. He went to Boston and then to Nashua.

That relatives of Vannose were cognizant of his whereabouts following his escape from the reformatory was evidenced by a torn letter found in the room he vacated in Nashua. This letter had been pieced together by the officers and showed that relatives in Putnam had sent Vannose money. It also showed that it was in reply to a letter asking for more money, as it stated that no more could be sent, as the Putnam bank had failed. It also upbraided Vannose for not going to Canada, instead spending the money sent him on himself. It also showed that Vannose had gone by the name of Leo Ducharme in Nashua.

Vannose has been a trouble to Putnam police ever since he was in his teens and he has not advanced far one of them. He was arrested a number of times for petty thefts and breaks and when caught always admitted everything. The last time he was arrested he admitted a number of small breaks in the city that had been bothering the police to clear up. It was for this that he was sentenced.

Vannose had no intention, he said, of coming to Putnam. According to his story he met a Putnam friend in Worcester and was brought to Webster. Vannose sent word to boys he knew in Putnam to come up and see him. Bodo was one of the boys who answered the invitation. To celebrate they bought a quart of whiskey and then didn't care what happened. The quart bottle with a small quantity of the liquor was found in the automobile. Vannose has also been in trouble in Hartford and Springfield.

The check for the dress suit case and the loan company's ticket will be turned over to the Nashua police.

Two cases on the criminal docket will be watched with interest by Putnam people when they are brought up at the session of the criminal side of the Windham county superior court which opens in Willimantic on Tuesday next. Both involve violations of the liquor law. One of the defendants is Sam Smith, proprietor of the City hotel, the other Patrolman John Ryan of the Putnam police force. The arrest of Smith and testimony given at his trial in the Putnam city court led to the arrest of the patrolman.

Smith was arrested after a search of his hotel and the finding of a small quantity of alleged whiskey. He had previously been arrested for violating the liquor law and served 15 days in the county jail at Brooklyn, in company with eight or ten other Putnam men arrested on evidence furnished by so called spotters.

Probable cause was found by Judge Geissler, after Smith's trial, and he was held for the superior court in a bond of a thousand dollars. The defendant did not take the witness stand.

During the Smith trial, Smith's wife and daughter testified that Patrolman John Ryan and been accustomed to driving Smith's automobile on trips to procure intoxicating liquor. They said that they saw a lead of beer arrive at the hotel about July 1, 1923, and that Ryan was driving the automobile.

Ryan denied ever having driven the Smith car except on one occasion and that for a short distance on School street, Putnam. No action on the case was taken by the mayor or common council but Ryan was arrested later on a bench warrant and furnished bonds of $2,000 for his appearance.

Following his arrest Ryan petitioned the common council for a leave of absence from duty until his case had been disposed of and the petition was granted.

Ryan represented that he had no funds for his defence and Attorney William A. King of Willimantic was appointed special public defender to handle the Ryan case as Attorney Charles L. Torrey, public defender for Windham county, who is also corporation counsel of the city, felt himself disqualified to act in the case.

The following committee has been named by a citizens' committee to co-operate with the war department in its plans for National Defense Day: Chairman, Charles A. Richard; secretary, H. E. Linderson; John J. McGarry, William P. Warren, Michael White, Dr. E. F. Perry, Alexander Gilman, John F. Reardon, John H. Moss, Ernest C. Morse, David Breault, Ralph E. Jenkins, George L. Padgett, Alfred Pigeon, A. F. Ralston, Joseph J. Dupre, Warren S. Ames and Eugene Berthiume. An executive committee to draw up tentative plans consists of Pigeon, McGarry, Perry White and Morse.

Funeral services for Mrs. Jeanette Calista Case, wife of William D. Case, who died in Fairlawn hospital, Worcester, Monday morning, were held at the Case home on School street, Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. H. C. Buckingham of Webster officiated and the bearers were: Asa Ross and Everett Carver of Putnam, Chauncey Austin of Webster, and Daniel Brayton of West Thompson. Burial was in Grove Street cemetery.

It is reported that G. Harold Gil- patric seems more depressed in spirits at the Day Kimball hospital. This leads his relatives to believe that he realizes that his sight is gone. Rumors that he was to be presented before a U. S. commissioner for the purpose of fixing bonds, this week, have so far proved unfounded.

It was children's afternoon in the Chautauqua tent, Thursday, and there was a large gathering of children for whom special encertainment was provided. Frederick C. Trappe had charge of the Jollie Juniors and knows how to entertain children. In the evening the week's program closed with the full concert, Russian Cathedral Sextette, a large audience attending.

The annual field day of the Me- chanicsville Athletic association, postponed from last Saturday on account of rain, is to be held Saturday. There will be a series of athletic events including boxing, baseball and races. The ball game will be between the K. K. H. of Putnam and Mechanicsville. There will be three boxing events: Jimmie McKenna of Mechanicsville will meet Sticky Winters of Webster at 138 pounds. The races will include 50 and 100-yard dashes, sack races, potato races, ball throwing, etc. The meet is open to the public.

Advice to Young Men.

"A person who cannot succeed without being in a herd ought to organize his own herd. My advice to a young man is to learn to pitch in and fight his battles single-handed. Sheep and goats run in droves, but lions and tigers do not."—E. W. Howe.

I Want to Be Happy—Fox Trot / I Never Care About Tomorrow—Fox Trot	Jan Garber and His Orchestra	19404	.75
A dashing fox trot, from "No Nannette," which will bring happiness to dancers. "I Never Care" is a fine companion. Irrepressible dance records.

PERSHING'S RETIREMENT.

It is only a matter of about two weeks now before General John J. Pershing becomes 64 years of age. On that day, September 13, he will be automatically retired because that is the provision of the law and there is no opportunity under it to make exceptions.

Automatic retirement means the withdrawal of General Pershing from all connection with the military affairs of the country and the placing of him on half pay. This law does not mean that it has been found that when a man reaches 64 he is of no further use to the country or to the army. It is an age fixed upon for the purpose of keeping a steady forward movement in the military establishment and giving a chance to younger men. It is an arbitrary plan which prevents the service being handicapped by old and enfeebled men at the top while the younger and more efficient officers are forced to stagnate or are tempted to get out of the service because there is no chance for them to obtain promotions.

There are occasions when it seems unfortunate that the rule must be applied. General Pershing has been at the head of the army during the period when the country was engaged in its worst war, when the world was involved in its greatest clash of arms. He has had experience like none other. He is in full mental and physical vigor and capable of giving the country the benefit of his experience and knowledge for a number of years to come. It is only natural under the circumstances that there should have been such a recognition of his services that there was a desire to have him retained in active service, continued as general for life and not be required to experience a cut in his salary. What was sought in his behalf was no different than that accorded Admiral Dewey in recognition of his work during the Spanish-American war.

Legislation to this end failed in the last session of congress. It will be impossible to now prevent the retirement law going into operation in the case of General Pershing, but it is possible for the matter to get the attention of the next session of congress and belated steps taken to make up for the failure of the last session.

THE STORM.

From the stories which are told by incoming vessels those who happened to be at sea were treated with quite as little consideration for safety and comfort as those on land during the recent storm along the Atlantic coast. Call it a West Indian hurricane or something else, there is no getting away from the fact that it raised havoc. Not in a long time here there been as many trees uprooted in this vicinity as there were on Tuesday, with a large amount of damage in the aggregate was caused to property of all kinds. Fruit raisers stand to suffer heavy losses.

When a storm is reported as heading out to sea those on land may give a sigh of relief over what they anticipate missing, but it can be understood that such disturbances as are missed by those on terra firma are being thrown into the face of those on the high seas.

That was what the vessels along the Atlantic seaboard were obliged to contend with, and from all accounts the liner Arabic must have been in the very center of the storm. From the battering it received, the appearance of the ship and the condition of the passengers and crew it was indeed very fortunate that a distressing marine disaster did not result. Many were the ships that experienced difficulties but the list of actual wrecks was much smaller than might have been expected in view of the severity of the storm.

It was not a storm that descended without warning but one which closely followed the predictions and New England received only such treatment as was forecasted by the reports telling of the progress of the gale as it moved up the coast. It is on such occasions that the real fury of the storm king is fully demonstrated and certainly none will envy those aboard the Arabic their experiences. Those who are the kind that scorn the sea captains are willing to [illegible]

HIGHWAY PARKING.

Parking on the highways is not surrounded with the same degree of safety today that it was ten years ago. There was the time when it was possible to haul up along the side of a main thoroughfare with the feeling of certainty that everything would be all right, that there would be no danger of being hit and there would be no possibility of being in the way.

That isn't so any longer. With the large increase in the number of automobiles there is a fairly steady stream of machines in both directions, and every machine that stops throws out one line of traffic. It is even getting to be a serious matter for the person who is obliged to undertake repairs on the left side of his car or even to change a tire.

As a result of a study of this situation the board of the American Automobile association offers these suggestions:

"Do not seek main highways for picnic purposes. Use the secondary roads where there are plenty of opportunities for parking off the road.

"In the event of puncture try to get the car as far off the traveled portion of the road as possible before changing the tire, and in no case stop on a curve or near the top of a hill.

"Never stop opposite a car that has parked along the road. If you want to ask your way stop your car at least 150 feet beyond and walk back to inquire.

"You are not safe sitting in a car while it is parked on a highway. Furthermore you are a source of danger to those who are obliged to turn out to pass you.

"Parking a car at night on a main highway is doubly dangerous. You never know what minute the tail light may burn out."

The need of giving greater attention than ever to highway conditions is becoming more and more manifest. There was a time when an automobiling might drive as slow as he pleased, but today there is a demand that the slow ones drive faster and the consequence is sure to be that traffic in general is steadily moving at a more rapid rate.

HOW THE MID WEST FEELS.

New England has been having a visitation from a party of 1200 grangers from states in the middle west. They have been "doing" the east as a large party and in addition to seeing the points of interest in this region have been giving expression in their own way which can be regarded as reflecting the sentiment of that part of the country from which they came.

As a part of their visit to New England they included Vermont and naturally Plymouth was [illegible]. There was a desire to greet the president and they were heartily welcomed by President Coolidge. The grangers are not politicians and they are not making their tour as such. Naturally they are concerned in the welfare of the country, as well as their own particular line of effort, and when they volunteered statements to the effect that the republican ticket would win in November and that they were going to support it there was disclosed the way the political wind in that part of the country is blowing much better than as if the indication had come from a political weather-vane.

It is possible of course for a part of such a number to be favorably disposed toward the republican party without all being. It might be expected that there would be some in the crowd who did not think politically quite the same as the others, but what must be regarded as an evidence of general sentiment is to be gained from the fact that all joined the Home Town Coolidge club which is and has been a Coolidge political organization from before the days of the Cleveland convention.

The middle west grangers have disclosed their attitude on an important question, and in so doing they have unquestionably spoken for the great body of the people in their section of the country. Representing twelve of the middle west states they tell how the wind is blowing.

BUS LINES.

That the railroads should be displaying opposition to the establishment of bus lines which are calculated to affect their business can occasion no surprise. It is the same plea that was entered when parallel trolley lines were constructed and when a company which has been to heavy expense for the acquisition and construction of roadbed and the purchase of rolling stock is confronted with a competitor which has a large part of this done for him, and intends to draw upon that field which the railroads serve, there is a manifest unfairness and the protests are not likely to go unheeded.

The situation is not so different from the unfair competition to which the jitneys were subjecting the trolley roads until a proper regulation was established, but it is not improbable that it will force the railroads to a change in operation methods such as increased service through the introduction of gasoline or other cars that can be operated at less expense and be run more often than the steam cars.

Where railroads have abandoned passenger service, or where they have reduced it to the point where little service is rendered, there can be no serious opposition to the establishment of bus lines. In fact it is not out of the question for the steam lines to consider the operation of busses themselves for short lines and where present service does not give a proper return.

Plans, however, for the invasion of the railroad's province for the purpose of attracting its patronage deserve to be regarded as an injustice and get unfavorable consideration. Where they offer no competition there can be no objection and public convenience will justify their establishment.

OLD LOVE LETTERS

"Mercy!" cried the excitable lady when she discovered her just-married daughter and son-in-law in the act of touching a match to a pile of things stuffed into the family fireplace. "Whatever is all that you are burning up?"

"That?" repeated the bride, pausing in the act of destruction. "Oh, I've been cleaning out my desk before I moved it, and of course I can't take all this stuff—there's no place to pack it away in our new apartment. It's just my letters to Bob and those he wrote me, and—"

"Forever more!" the excitable lady gasped, waving her hands frantically. "Stop it this minute—blow out that match! I never heard of such an awful thing—you two burning up your love letters! What are you going to do when you are 75 years old and want to read them over?"

"None of the 75s I know seem to spend much time perusing their old love letters!" defended the bride. "Mostly they are hunting rheumatism cures. Anyhow, what'd we do with 'em."

"Do with them?" repeated the excitable lady, somewhat vaguely. "Why—put them some place!"

"There isn't such a thing in our flat!" the bride told her amiably. "There's the four-foot closet in the hall and the other closet that has to hold every stick of clothes we have!

"I made up my mind long ago that my home was not going to be one of those places that have boxes and bundles neatly tied up and labeled 'silk wrap, 1895,' or 'blankets to be rebound,' 'Will's summer suit, 1910,' 'colored silk pieces,' 'summer hats,' 'odds and ends' and items like that such as have greeted me every time I have gone up into the family attic.

"And as for these love letters, I can't say I think so much of them as love letters. I might as well confess that I have long harbored a suspicion that Bob when he was youthful must have had one of those lectures by a fond parent on the subject of never putting anything on paper he should not like to hear read out loud in court. Why, I can recollect only two really love letters that he ever wrote me—once after we had parted forever and the other after I had made a scene over his dancing with that Licorish girl who was so crazy about him—"

"She was not!" declared the bridegroom vehemently. "And while we are on the subject, what about the epistles you wrote me? Why, any one could have chopped them up with some salt and made a freezer of ice cream very nicely! Say, I don't remember those two letters—"

"Well, you did!" his bride declared, beginning to poke around amid the fireplace rubbish contemplatively. "But if I should go through all this stuff and find them what would I do with them after I got them? If I leave them in my desk or bureau the cook will read them when I am out or else you'll grab them up when you want an envelope to figure on and that'll be their finish."

"There was one of yours I'd kinda like to keep," mused the bridegroom, bending over the fire place. "The one in which you said—"

"I am sure I never did!" insisted the bride shaking her head. "I just hate mushiness on paper! Why, there are millions of these—we can never sort them over! And I still don't see the point in keeping them! What good does that package up in the attic do you, mother? It has been there ever since I was born! Have you ever looked into it?"

"N-n-no," admitted the excitable lady. "But I know it's there, you see! And some day I shall read them all over! Why, I wouldn't destroy them for anything!"

The bride and groom regarded each other helplessly, and shook their heads a trifle pityingly. Then each of them struck a match and lit the fireplace contents. "Its lots better," they said "than to leave them for somebody else to burn up!"

"Well," said the excitable lady as she left them to their practical holocaust, "thank heaven I lived when people were just downright silly instead of sensible."—Chicago News.

Griffith Saw His First Play at 18

David W. Griffith decided what his life work should be, but he had to alter his plans many times and undergo severe hardships on the way to attainment.

As a boy in La Grange, Ky., he listened in wonder to stories read by his sister, and received to be a great writer. At 18 he left public school and started as a reporter on a Louisville newspaper.

Assigned to write theatrical notes, he saw a play for the first time in his life, and made up his mind to be a dramatist. Told that all great playwrights started as actors, he obtained a place with a stock company. The salary was small, and he ran an elevator in a dry goods store to provide a living.

Next he was an actor with a traveling company, earning $18 a week in season. During one summer he sold books. In another between-season period he shoveled ore in the hold of a ship.

After several years on the road, he went to New York to be a writer. Success finally came with the acceptance of a poem, a story and a play. The play was rewritten but failed.

Seeing a moving picture, he resolved to be a scenario writer, prepared a picture play and sent it to a producing company, but never heard its fate. He wrote one for the Biograph company, and was paid $15. Then he decided to be a movie picture director.

Although he received little encouragement, he "hung around" the Biograph studio until the illness of a director gave him a chance. He introduced new ideals. The producers did not like them, but the public did, and for six years he made one and two-reel pictures.

At 35 he started making The Birth of a Nation. Originally it was planned to cost $50,000, but expenses ran ten times that amount, and he had to spend all his time away from the studio raising money. Then came the fight to save the picture from suppression. That cost him $300,000 in attorneys' fees, but the success of the production made motion picture history.

Griffith made other large films, became rich, and now, at 48, is reported to have said he will make only two more big productions, then retire.

Tomorrow—Mrs. Sage's 30 Years of Privation.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Vivisection.

Mr. Editor: Since the death of Dr. William O. Stillman, there has been a great deal of controversy regarding his opinion on the subject of vivisection. Dr. Stillman was president of the International Federation of Societies for the Prevention of Cruelty. I was a personal friend of his. I lived a few doors from his headquarters in Albany, N. Y., and we had many talks on the subject. I therefore know of his aversion towards vivisection. He called it the horror of horrors. Dr. Stillman was a graduate from the Albany Medical College, which makes his opinion of importance. In looking over my correspondence with him, I came across a letter dated Nov. 6, 1923, from which I quote the following lines. Of course, in time public sentiment will change, so that it can be made a national issue. Personally I am very much opposed to vivisection. When I wish to make a public statement in regard to the subject, it would be best for me to prepare it specially for that purpose. Now that Dr. Stillman's lips are silenced in death, I think it a duty I owe the public to make known his opinion. I heard from an intimate friend of his, that at the time of his death he was preparing an article, for the Humane Review, advising all Humane and S. P. C. A. societies not to comply with the request that they give over the animals to the universities practicing vivisection. Hoping through the columns of your valuable paper, you will enlighten the public on Dr. Stillman's opinion on vivisection.

Yours for the greater education.

Mr. Editor: I wish to correct a statement which I saw in the Jewett City items of August 21st, stating that "announcements are out for the Pachaug grange fair," etc.

Pachaug grange is having no fair, therefore it would be correct to say, announcements are out for the Pachaug Fair Association.

PRAGUE

Prague is to be a new king of center—the airway center of central Europe.

"Originally Prague was a center of learning, then of religious controversy, both oral and military, more recently it was a railroad hub, and now it is the junction for airways radiating to Paris, Warsaw, Berlin, and southeastward to Budapest, Belgrade and Bucharest," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"To stang at one bank of the Moldau and scan the stately Gothic towers of Charles Bridge, with grim and barracks-like Hardcany Palace beyond and an airplane above, affords an uncanny melange of the medieval and modern.

"The white and black towers on the hill recall that the wall was thrown up by Ottakar, Bohemia's Alfred the Great, more than six centuries ago, and there he assigned ten knights and 300 armed men always to be on guard.

"Then the memory clicks forward to the time when Frederick son-in-law of James I. of Bible version fame, brought his English wife there and the methodical Bohemian ladies whispered behind their fans that the alien queen had no settled hours either for her meals or her prayers and—strange touch of 1924—she and her English ladies wore their gowns far too low!

"Then, too, the fateful time when the delegation from the Estates paraded up to the palace, pitched two royal officials out of the window and inadvertently started the Thirty Years War—as casual an act as that of the fanatic young Serb who fired the most disastrous shot in history at Sarajevo in 1914.

"But one must not linger too long with recollections if he is to see Prague, and catch the Paris airplane!

"After the war when Czecho-slavakia's trademark began to appear on the matches, toys and glassware we bought in Main Street, U. S. A., department stores, the country won the nickname of the Yankee-Land of Europe.

"A stroll around Prague's historic shrines emphasizes the peculiar facility Bohemia had for keeping ahead of time—even in her history. Everybody recalls that John Huss fostered a Reformation in Bohemia a century before Martin Luther crystallized the movement in Germany. But even before Huss one finds Conrad Waldhauser preaching sermons denouncing luxury, extravagance, and women's immodest attire—sermons of a kind that are being preached in New York and Jones' Crossing today.

"This Billy Sunday of the thirteen-sixties crowded the Tyn Church, which still stands, and he persuaded women to discard jewelry and to give up their gold-trimmed gowns, and pearl necklaces.

"Then came Milic, a Smedley Butler of three centuries ago who 'cleaned up' Prague even to the point of 'padlocking' and later destroying a quarter of ill-fame known as 'Little Venice.'

"But the most amazing modern touch about the annals of Prague, perhaps, are the records of how Wenceslas engaged in retail price fixing. He would go incognito to shops of the meat dealers and bakers and ask their prices. If he found them too high he would order their stock given to the poor and the merchants punished.

"At a time when the memoirs of neighbor nations are engaged largely with amours and intrigue, the musty records of Prague disclose theological disputation. It thrashed out its religious questions long before Wittenberg and Geneva emerged into theological prominence.

"In 1872 nearly a hundred church bells tolled for the funeral of Ottakar. Today the spires of the city look like the pikes and spears of a warrior host; church domes suggest the round-topped helmets of Swedish invaders.

"One of the less known and most interesting sights of the city is the Jewish graveyard. Here 12,000 or more moss-grown stones crowd each other, for the cemetery became so congested that bodies of later burials are on top of the earlier ones. Many stones have symbols of the tribe to which the buried person belonged—two hands in a gesture of blessing mark the tribe of Aaron, a pitcher denotes the Levites, a cluster of grapes the House of Israel.

"There is a tradition that Jews settled on the site of Prague before the crucifixion, hence they had no hand in the slaying of Christ and are peculiarly blessed. The explanation probably was invented to account for the exceptional treatment accorded the Jews of Prague when their kinsmen were being persecuted elsewhere.

"Czechoslovakia now knows Prague as Praha, and the Moldau as the Vltava. The difficulty of giving new names to geographic entities which are famous in history, song and story would deter a less persistent people. One of the most notable victories of the Czechs is their lingual triumph in resurrecting their language after centuries of disuse. It is acclaimed a unique feat in world lexicography.

"It was undertaken by a group of scholars, and achieved in the face of the most formidable of all obstacles—a social contempt, because those who talked Bohemian were set down as peasants.

"It has been said that Prague resisted Germanization only to yield to the faults of her friends—the American bar and jazz, Scotch whiskey and French cabarets. These are excrescences; the visitor is more deeply impressed by the adoption of card-index files and typewriters that click even though the hours are marked by a crowing cock and the parade of the Apostles on the famous astronomical clock, dating back two years before Columbus discovered America.

"Nor can anyone think Prague's musical taste is decadent who listens to a concert, probably featuring Bohemia's native Dvorak and Smetana, in the great open air theater at Sharka, a few miles out from the city. Here a natural wooden background forms the setting for music and drama, and in the latter entertainment Shakespeare is a favorite.

"The approaching visit of the Prince of Wales to America lends special interest to the origin of the British heir's famous insignia known as the 'Prince of Wales feathers.' The emblem was the badge of blind King John, of Bohemia, who, at the battle of Crecy, refusing to retreat before the victorious English, exclaimed, 'So will it God, it shall not be that a King of Bohemia flies from the battlefield.'"

THE SPRING JOURNEY

Oh, green was the corn as I rode on my way,
And bright were the dews on the blossoms of May,
And dark was the sycamore's shade to behold,
And the oak's tender leaf was of emerald and gold.

The thrush in his holly, the lark from his cloud,
Their chorus of rapture sang jovil and loud;
From the soft, vernal sky, to the soft, grassy ground,
There was beauty above me, beneath and around.

The mild southern breeze brought a shower from the hill,
And yet, though it left me all drooping and chill,
I felt a new pleasure, as onward I sped,
To gaze where the rainbow gleaned broad overhead.

Oh, such be life's journey, and such be our skill,
To lose in its blessings the sense of its ill;
Through sunshine and shower may our progress be even,
And our tears add a charm to the prospect of Heaven!

By DAVID CORY

Hummingbird Methods

"Mother, Mother!" shouted Little Jack Rabbit, as Lady Love, his pretty bunny lady mother came hopping up the winding path through the bramble bushes. "I've got something to tell you."

"Wait a minute while I put away these carrots," she answered. "Cousin Cottontail made me a present," and careful little Lady Love bustled into the kitchen.

"Cuckuu, cuckoo!" and three times more.

Then the little bird closed her clock-house door.

"Dearest me, I had no idea it was so late," sighed Lady Love. "Maybe I'd better stew the carrots at once. I'll be out in a minute or three. I must put on the kettle in time for tea," she called out to her small bunny son. But it didn't take even as long as that, and in a jiffy-piffy she hopped out on the back porch. "What has my bunny boy to tell me?" she asked, sitting down beside him.

"Mrs. Hummingbird sticks little pieces of moss all over her nest to hide it," exclaimed Little Jack Rabbit.

"What kind of paste does she use?" asked Lady Love, pinching her bunny boy's ear,—not hard, you know; just gently, tweeky, tweeky.

"Ha, ha!" laughed the little rabbit. "She doesn't use paste. That wouldn't do at all. The rain would soon wash it away. She uses bits of spider web."

"You don't say so," exclaimed his pretty bunny mother.

"Yes, I do," he exclaimed. "And I saw her do it with my own two eyes."

"Why, you'd think her nest was a knot on the limb," went on the excited little rabbit. "It's so well covered with pieces of lichen that it looks as it has just grown there, all by itself."

"Just the same, I'd rather have a little bungalow," answered Lady Love. "Our little home suits me."

"Of course it does, and me, too," laughed the bunny boy. "But we're not hummingbirds. We're rabbits."

"Isn't Mrs. Hummingbird afraid Chatterbox, the Red Squirrel, will find it?" asked Lady Love.

"He almost did," answered the little rabbit. "But Mrs. Hummingbird never moved. She sat as still as a mouse inside of her cute little moss-covered house."

"What, is it finished already?" asked the lady rabbit.

"No, no, no," answered her bunny boy. "That was last year. She hasn't finished this year's nest. But she will in a day or two."

all of a sudden spouted the tiny cuckoo bird. I wonder how she knew. Maybe she was peeking out of her little clock-house window.

"Mercy me!" exclaimed Lady Love, hopping into the kitchen. "I forgot all about supper. I hope the carrots aren't burned. Thank you, little bird."

But the carrots were all right, and as soon as the big red cloth was spread and the dishes set on the table the two little rabbits sat down to eat with a tiny red footstool at Lady Love's feet. And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

Stories That Recall Others

Question of Kinship.

Big brother George was taking the family for an auto ride. He stopped at a wayside refreshment stand and bought pop for the party and, having his hands full of bottles for the older members, he told the little folks to go get theirs.

So Lucy and Charlie went running in. Setting the pop on the counter the proprietor asked: "Is that your pop?"

"No," answered little Lucy, "that's my brother."

The Silent Partner.

Business was slack and the chief clerk having no aversion to cards, started up a game of solitaire on the counter. After a while Bill strolled in. Holding his pipe in midair he watched the game with dropped jaw and wide eyes.

"W-What you doin'?" he asked at last.

"Playing solitaire," the clerk answered without looking up.

"Well, who the dickens you playin' with?" Bill asked in amazement.

Full of Stalls.

The booze squad was raiding a blind tiger. The proprietor of the place experienced considerable difficulty in opening the doors to admit the raiders, thus, as the officers thought, giving other occupants of the place time to destroy evidence.

"You're as full of stalls as a livery stable," said the sergeant, when he gained admittance. Incidentally he procured evidence enough to make an arrest.

If some men knew themselves they would be ashamed of the acquaintance.

At a special town meeting today, the second held in the past two weeks, the citizens voted 161 to 91 against the project. At the special town meeting last week the vote was 67 to 64 against the proposed new building.

H. S. Kellogg was appointed chairman of the meeting today and John Condren, clerk. The principal speakers were Edward T. Bunvan and S. P. The town school committee, it appears, has authorized extensive repairs to the school buildings, which have been in progress during the summer.

TROPHIES ARE PRESENTED TO PLAY CENTERS

On Thursday evening the city recreation commission held its second annual exhibition on the Academy Campus. The program started at 7 o'clock when over 3,000 people gathered to witness the various events which demonstrated to the public the program of educational recreation which has been carried out on the eight local play centers during the past 10 weeks.

Mayor Milo R. Waters opened the program with a few pertinent remarks in which he commented on the fundamental ideal of community recreation and complimented the commission on the success which has been attained during the past two years in making future citizens of Norwich.

At the conclusion of Mayor Waters' address Miss Mary Dodd in a well spoken prologue introduced the Pageant of Patriots in which each of the play centers presented one episode. As demonstration of the dramatic work done during the season the pageant was highly successful and received hearty applause.

Following the pageant various group games illustrating the play and mass athletics program were given at the conclusion of which Chairman William J. Fitzgerald presented the following trophies to the various grounds.

Silver loving cup for girls hockey, Lake Street; silver loving cup for junior baseball, Lake Street; silver loving cup for senior baseball, Elizabeth Street, Greeneville, Lake Street.

Before presenting the trophies Mr. Fitzgerald spoke fibriefly on the work of the past two seasons. In his remarks he stated that the number who have been cared for on the play centers during the past season numbered 50,000. MAIN STREET MERCHANT SUES BUILDING OWNERS

William H. Murphy of this city has filed suit in the superior court against Samuel Taylor and Ike Beckenstein, also of this city, claiming damages of $3,500 for the defendants' alleged negligence in allowing the roof of his store, which they own, to leak. The plaintiff claims in his complaint that on or about August 1, 1923 he was the lessee of the defendants of two stores at No. 104 Main street and No. 110 Main street at a yearly rental of $1,950.

The lease contained a covenant that "The lessor agrees to maintain proper heaters to heat each store and also to take care of the roof, so as to prevent leakage."

The plaintiff claims that the defendants permitted the roof to become and remain out of repair and in a leaky and dangerous condition. Water leaking in damaged his stock. He claims he had to discontinue the sale of candy in the store for four years and that he was compelled to close the entire store for a period of six weeks and that by reason of his exposure to the dampness and moisture in the store he became ill with pleurisy and was confined to the house for a period of six weeks.

She claims that on or about January 1, 1924, she deposited with the defendant a Hudson seal coat, valued at $1,000 to be altered. The plaintiff claims that the defendant ruined the coat. She asks damages of $1,000. The coat, according to the complaint, is still in the possession of the defendant.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"Going to have your hair bobbed?" asked Spec.

"Shingled," nasswered Blondie.

"It's a good thing you've no daughter of mine," said Spec. severely.

"You'd etg shingled, all right, but not in the same place."—Cleveland Plain-Dealer.

It was raining, and two boys were trying to hit upon a game that might suit the circumstances. One said to the other:

"I know, Alf. Let's see who can make the ugliest face."

"Garn!" said the other, "look at the start you've got!"—Pearson's Weekly.

The friend from elsewhere was sitting in the office of an ultra-Boston friend, when a beggar slumped in and slumped out.

After the mendicant's departure the friend from elsewhere remarked:

"Pretty badly crippled, isn't he?"

"Indeed so," replied the untra-Bostonian. "He appears to be wearing a synthetic limb."—Farm Life.

"Oh, Emma," exclaimed the weary mother, "don't ask so many questions!"

"But, mamma," quired the little one, "if I don't ask questions what can I ask?"—Chicago News.

KALEIDOSCOPE

A veterinary lanced and treated a big boil that had developed between the eyes of one of the lions in the Hamburg (Germany) zoo. The attendants feared trouble, but the lion submitted quietly to a fifteen inch incision, suffered the veterinary to clean the wound and when released quietly resumed its cage life.

The case of a woman of Sussex, England, who has not drunk any water since the great exhibition of 1851, has come to the attention of a London physician. While attending her, she complained of thirst, and he suggested cold water. She then related that as a child she had visited a great exhibition and had a drink of water that had made her sick. Since then she had not had any water and had got along very well without it. —Washington Star.

A New York woman has adopted the profession of surgeon and doctor for all kinds of birds. She makes a close study of bird ailments, and performs skillful operations on her feathered charges. Among the complaints for which she has successfully treated bird patients are rheumatism, fever and indigestion. People from all parts of America send their pet birds to her for treatment. During the summer, too, many families while on holiday send their birds to her. A complete bird hospital has been established by this woman, and one room is set apart for delicate surgical operations.

ANOTHER YOUTHFUL STAR PROVIDES SENSATION IN NATIONAL TENNIS PLAY

Forest Hills, N. Y., Aug. 28.—(By the A. P.)—Another young American tennis star rose to heroic heights of international triumph today when John Hennessey of Indianapolis, accomplished the downfall of Jean Borotra, champion of Europe and captain of the French Davis cup forces, in a spectacular battle featuring the third day of the national singles championship.

Hennessey not only scored the most startling upset yet recorded in a tournament already marked by an astonishing number of reversals among favorites, but eliminated his famous opponent, winner of this year's Wimbledon championship, in decisive fashion. The 19 year old American played a dashing, aggressive game, withstood the most fiery net attacks of Borotra, and conquered the French man in four sets, 8-6, 7-5, 3-6, 6-2.

Hennessey's brilliant victory was the climax of another day of setbacks for foreign forces seeking America's premier court laurels. At the end of the day's play, nine American and four foreign stars remained in the running for the title held by William T. Tilden of Philadelphia. Of these thirteen, three had reached the fifth round, the bracket before the semi-finals, while ten others were in the fourth round.

Tilden, who advanced to the fourth round by overwhelming Lucien Williams of Chicago, former intercollegiate champion, with the loss of only three games, headed the ranks of surviving Americans, which also included William M. (Little Bill) Johnston, Tilden's Davis cup partner, and Vincent Richards, young Olympic champion.

Another upset came in the last match of the day when Wallace Johnson, veteran Philadelphia chop-stroke artist, vanquished Francis T. Hunter, of Beckley, W. Va., fifth on the national ranking list in a five-set struggle.

Johnson won by scores of 6-8, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4, 6-4.

The elimination of Japan's remaining stars, M. Fukudo and S. Okamoto was not so much of an upset as was the decisiveness with which they met defeat at the hands of American rivals. Dean Mathey, veteran New Yorker, disposed of Fukuda at 6-4, 6-0, 6-1, while Elmer Griffin of San Francisco, another "dark horse" put out Okamoto, 6-2, 6-3, 6-4.

The foreign contingent, fifteen members of which have tasted defeat in three days, now has been reduced to Gerald Patterson, captain of the Australian Davis cup team; Rene Lacoste, of France; Jack Wright, Canadian Davis cup player, and Brian I. C. Norton, South African star, who now, however, is a resident of St. Louis and holds a place in the American ranking list.

George M. Loft, Jr., sensational Chicago school boy, who continued his advance by defeating Alfred H. Chapin, Jr., of Springfield, Mass., 6-4, 7-5, 16-14, in a gruelling struggle, is now bracketed in the fifth round with Patterson, who scored his most impressive victory of the tournament today when he eliminated Watson Washburn, of New York.

"PIRPO HAS NO BUSINESS HERE," SAYS SEC. DAVIS

Washington, August 28.—Commissioner Curran of immigration at the port of New York was ordered by the labor department today to investigate charges that Luis Angel Firpo, Argentine heavyweight had violated the immigration laws a year ago in connection with entry into the United States of Miss Blanca Picart.

The charges which Canon Chase, who is president of the New York civic league, submitted to Secretary Davis relate to the presence in this country of Miss Picart during Firpo's visit here last year for his championship fight with Jack Dempsey. The young woman also arrived on the steamship which brought Firpo to this country several weeks ago for his fight with Harry Wills, negro heavyweight, next month, but did not enter the country, she was said to have taken a steamer for Cuba. Canon Chase quoted the labor secretary as declaring after he heard the evidence presented:

TAFTVILLE A. A. AND VELVET TEAM OPEN SERIES SUNDAY

What is expected to be the fastest and closest game this season will be staged Sunday afternoon at J. B. Martin park when the J. B. Martin and Taftville A. A. battled for the supreme baseball honors of the town.

The series between these teams has always been looked forward to by the majority of baseball fans in Norwich and vicinity as the treat of the season, and Sunday's game owing to the keen rivalry that exists between the clubs, has promised of being a real battle for blood.

The J. B. Martin team with 14 wins out of 21 games is picked by many to come out of the series on the long end of the score. While the numbers of victories for this season is less than last year, which was due to absence of some of the regulars from the line-up the management feels confident that the velvet men will make a clean sweep of the series.

The line-up of the J. B. Martin will be unchanged with the exception of the pitchers. Manager Erlbeck has secured the services of Lefty Sayers of Villa Nova. Lefty was the star twirler for his college last season and holds the unique record of pitching 19 consecutive innings without being scored upon, allowing his opponents 4 scattered hits, his banner year was 1923 when he turned in 12 wins out of 14 starts. Lefty made his initial appearance for the velvetmen last Saturday, when he administered a coat of white wash to the fast Crompton-Knowles team in Worcester and let them down with 5 hits. The rest of the lineup is Murphy, c; Joubert, 1b; Candie 2b; F. Gley, 3b; Decelles will play short with Bill Gley, E. Murphy, E. Joubert, and Jarvis in the an field.

The Taftville A. A. although composed chiefly of youngsters is one of the fastest teams that has represented the association in the past few years, which is contrary to the opinion of many of the fans. Through lack of patronage the management was forced to play many games out of town and therefore deprived the true lovers of the sport a chance to see them in action but they will use their regular line up Sunday which includes Bill Liberty, Mills, Chip Dugas, F. Murphy, A. Dugas, Nap. Liberty, Gaudette, Dopa and Lucie and give the baseball fans a chance to see what they are made of.

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch, Golden Rust Yank Captain

The batter is full and one man is out. The infield is playing in. Batter hits ball on sharp hit to shortstop.

Where should the shortstop make the play?

If the ball is hit hard to the shortstop, or he gets it on a short hit, his best play, under such conditions is to try for a double by way of second and first. You see if the shortstop threw the ball home, there would be a pretty good chance of doubling up, as the attempt to double runs from shortstop to home and from home to first means two long throws that lose a great deal of time. In addition the throw from home plate to first is not only a difficult one for the catcher to make but there is always the danger of him hitting the runner. Try for a double by the shortstop route.

YANKS COLLAPSE IN 8TH AND SENATORS TAKE LEAD

Yankee Stadium, New York, August 28.—Washington took the lead from the New York Yankees here today as the result of a spirited eighth inning rally in which Washington scored eight runs, six after two were out. Washington won the game 11 to 6.

Ruth hit his forty first and forty-second home runs, and apparently had piled up a safe lead for New York, when Pennock weakened in the eighth. The entire New York club collapsed shortly after that. A fumble by Dugan let in the second run of the inning.

With two out and New York still a run ahead, Goslin drove a line drive to Witt, but the sun blinded the fielder just as he was set for the catch. It went for a three base hit, scoring three runs. Three more runs followed, two after Dugan prolonged the inning with a second fumble.

Washington played a gallant uphill game and drove out eighteen hits. Rice hit two doubles and three singles and Goslin hit a home run, a triple, a double and a single and drew 2 bases on balls. The score:

PLANS COMPLETE FOR POST SEASON SERIES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, August 28.—The proposed post season series between the Standard Oil Company nine and the New London Ship and Engine has been considered seriously by the two team managers. As a result final plans have been formulated and the first game of the series will begin Labor Day afternoon. The site where this expected epoch making event in the city's athletic program is Calkins' park, and the selection of this field as the battle ground of the two teams comes as a surprise, for it was naturally expected that Morgan Park would be the battle ground of the series.

It is reported that five hundred of the six hundred dollars, which the backers of the New London Ship and Engine team are staking pending the outcome of the series has been covered besides other small bets.

DRAWNINGS MADE FOR E. C. TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP WHICH STARTS SAT.

With 38 entries for the Eastern Connecticut Tennis tournament drawings were made Thursday evening for the first round on Saturday afternoon. The tournament opens at 1 p. m. with Bates opposing Frost on court No. 1 and B. Dumont opposing Gardner on court No. 2. There will be fourteen matches run off during the afternoon and on Sunday the first round of the doubles will be run off with Rontres and Daggett opposing Everett Hiscox and Marshall in the first match.

Interest is running nigh in the tournament and among the entrants are players from all parts of the state and some from the meteopolitan clubs of New York. Tennis in the Eastern part of the state has shown a marked growth during the past year, due largely to the tournament held last year. Some of the local platers of the court game have become so interested that there is an increasing demand for a spcial tennis membership at the Norwich Golf club. The Norwich Golf club has two of the best tennis courts in the state but many tennis players feel that they cannot afford to take out a full membership in the club to secure the use of the courts.

This year's tennis tourney promises to be one of the best tournaments held in this section of the state in recent years. The various tennis clubs in the eastern part of the state have sent the leading players to compete for the title. Several players from Jewett City, Gales Ferry and Baltic club have entered the tournament besides several of the local players.

First Round Singles, Saturday, 1 p. m.

BRAVES DROP BOTH ENDS OF DOUBLE WITH PHILLIES

Philadelphia, August 28.—The Boston Braves dropped both ends of a fastly played double-header with Philadelphia today by the scores of 1 to 0 and 9 to 3. Jess Barnes opposed Glazner on the hill in the first game and though he allowed but three hits in the seven innings, two of them came together and, combined with a sacrifice hit, accounted for the lone run of the fray.

Home runs by Cy Williams and Catcher Gibson, of the Braves resulted in a 3 to 3 tie for the first six innings of the second game, but in the seventh Philadelphia assaulted Grenewich for five straight hits after two were out and scored four runs more than enough to win. Score.

SERIES BETWEEN MANCHESTER AND WILLIMANTIC ARRANGED

Willimantic, August 28.—The baseball rivalry between Willimantic and Manchester which has been relegated to the background in recent years bids fair to be renewed in all its intensity, according to an announcement made yesterday afternoon by Manager John F. McQuillan of the local Thread-Makers. Arrangements have been completed for a five-game home-and-home series between the local hopefuls and Bronkie's cohorts, at the conclusion of the Connecticut State League schedule. The series will open in Manchester Saturday, September 6. The next day the Silk City team will appear at Recreation Park. The following week, the local team will entertain on Saturday and to Manchester on the day following. The choice for the fifth game, if one is necessary, will be decided by the flip of a coin. In order to eliminate all possibility of a dispute, the rival managers have arrived at an agreement whereby neutral umpires will officiate at all games.

The local team will conclude its connections with the Connecticut State League, it is anticipated on Labor Day, when they have two games scheduled with Bristol. Saturday morning they will go over the hills to Torrington. This game was originally schedule for the afternoon but was changed to the forenoon because of the fact that the American Legion officials so desired. The state legion is holding its convention in Torrington

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Aug 29—The members of the New London liquor dealers' association are becoming anxious to know whether they are to receive a rebate on the money they paid into the city treasury when the Volstead act prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquor went into effect and they closed up their places of business three months before their licenses expired. At that time they had a tacit agreement with the city council and the then mayor that a proportion of the $750 each had paid for a license should be refunded to them. They have waited more than seven years for the refund and they have not received a dollar of the money which is due them. They mean to seek its collection now. The officers of the association made a distinct agreement with the then common council that the sum of one-quarter of the license fee should be paid to them as they closed their saloons on the first of July, 1917. The county commissioners then joined with the liquor dealers and agreed to the same arrangement, but the arrangement has been absolutely ignored and the dealers have waited patiently for a settlement with the city. They also have a portion of the fee they paid to the state, namely $25 for a state license, and this they have had to wait for too. The officers of the association are Charles J. Bucy, Patrick L. Shea, William A. Murray and John L. Mallon, but the dealers do not place much dependence on the assistance of Mallon to get their refund, as he is in a snug berth with the present city government and one is not expected to move for the payment of the debt the city owes the dealers.

But the dealers do not propose to allow the matter of a refund rest where it is. They will seek what belongs to them and they believe they can recover. In Norwich it is said that a sufficient sum of money has been set aside by the common council to pay the liquor dealers at such time as it is demanded for the time when the saloons went out of business before the license year had expired.

The city street department is endeavoring to clear away the trees that were blown down in the gale of Tuesday and have cleared the rubbish from the streets and walks though it has not yet been carted away. All over the city there are places awaiting the appearance of the street gang to remove the parts of trees that are piled along the highway. The street lights are still out of service this evening, and many telephones are not in use. New London has not had such a disastrous blow in many years.

The city election has been called for Monday, Sept. 8th. There are six candidates for the city council in the running, three candidates for school visitors and four candidates for selectmen. Among the candidates for the council is one woman and for membership of the board of school visitors there are two women. The polls are to be open from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. (daylight saving time). There has never been a city election in New London when so little interest was manifested as is the case in the election to be held a week hence.

Officers representing the state attorney's office are busy summoning witnesses to appear in the case to be prosecuted at the September criminal term of the superior court which opens at Norwich Tuesday next. There are many cases to come to trial from the southern end of the county, including cases for alleged violation of the liquor laws.

Many who have made their home in the city and in the sections adjacent thereto during the summer are getting back home, and all trains out of the city are taking these birds of passage to their winter homes. The schools in the cities and towns will begin the fall term the first week in September and to get the children back to their studies is the prime motive of the transients in getting away. No doubt they will have some hot weather during September, but that will not be a factor in keeping summer residents here who have children to get into the schools.

Michael Cassidy, well known in New London, died suddenly of heart trouble at home at Sag Harbor, yesterday afternoon. Mr. Cassidy was a frequent visitor in New London and leaves numerous relatives here.

The annual field day of the 56th Regiment is to take place at Stamford Sunday, September 21st. In this regiment, which figured conspicuously during the world war, were many New London and Norwich young men.

Repairs have been completed by the Connecticut Power company and the damage occasioned to the street lighting system as a result of the severe storm of Tuesday. The wires have been put in condition and all the street lights of the city are in working order again. Until tonight 130 or more arc and bug lights were out of condition.

An automobile owned and operated by Aldo Guilani, 84 Walbach street and a machine owned and driven by Charles F. Snoski, 101 Bayonet St., were in collision this evening on the New London approach to the Thames River highway bridge. The machines which were traveling in opposite directions, came together with great force and were extensively damaged. None of the occupants were injured.

Charles A. Ryan, 270 South Main street; Putnam, a public service operator, was ordered to appear in the police court tomorrow morning when he was observed violating the automobile laws this forenoon, in parking his machine on the left hand side of the street. Ryan's car was parked on State street and at a congested point. Ryan furnished a bond for his court appearance.

Henry Hick, 15, Steward Street complained to the police this morning that while he was riding his bicycle on Bank street, near State street, yesterday afternoon the wheel was struck by a commercial truck owned by the New London Furniture company. Hick was knocked to the pavements, sustaining a bruised hip and contusions of the limbs. Hoffman Bailey, 50 Denison avenue, driver of the truck declared that his truck did not hit the cycle and that he has a witness to substantiate his statement in Miss Lillian Bernstein, 72 Connecticut avenue, who was riding on the truck.

Morris Pouzzner, 259 Huntington St., a former motion picture house manager, now proprietor of a picture house in a nearby country town, will be in the police court tomorrow morning charged with violations of the automobile laws. He was summoned to court this morning as a result of an accident when his machine is alleged to have collided with a machine owned and driven by Bart R. Terteault, 132 Ocean avenue, on State street. Both machines were damaged. The specific charges against Pouzzner are failing to show his operator's license when requested to do so and failing to have his operator's license in his possession. Pouzzner later made a report of the accident at the police station and placed the responsibility for the crash upon Tetreault. He explained his inability to show Tetreault his license as being due to the fact that he had left it at his home, although he did not make this explanation to Tetreault.

The funeral of Alfred Williams was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at 48 Shapley street, the services being conducted by Rev. Sinclair Grimstead, pastor of Shiloh Baptist church. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Attorney Thomas B. Troland has sold a house and lot on the former United States Housing Corporation tract, off Jefferson avenue, to Arthur M. Beckwith.

Benjamin Cutler of Stonington, Mrs. Rebecca Washburn, Pine Grove, Niantic; Henry Avery, United States Coast Guard academy, Francis Paquette, East Hartford, Mrs. Frank Mott and infant daughter, Pequot avenue and Burton Chappel, Waterford, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged today.

Samuel Levine has returned to his home on Huntington street after having spent several days with relatives in Worcester, Mass., and Norwich.

Stephen Balinski, 27, made his escape from the Norwich State Hospital yesterday. This forenoon he was arrested by Edward Kelly, captain of the force of special agents of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad in this city, at the union station, where Balinski was lounging upon a bench. He was taken to the police station, and late this afternoon a guard from the hospital escorted Balinski back to the institution.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hunt returned to their home at North Adams, Mass., today having spent several days as guests of Mrs. Hunt's sister, Mrs. Alfred W. Stoll.

Officials of the Texas Oil company this afternoon lodged complaint with the police because of youths destroying property of the company. The damage, it is alleged, is perpetrated when yuths go to the pier of the company to go swimming.

It developed today that a crook used a long-worn scheme to commit burglary, but in this particular case robbery was not effected. The crook had knowledge of the absence from the city of a family residing on West street and secured a key to the house from the owner on the pretense that he was an inspector of the Connecticut Power company and desired to inspect a meter. After obtaining the key and going throughout the house, the thief departed without taking any plunder so far as could be determined. The scheme was not revealed until today when it became known that the power company had not sent an inspector to the place. The owner of the house now intends to cause the lock on the entrance to the house to be changed in order to prevent the crook who did not return the key to the owner, from again entering the house by the same means.

Miss Eleanor Willard has returned to her home in Hartford, having spent several weeks in New London.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Dyer and family, are spending a few days in New Haven, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney E. Morton, former residents of New London.

Mrs. Walter S. Griswold and daughter have concluded a week's visit in Boston and Cape Cod.

Herbert Meek of 27 Gorton street, Mrs. Ralph Ferguson, 82 Broad street Miss Charlotte Whiton, 567 Montauk avenue, Mrs. Rose Castano, Westerly, Miss Isrella Wolfer, Ocean Beach, Edgar W. Clark, 215 Vauxhall street and Miss Bertha Bernstein, 27 West Coit street, were patients dismissed today at Home Memorial hospital.

Johnson & Leeks, contractors at 49 Chappell street, complained to the police this forenoon that a considerable quantity of valuable lumber and which was to have been used in erecting two houses, had been stolen from one of the places under way on Chappell street. Sergeant John Cavanaugh in a short time located the stolen timber in the cellars of several houses in the vicinity of where the lumber had been stored. The theft was committed by youths and the lumber will be returned to the contractors.

An Announcement!

At the invitation of the officials of the New London County Fair, we have arranged to present a Style Pageant, entitled "Queen Fashion," at the New London County Fair, which will be held September 1st, 2nd and 3rd.

It was the feeling of the Fair Management that such a Style Show, at the threshold of a new season, would be of great interest to all women who will attend the Fair, and sharing that feeling we consented to co-operate with them, presenting a representation of the new, authentic styles in Women's Apparel. This fashion display will be given on the large stage opposite the main grand stand, at the following hours:

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 1st ..... AT 12:30
TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 2nd... AT 1 O'CLOCK
WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 3rd..... AT 1 O'CLOCK

Garments Shown on Live Models

A prominent feature of the fashion review will be the first showing of the Irene Castle Corticelli Garments which will be exhibited on live models. Irene Castle has selected The Porteous & Mitchell Co. as her representative in this vicinity and copies of Paris garments, brought over by Mrs. Castle a few days ago, will be shown in this style review, as well as a comprehensive line of Frocks, Coats, Millinery and Accessories of the new Fall season.

This (Friday) evening in the rooms of Harold W. Merrill post, No. 16, American Legion, on Broad street, will be held the second meeting in preparation for National Defense day—Friday, Sept. 12th, the sixth anniversary of the battle of St. Mihiel. To this meeting the secretaries or other representatives of all societies or organizations in Westerly have been invited. If the Defense day committee, Col. Everett E. Whipple, Thomas V. Clancy and Franklin C. Smith, appointed by Governor Flynn of Rhode Island, has overlooked any organization in the issuing of the notices of this "meet" the members are asking such society or body to see that the organization is represented at the meeting.

The Defense Day committee is already on record as approving plans recommended by Calvin Coolidge, president of the United States. It is planned to hold a mammoth street parade in Westerly, which will surpass all previous ones, and to this end plans call for a participation of the National Guard unit, Battery E, 243rd Coast Artillery. Capt. John Datson is to make every effort to have his command recruited to maximum strength. Civic, social and fraternal organizations are expected to join in the parade also.

Fifty members of the Larkin family held the 18th annual outing of the Larkin Family association, with a picnic Thursday at the Atlantic Beach casino. Miss Nellie M. Gardiner of Hope Valley was elected as president.

Other officers elected were: Recording secretary, Helen Larkin of Lebanon, daughter of the late President Isaac G. Larkin, who died a month ago; corresponding secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Lillian M. Browning of Norwich. The committee on compiling the Larkin geneology was continued. It was voted to hold the 1925 reunion at the Atlantic Beach casino.

Members of Westerly lodge, No. 673, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, and guests attended the annual clambake and outing Thursday at Barnes' Point, Brightman's pond.

This (Friday) morning at 9 o'clock Judge Michael J. Turano will hold the regular weekly session of Third district court in the court house on Union street. Cases which were to have been tried last week were put over a week because of the absence of the judge, who was on a vacation.

A caucus of the democratic party was held Thursday evening.

Senator John J. McGrane, Providence member of the upper branch of the Rhode Island legislature, and a summer visitor at Pleasant View, was said to have been the operator of a Ford sedan, accompanied by Raymond L. McWeeney and two other passengers, which knocked down Mrs. Louis Schmunk of 33 Mountain View avenue, Springfield, Mass., about 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon at the rear of the Atlantic Beach casino. Mrs. Schmunk was reported as dragged a considerable distance before the automobile was stopped. She sustained badly sprained ankles, the left one seriously. There were abrasions on both knees and a large abrasion and cut on the right elbow. Dr. Michael H. Scanlon of Westerly gave the injured woman the necessary medical attention. The accident was investigated by Motorcycle Traffic Officers Robert Kessel and George L. Madison.

Joseph N. Dewey, a farmer residing in the Flanders or Road district, Stonington, reported that while he visited the place of Pasquale Sallmeno on Pleasant street Wednesday afternoon he was assaulted, being struck over the head with a bottle, and $50 was taken from him. The appearance of the injured man on the Pawcatuck bridge Wednesday night certainly showed evidence of hard usage. On the back of his head was a bloody wound.

ALL FARMING INVOLVES GAMBLING RISKS

(Written Specially for The Bulletin.)

I've heard of "grub-staking" mine prospectors, but "grub-staking" farmers in an old agricultural state is something new to me.

Don't know what "grub-staking" means? Why, in the former days of the extreme west, when a "busted" miner went to some more or less moneyed citizen with a story of some distant trail on which were indications of "pay-dirt," the said moneyed citizen would sometimes supply the hopeful miner with a donkey, a sack of provisions, and some tools and send him off to prospect. The agreement was that if the prospector should actually discover a mine, he and the "grub-staker" were to share in the profits. Of course, if the quest proved a failure, the outfitting capitalist lost what he put in and the miner lost his time.

It was regarded by both parties as an even and out gamble. The chances were always against success. But, when the prospector did "strike it rich," the profits were enormous. It was worth while to lose a dozen times if he finally succeeded once. Therefore the practice, while never what might be called general, was by no means infrequent. A good many of the fortunes which young dudes and flappers are now blowing in along various White Ways were won by their granddads after just that fashion.

It remained for the State of Kansas, which boasts itself of its "progressiveness" and its superior virtue, to apply the "grub-staking" principle to wheat farming. The success of the gamble, this year, has been so striking that there can be little doubt it will be taken up in other states and probably "run into the ground," sooner or later.

Briefly, the story of the speculation is this: Repeated crop failures left a good many southern Kansas farmers hopelessly stranded, last year. They had no money even to buy seed wheat with, and could borrow none on already over-mortgaged farms. Whereupon some bright chap formulated the idea of what he was pleased to call a "seed wheat pool." He was to promote the organization of a group of capitalists who, if enough farmers could be enlisted to make it an object, would buy seed wheat for them and take a chance on the resultant crop.

The pool-ers were to furnish the money and buy the seed. The farmers were to supply the land and the labor and sow under the supervision of a pool expert. If the crop amounted to only eight bushels an acre or less, the farmer was to have it all. If it amounted to more than eight bushels, the pool was to have one-fifth. That is, if the crop was 9 bushels or less per acre the pool got nothing. If the crop was 10 bushels the pool got two; if fifteen bushels, it got three; if twenty bushels it got four, and so on.

It found wheat-growers with a hundred thousand acres of land ready to bite on these terms. So it bought somewhere about 90,000 bushels of choice seed wheat, paying a premium to get the very best and turned it over to the farmers, who seeded it under the personal supervision of a pool-employed expert. This agent oversaw the selection of the land in every case, superintended its preparation and every other detail, and watched the crop's growth and ripening.

It happens to have been a banner year for wheat in southern Kansas. While the last three years saw three repeated failures to reproduce even seed, this summer has brought the second largest crop the state has ever produced. Moreover, the quality is of exceptional, almost unique perfection. It is of such high grade that the flour millers are simply gobbling it up as fast as it gets to market. Paying high and higher prices for it, too.

Furthermore, the acre yields have been uniformly large. The pool, which invested about $100,000 in seed wheat, finds itself with about 250,000 bushels as its agreed upon share, selling at better than a dollar a bushel at the elevators. That is, it is going to clear better than $250,000 this fall from an investment of $100,000 last spring.

This is what even "big business" admits is "going some." According to the statement of the chief promoter: "Every man who put up a dollar to help the farmers out will get two dollars and a half back in October, after all the expenses of the pool have been paid. We are certain of that much. It may be even more."

With such a record of dazzling success, it seems inevitable that other promoters, in other wheat-growing states, will be moved to undertake similar operations. Perhaps we are at the dawning of a new era in wheat production, a "grub-staking" era, in which the capitalist will furnish all the supplies and the farmer merely do the work.

Now there are several things to be said about this incident. Some of the wheat farmers, it is reported, are grumbling over the 250 per cent profit of the pool. They think, as things have turned out, that the pool might have been satisfied with less and turned more back to the growers.

Well, there has always been understood to be a radical difference between gambling and legitimate business. The gambler takes much greater chances; runs the risk of incurring much greater losses; and ought fairly to expect much bigger profits when the luck does turn his way. While there was a certain element of benevolence in this seed-wheat pool—a genuine desire to help out some people who were playing in hard luck—the fact remains that it was, after all, a big gamble. The last three years had been starvingly lean ones. Wheat had been a practical failure over much of the state. Really, the chances were three to one against the pool. If 1924 had been like 1921, 1922, and 1923, all its money would have been sunk. Instead of making a profit it would have borne a total loss. It took a big chance. It seems to have some reasonable excuse for accepting a big profit.

But there's something else to be said in regard to the story. While luck played an admittedly big part in the result, the pool did its share to help luck out. It didn't buy seed wherever it could buy cheapest, regardless of quality or fitness of strain. It went far afield to get the very best seed obtainable, paying a premium above market prices in order to secure this advantage. Then it put an expert in charge of the selection of the land, the preparation of the soil, the sowing and the harvesting. It allowed no waste of its good seed on poor soil. It tolerated no shiftlessness in preparation and seeding, and no delays in harvesting. It saw to it that the right thing was done in the right way at the right time. While giving all the credit which belongs to luck, it may fairly be said that some luck, it may fairly be said that some portion was also due to good farming. Admitting that the best of seed and the wisest of culture would not insure a good crop in a poor year, the fact remains that they would help, somewhat, to obviate a total failure, even under adverse conditions. The year turning out a favorable one, their influence was potent in developing both the size and the quality of the crop.

All farming by all farmers involves every year the taking of gambling risks. It is so on our little tucked-up eastern farms as truly as on the wide-spreading prairies of the horizonless west. But a good many of us Easterners have learned, in the hard school of experience, that we've also got to use judgment and do hard work, whether luck is with us or against us, in order to "break even" through a course of years.

I don't personally know a single Kansas farmer of the wheat-growing or any other variety. But I strongly suspect that a good many of the hundred thousand acres sown to wheat under the direction of the wheat pool never knew, before, what first quality seed and judgmatical cultivation mean. Probably a good many of them have, hitherto, been sown when the owner "got 'round to it," with seed such as he could pick up nearest home at lowest price, and harvested almost anyhow and any time.

That's the way too many eastern farmers do things, and I find no reason to assume that western wheat-wranglers are any more canny or industrious.

Looking at the facts "by and large," it seems likely that the lesson this season's experience has taught Kansas farmers of the value of good seed and intelligent crop work may be worth more to them than its big dividends are to the pool. The application of that lesson to future farm-work may not wholly eliminate all danger of crop failures. But it will minimize that danger and tend to reduce the totality of even inevitable shortages.

It is unquestionably necessary to "trust in God." It is quite as essential for good hunting to "keep your powder dry."

It may be more comfortable to sow one's wheat when one feels like it,—and is temporarily tired of goin' fishin'. But it conduces more to a profitable crop to sow the wheat at the right time and under the right conditions,—no matter how one feels or how the fish are biting.

In a thirty years' experience of truck gardening, I found that success depended on my readiness, not merely day by day, but hour by hour, to take advantage of favorable conditions. It wasn't a question of what I felt like doing or of what I wanted to do, but of what the soil and the weather combined in dictating that I should do.

A similar rule holds good for general farming. One must be "Johnny-on-the-spot" when he deals with such whimsical and unpredictable allies as the weather and the seasons. He must be ready to grasp opportunity by the horns whenever he can get hold of them. To go back to the old proverb, he must do more than stand ready at the door to open it when opportunity knocks; he must noise himself outside the always open door, ready to dash forward and shake hands before his guest has got halfway up the walk. Moreover, he had best have his overalls on and his horses all hitched up, ready to start the furrow the instant opportunity sets up the stakes.

I have had no experience of Kansas droughts. As I have said, I have no personal acquaintance with any Kansas farmer. And I do not feel justified in criticising that seed-wheat pool for taking 250 per cent profit on its "grub-staking" gamble. But I can't help suspecting that, if all those southern Kansas farmers had in the past, even during the last three heart-breaking years, shown better judgment, practiced shrewder thrift, made wiser use of opportunity and gone in for more diversified farming, some of them would, this year, be sharing in that profit, rather than finding themselves in the not wholly comfortable position of beneficiaries.

There's a whole lot of us who'd rather stand on our own legs, even if they are a bit wobbly, than be propped up by the best crutches surgeons ever devised.

GOSHEN

Mr. and Mrs. James B. Case and daughter of Danbury were visitors here over the week end.

People of this township were grieved to learn of the death of Elmer R. Pierson of Norwich, as he will be greatly missed, having been for many years an official of the New London County fair association and the large number came to testify to his fair and square dealings, when they called to see him to purchase either one horse or a matched pair of horses.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephens and daughter of Providence and Mrs. Elmer Geer of Lebanon attended church service here Sunday.

The soaking rain of the northeast storm Tuesday did much good though the heavy wind shook off much fruit.

The Ladies' Aid Society held a sale on the shady lawn on Goshen Hill Wednesday.

Miss Agnes Wooding of North Haven is the guest of her sister, Mrs. A. J. Randall.

MARKET WAS DULL.

New York, Aug. 28.—Extreme dullness characterized today's stock market, which opened with a fir mtone and then turned reactionary when professional traders directed selling pressure against the standard industrials. Total sales, which fell beliw 550,000 shares, were the smallest of any full session since the middle of June and reflected the absence of many large operators over the Labor Day holiday.

Speculators for the decline succeeded in uncovering a number of weak spots among the specialties. American Ice broke eight points to 72, making a loss of nearly twenty points, on selling attributed to reports that the earnings statement for the six months ended April 30, soon to be published would show a larger deficit than the corresponding period of the year previous. Union Bag and Paper broke nearly five points to 48 on publication of rumors that the $1.50 quarterly dividend, due September 10, was likely to be omitted.

Selling pressure against Cuyamel Fruit, which touched a new low for the year at 44 3-4, was apparently inspired by the failure of the company to earn its dividend requirements in the first six months. International Telephone, which was bid up briskly yesterday on the announcement that the company had obtained a contract to reorganize the Spanish telephone system, fell back two points on profit taking. Union Tank Car, West Penn Power, American Water Works, All-American Cables and Youngstown Sheet and Tube dropped 1 to four points, selling of the last named being due to a reduction in the quarterly dividend.

U. S. Steel common, selling ex-dividend, touched 108 1-4 but slipped back to 106 7/8 for a net loss of 3-8 at the close. American Can was in rather free supply, closing 8 points lower at 128 3-4. Baldwin showed a net loss of one point at 120 3-4, despite a flurry of early buying in anticipation of the placing of a $25,000,000 equipment order by the Pennsylvania Railroad in the next few days.

Excellent buying developed in the chain stores issues in response to reports of an increase in retail trade, but the early gains were substantially reduced in the late wave of selling. S. S. Kresge spurted 10 points to 449 and then dropped back to 435. Kresge Department Stores fell from 54 1-2 to 51 5-8, up 1-2. Woolworth also closed 1-2 higher at 112 1-2 after having touched 114 3-4. McGrory Stores showed a new gain of two points at 95.

Railroad shares failed to respond to reports that car loadings for the week ended August 16 were the highest of any week this year, July earnings, which are running below ten per cent. of those last year, probably restricted trading in [illegible] issues. Rutland preferred was an outstanding strong spot touching a new high at 54 1-4 on buying attributed to New York Central interest. Pittsburgh & West Virginia came within a small fraction of the year's top.

Call loans continued to hold at 3 per cent. The demand for time funds was reported to be slightly better with more inquiries for loans at 3 per cent. for ninety days. Commercial paper held steady, with th ebulk of the prime names moving at 3 1-4 per cent.

Foreign exchange rates were slightly reactionary. Demand sterling ruled about 1-3 lower at $4.48 1-8 and French francs were moderately active around 5.40 cents. Canadian exchange sold at a slight premium for the first time since 1922.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Aug. 28.—Lasping into typical pre-holiday dullness, bond trading today was marked by narrow and irregular price fluctuations, with the main trend following a downward course. Total sales fell below $10,000,000 for the first full day session in many weeks.

Virtually the only display of activity was seen in the St. Paul Railroad issues. With directors scheduled to consider the refunding of next year's maturities, the golds 4s of 1925 staged a rally early in the day but later fell back when no action on the matter was forthcoming.

Wilson and Company obligations also continued their recovery, the convertible 6s and 7 1-2s moving up 1 1-8 to 2 1-4 points. Other industrial issues which were fractionally higher included International Paper 5s. Punta Alegre Sugar 7s and Consumers Power 5s. These gains were counteracted by losses in Kelly-Springfield 8s and Chile Copper 8s.

With the approach of the Labor Day holiday, there were indications that investors would wait until next week before committing themselves in the bond market. Few new issues will be placed on the market until after the tourn of the month.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Aug. 28—All grains averaged higher in price here today due to bullish foreign news and continued unfavorable crop reports from the domestic corn belt. At the finish, wheat was up 1 1-4 to 2 cents, with September 1.22 5-8 to 1.22 3-4 and December 1.27 3-4 to 1.28; corn scored a net gain of 1 1-2 to 2 3-4 cents, oats rose 1 1-2 to 1 7-8, and provisions averaged 12 1-2 to 25 cents.

Wheat displayed a firm undertone throughout the day, largely in sympathy with corn strength and because of lower temperature in Canada and the advance in Liverpool. A report from Germany telling of the rotting of crops as a result of excessive wet weather, an official statement from the soviet government of Russia stating that about sixty per cent. of the planted wheat acreage will be a failure, and a report that the Swedish wheat crop will be nearly a million and a half bushels less than last year, also helped to lift values here.

Pessimistic reports of damage in the corn belt were chiefly responsible for the upturn in corn. Nebraska complained of continuous hot dry weather which is firing the crop, and Iowa said low temperatures thereof were retarding corn much in need of warm weather to advance development. There was some activity in the market at the start with individuals buying firmly, but later a reaction resulted from profit taking.

Oats were firm in line with other grain.

Provisions were strong and active in sympathy with higher quotations in hogs and the strength in corn.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Aug. 28.—The curb market today experienced one of its quietest sessions of the year. The oils were reactionary on publication of the report of the American Petroleum Institute showing an increase in crude oil production of 8,050 barrels daily for the week ended August 23. Penn Mexico Fuel and Standard Oil of Ohio were among the weakest issues.

Public Utility and Radio shares were fairly active. American Power and Light advanced 1 3-4 points but American Light and Traction lost 1 3-4 points on the day.

Conflicting movements featured the Radio shares. Rova Radio gained 2 3-4; Thompson Radio lost 1 1-2, Joseph W. Jones Radio touched a new high at 8 1-4 compared with the recent offering price of 7 1-2, while Dubilier was off 1-2 point.

The telephone and electric linemen are remarking on the common sense attitude of patrons of the service in Jewett City. The day and night of the storm, about as severe as ever attacked the local service, the attempts to maintain both services, were not only strenuous but continuous. With lines down everywhere, and the telephone service and lighting system badly crippled in most all cases the philosophical view was taken.

It is to be devoutly hoped that no attack of the Plainfield hysteria, told about by the Plainfield correspondent, in Thursday's Bulletin, ever strikes the burg, noted for its fairness of viewpoint at all times. During the storm, the Danielson Light and Power company, sent men here four times in a persistent effort to stop the operation of their big circuit breakers, at the main power station at Ashland.

One local baker had 200 loaves of bread in an electric mixer, with the water all applied. He didn't get mad. All sorts of household and mechanical operations were held up. Everybody knew the telephones and lights would be fixed as soon as human agency could beat the storm, and waited.

TAFTVILLE

The Taftville Field Day association held another important meeting at the Army-Navy club on Monday night, when several committees were appointed to complete arrangements for the annual field day to be held on Sept. 20th. Letters are being circulated among the organizatinos of the village for representation at the open meeting to be held in Ponemah hall on Monday, Sept. 8th and 15th. Every organization in the village is requested to send at least five delegates, especially those who would be willing in some way to do a little hustling in making this field day a bigger success than any ever held here. The committee plans this year to stage more events of the freakish kind, in order to give the public something new. Arrangements have also been made with the turning section of the Maennerchor club for a large class drill, and besides they will give the public an exhibition of their skill on the bars. Some sensational work is expected from the boys as they are in practice almost daily, in order to convince the public that Taftville does not have to take a back seat in this line of work any more than they do in others. Present indications look for the greatest and best field day ever staged in this part of the state.

Miss Dorothy Varley of Portland, Conn., is the guest of Miss Helen Aberg of North Third avenue.

Miss Sadie Grant, who is in training at the Hartford hospital, is spending a few days at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Grant, Canterbury turnpike.

A number of residents of the village held an enjoyable picnic at Ocean Beach on Thursday, making the trip by boat from Norwich. Those who went were Mrs. William McNally and children, Lester and Marjorie, Mrs. E. W. Terrington, Miss Mildred Terrington, Mrs. John Houston, Miss Ruby Houston, Jack Houston, Laughlin Houston, Miss Elizabeth Houston, Miss Isabelle Thompson, Mrs. Lee Heap, Miss Edith Heap, James Heap, Mrs. Ernest Pollard and Ernest Pollard, Jr., and Miss Emily Pollard.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

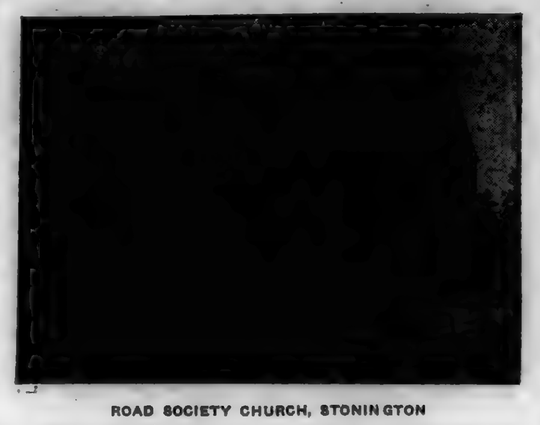
Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powdar or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.



ROAD SOCIETY CHURCH, STONINGTON

ROAD SOCIETY CHURCH TO OBSERVE 250TH ANNIVERSARY SUNDAY

The First Congregational church of Stonington (Road Society) will on Sunday observe the 250th anniversary of its organization with a special program to be held during the afternoon and commencing at 1:30 o'clock standard time.

The First Congregational church of Stonington is called the Road church from the fact that the first road that was traveled from Pawcatuck Bridge to New London ferry passed through the Town platt and by the old meeting house on Agreement Hill, where all the town meetings were held and public gatherings, so it was called The Road—because it was the place on this road where all the public business was transacted.

In a historical sketch of the church Miss Grace D. Wheeler of Stonington says:

It is impossible to state the number of ministers who have descended from the people who have worshipped here—five are known to have had their early religious education in our Sunday school. Four churches have gone forth from here into various parts of the town and are a great power for good, while as near as can be stated from the records here the number of those admitted to the church in the 250 years are 1054 and 3038 baptised, while 1027 marriages have been recorded; but quite a number of the ministers did not keep records and some we recall that it was not legal for ministers to marry until 1694, thirty years after Mr. Noyes came here to preach.

Of the 13 ministers settled here, Rev. James Noyes remained the longest, 55 years; Rev. Ebenezer Rossiter, 40 years; Rev. Nathaniel Eells, 53 years; Rev. Hezekiah Woodruff, 14 years; Rev. Ira Hart, 20 years; Rev. Joseph Whittlesey, 2 years; Rev. Peter Shaw, 2; Rev. Nehemiah B. Cook 21 years; Rev. Pliny Warner, 2 years; and Rev. Jaul Couch (for some reason never settelied here) preached for us 24 years. After him came Rev. John O. Wilson for 4 years; Rev. John O. Barrows 14 years, and Rev. George R. Spalding, the last and only one living, remained obout 4 years. Between the pastorates of these ministers we have had a number of supplies but no special religious interest has been recorded during their services.

The very first preacher here in 1656 was Rev. William Thompson, brother-in-law to Capt. George Denison, who taught the Indians and preached to the planters. His first meeting was at the house of Walter Palmer and later at the houses of the other planters. He stayed here till 1659 when Rev. Zachariah Bridgen of Boston came and stayed till his death then Mr. Chauncey and a Mr. Fletcher. Of these two men it is interesting to note from a letter which I received last year from E. H. Pendleton of New York, relative to these men. He says: "The Rev. Seth Fletcher, son-in-law to Major Brian Pendleton, was minister at Saco, Me., from 1661 to 1662, and from 1666 to 1672 and later. In May, 1665, Mr. Fletcher and Mr. Chauncey were candidates for the ministry at Saco. Mr. Chauncey being elected. He was the Rev. Barnabus Chauncey, a Harvard graduate, and son-in-law of the Rev. Charles Chauncey of that college. He stayed but a year in Saco, the Rev. Fletcher succeeding him. You will note that Mr. Fletcher was out of a job at Saco at the time your Mr. Fletcher was in Stonington, and it is a striking coincidence that the names of the two ministers who had taught in the Stonington church from 1662 to 1664 should be the very same names of the two candidates for the Saco ministry the following spring, 1665. I believed they were the very same men. About 1670 Brian Pendleton bought a large tract of land in what was then Stonington, but afterwards became a part of Westerly, which he deeded to his son, James, who settled there. I have wondered if he knew just what he was buying, for as far as I know he had never seen the property and the son, James, was at Portsmouth, New Hampshire, when the purchase was made. But if his son-in-law, the Rev. Seth Fletcher, was the one who was at Stonington, we have an easy explanation of this land purchase. I hope this information will be of use to you in connection with the coming 250th anniversary of your church."

The first names of neither Mr. Fletcher or Chauncey are given on our records, but the above seems to prove their identity. And they taught here till the spring of 1664 when Mr. Noyes came.

After Mr. Noye's death the church was supplied by the neighboring ministers for a short time, when in 1720 Rev. Nehemiah Hobart was invited by the town to come and preach, which he did for the remainder of the year. But the December before the Ecclesiastical Society having been formed they offered him terms but the church did not wish to extend the call and again the Society appointed messengers to procure another minister, who was the Rev. Mr. Rossiter, and he proved acceptable to both society and church. He was followed by Rev. Mr. Eells, but after his death Rev. Thomas Andrus and Rev. Timothy Woodbridge were here till 1789, when we settled Rev. Mr. Woodruff. After his departure, Rev. Mr. Jonathan Nigh and Rev. Andrew Rawson supplied the pulpit, and then Rev. Roswell R. Swann, a member of the church, preached as a candidate, and received a call from both society and church, but he declined, which also did the next supply, Mr. Thomas Holt.

After Mr. Holt came Rev. Mr. Bingham who preached as supply a few Sabbaths. It is not recorded where he came from nor where he went from here. Then Rev. Ira Hart was installed and was here 20 years, and again supplies were invited. Rev. Abraham Baldwin came and gave general satisfaction, but declined to be settled. After Mr. Cook's resignation the church was supplied by Rev. Dr. Peters and others, and in these later days, since Rev. Mr. Spalding's departure we have had Rev. Joseph Peacock, Rev. Edwin Kellogg and now he Rev. C. F. Eldridge.

When the church was formally organized, June 3, 1674, the nine persons enrolled as members were Mr. James Noyes, who lived at Anguilla; Mr. Thomas Stanton and son, Thomas, Jr., who lived at Pawcatuck Rock; Mr. Nathaniel Chesebrough, who lived opposite the Phelps place where Mr. Eugene Edwards now resides; Mr. Thomas Miner at Quiambaug, where Cornelius Miner lives. Mr. Nehemiah Palmer lived where his father, Walter Palmer, lived at Wequetequock; Mr. Ephraim Miner, who lived north of the present William Billings home Mr. Moses Palmer lived east of Wequetequock Cove below the Road Society land, where Mr. Mitchel, who lived where Mr. Frank Brown now lives. But at the ordination of Rev. Mr. Noyes, the 10th of September (it being Thursday), the partakers with them were: Capt. James Pendleton, Mrs. Anne Denison (Lady Ann Borrodell,) Mr. Thomas Wheeler's wife, Mrs. Hanna Gallup (Lake), Mrs. Grace Miner, Mrs. Mary Richardson, Mr. Isaac Wheeler's wife and Mrs. Main. The only husband and wife that were partakers that day were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wheeler.

No church history would be complete without at least a brief mention of the deacons who have served.

Our first deacons were Nehemiah Palmer and Thomas Miner, but no dates are given, but in Dec. 1697 Gershom Palmer was chosen deacon.

In 1701 Manassah Miner was chosen deacon.

In 1723 John Noyes and Moses Palmer, but Moses Palmer refused to serve.

In 1723 Joseph Palmer was chosen deacon.

In 1786 Thomas Miner chosen deacon "even to every vote."

NORWICH LIONS HOLD MEETING AT WIGWAM

The members of the Norwich Lions club held their regular weekly meeting at the Wigwam at Mohegan Hill, Thursday, forty of their number going down by automobiles. They were met at the entrance to the grounds by Chief Lemuel Occom Fielding, who conducted the party, to special tables arranged for the organization under the trees, surrounded by the wigwams of the Mohegans. President George Finn presided in his usual affable and gracious manner, and the Ladies' Aid society provided the following menu:

Clam Chowder
Succotash
Baked Beans Cold Meats
Mince and Apple Pie
Ice Cream Yokeag
Coffee

The viands were very tempting and many of the waiters and waitresses were in Indian costume. After lunch President Finn called the meeting to order and called upon Mayor Milo R. Waters of this city who congratulated the Lions on choosing the Wigwam as their meeting place and offered the suggestion to the club that they make an annual pilgrimage there. Chief Occom then favored the club with a solo, which was well received, and he was followed by Princess Tacoma with a solo which was loudly applauded.

This is the first visit of Princess Tacoma to Norwich and she was very much pleased with the Rose of New England. Princess Winona gave a recitation and also addressed the club referring to the work of the late Miss Sarah L. Huntington, who was an indefatigable worker among the Mohegans many years ago, and who helped raise the funds for the present chapel. All listened with attention to her remarks and she received a genuine welcome from the Lions.

Dr. Charles F. Eastman was next introduced by President Finn as one of the greatest of the living Indians. Dr. Eastman is a former graduate of Dartmouth college, a writer of many books describing Indian life and has delivered lectures throughout the whole country. Dr. Eastman related many incidents of his boyhood days when he lived in the country of the Sioux, describing their customs, habits, characteristics and many of their battles. He warmly defended the American Indian as a man who never went back on his word, and cited many instances where the red man had befriended the white man.

Dr. Eastman also referred to his work among the American Indians, as he is one of the committee appointed by the U. S. government to look after their welfare. He further spoke of his speaking tours addressing large audiences of all faiths. He also was very optimistic as to the future of America.

Miss Gladys Tantaguidgeon, a descendant of Tantaguidgeon the sachem who captured Miantonomo at Sachem's Plain was active in the affairs of the wigwam and was introduced to the Lions and very cordially received.

Arthur L. Peale [illegible] as an authority on Indian lore, gave a very interesting address at the meeting. In part he said:

We live in Norwich the "Town of Nine Miles Square" which was purchased of Uncas in 1659 for about three hundred and fifty dollars, and today we probably have property worth fully fifty millions of dollars in the corporate limits of the town. Americans as a general rule are great travelers, and with the coming of the automobile many of us go sightseeing.

One of the first questions that is asked when we arrive in a locality which we are not well acquainted with is "What is there to see in this town?"—Norwich is not an exception, as a large number of tourists annually visit the Rose of New England, and I have been of the opinion for a long time that we do not give enough publicity to our Indian, Colonial and Revolutionary war history, as we have a wonderful historical background. Today I am speaking only in reference to the Indians. At Norwich, which may be called the "City of the Kings," we have the "Royal Burying Ground of the Mohegans" where sleep Uncas and other famous Sachems of that tribe. Near by the "Norwich Falls," with its many legends, and on Sachem's Plain Miantonomo, the Sachem of the Narragansetts captured.

The battle between the Mohegans and Narragansetts at the "Great Plains" has been called by historians the most conspicuously purely Indian fight recorded in the annals of New England. Assembling a force estimated at from six hundred to one thousand warriors Miantonomo, without warning secretly marched into the country of the Mohegans. Uncas having received word at his principal fort in Mohegan, of the approach of the enemy hastily assembled his men estimated at about three or four hundred and marched to meet the enemy. Halting his warriors on rising ground, Uncas made known to them a strategam, that he was to try and put into effect. When the opposing forces had come within bow shot of each other the Mohegans sent forward a messenger asking for a parley, which was granted by Miantonomo. The sachem of the Mohegans then advanced to within speaking distance of the Narragansett sachem and addressed him as follows: "You have a large number of brave warriors with you, and so have I with me. It is a pity our men should be killed in a private quarrel between their chiefs. Step forward like a brave man, as you profess to be, and let us two fight the battle ourselves; if you kill me my men shall be yours; but if I kill you your men shall be mine." Miantonomo evidently suspected some crafty maneuver to be executed at this time, replied in a haughty manner "My braves came to fight, and they shall fight." Uncas had prepared his warriors for this crisis, and on the rejection of his offer, fell flat to the ground, which was a signal for his followers to attack the Narragansetts. The Mohegans made a fierce onslaught driving the Narragansetts before them, some losing their lives in the great abyss at which is now called Norwich Falls.

Many of the fugitives were killed, others taken prisoners and Miantonomo was captured at what is now known as Sachem Plains. One of the principal forts of the Mohegans was on the Thames river at a place later called Shantok Point.

After the death of Miantonomo, Pessicus, his brother, beseiged the Mohegans at this fort. The latter sent their women and children to places of safety and awaited the attack. The seige continued for some time, and one night a trusted messenger left the fort creeping along very cautiously finally reached Saybrook, and made known the desperate situation to the English. Lieut. Thomas Leffingwell, Thomas Tracy with several others were sent to help the brave defenders at the fort, and loading a canoe with beef, corn, peas and other provisions and paddled to the fort on the Thames. The Mohegans elevated a large piece of beef on a pole, appraising the Narragansetts that succor had arrived, and the seige was ended. Many other times this fort was attacked by the Pocomtock, Tunxis and other tribes, but the Mohegans were victorious.

Not far distant was the home of Samuel Occom the Indian boy who later became a minister. He went to England and Scotland speaking before large audiences. He favorably impressed the king of England, and on his return to this country brought with him a large sum of money for the Indian school at Lebanon. This school was later removed to Hanover, New Hampshire and ultimately became Dartmouth college. The Mohegans were the true friends of the colonists and when the great King Phillip war took place in 1675, the whole of New England was threatened with annihilation. Uncas sent his son, Oweneco, with warriors to Boston, and his other son, Joshua, went with a large force to Western Massachusetts to assist the colonists in the defence of their homes. During the French and Indian war the Mohegans again sent large numbers of their warriors to assist the colonial forces. In the Revolutionary war they lost eighteen of their number in our fight for independence. They performed valiant service and we have given them scant recognition.

Near the site of old Fort Shantok is a former village site of the Mohegans, and adjoining is one of the old burying grounds of this tribe. Here the Colonial Dames have erected a monument as a tribute to Lieut. Leffingwell. Trading Cove is an interesting place, as here the Indians first traded with the white settlers, and on the opposite side of the river was the Brewster Trading Post erected before the founding of Norwich. Almost every hill hereabouts has a historical story or legend, and one could talk interestingly about them for several hours, but this I will not do. The old road from Norwich Town Green to the Court House at New London is a historical one, as part of the route was the old Mohegan trail, and later this road was made a turnpike, the first in New England, and the second in America. The Chamber of Commerce are working on a plan for a "Memorial Park to the Mohegans" in this locality, and I believe this should have the indorsement of every civic and patriotic society.

NORWICH TOURISTS IN ROME HAD AUDIENCE WITH POPE

The season has been hot in Rome. This fact was discovered by the four Norwich teachers—Misses Alma Bowman, Beatrice Sharp, Susan Wilcox and Mary E. Callahan, who are expected to reach New York from Europe today (Friday).

In letters to Norwich relatives, Miss Bowman tells of the interesting experiences of the party, who arrived in the eternal city in the midst of a period of intense heat. Everything was dry and dusty, so much so that when, on one eventful day, they were among others having an audience with the pope, a later inspection of the vatican gardens showed them quite parched and brown.

All the tourists in the assembly granted the papal audience conformed strictly to the rigid requirements as regards simple and modest dress—all black for the women, heads covered by veils, skirts of due length, gloves which concealed hands and arms, collars decently high. There were about one hundred persons in the room, along the four sides, awaiting the entrance of the spiritual father of over 200,000,000 Catholics throughout the world, who, when he finally entered, walked informally along the waiting lines, each visitor kissing his ring—the historic ring of Peter, the fisherman—then receiving the holy father's blessing. A group of young American boys in the assemblage won his special attention and with them he conversed affably for a few minutes.

The tourists spent one delightful day in a sail on the bay of Naples, down to Capri, the island where ancient Tiberius used to pass his summers. Miss Bowman enthuses over the marvelous blue in and about Capri, especially in the famed Blue Grotto. The party stayed at the hotel where Caruso used to sing as a young man and where the tall oleanders in the court were red as rambler roses.

From that point they went on to Florence.

UNION STREET HOUSE DAMAGED BY FIRE

Box 31, Broadway and Little Park, was pulled in Thursday afternoon about 3 o'clock for a fire at 74 Union street which caused about $350 in damage before it was extinguished. The house is owned by Harry Marcus and the fire started in an unoccupied apartment now in process of redecoration.

The fire got its start in one of the rooms, underneath a pail, burned a hole in the flooring under the pail, allowing it to drop to the lathing beneath the flooring. From there the fire spread to the front of the house and up the studding to the roof, causing considerable damage before it could be put out. The cause of the fire was unknown but was judged as of a suspicious nature, and an investigation is being made.

A telephone call was first sent in but after Chief Howard L. Stanton arrived he caused the alarm to be sent in calling out more apparatus, as the fire had gained considerable headway. Quick work by the firemen prevented a more serious loss. The recall was sounded in about 20 minutes after the firemen arrived at the scene.

FORD TRUCKS COLLIDE AT FRANKLIN SQUARE

The Ford truck owned by I. Hyman & Sons and a Ford truck owned by H. B. Bates collided shortly after 12.30 o'clock Thursday noon, on Franklin square. Hyman & Sons' truck was driven by Henry L. Cloutier of 189 North Main street and was headed south through the square.

The ice truck was driven by Herbert Richardson. After the collision it ran into the alley at the Thayer building, coming to a stop half way down the alley and against the side of the building.

Richardson did not have his license with him when approached by Officer Myron Morgan and was sent to police headquarters, where the accident was reported. He was ordered to appear in court this (Friday) morning.

The ice truck received a broken front wheel, bent axle, damaged radiator and twisted front. Hyman's truck was only slightly damaged. The drivers escaped injury.

COOLIDGE VOICES VIRTUES OF FRATERNAL ORGANIZATIONS

President Delivered Address to National Fraternal Organization of America—Asserted That a Fundamental Principal of Our Country is the Promotion of the Spirit of Brotherhood, of Fraternity and of Mutual Happiness—Declared That the Principal of Freedom and Equality is Based on Fraternity.

Washington, Aug. 29.—Lauding the purposes of fraternalism, President Coolidge today told delegates to the National Fraternal Congress of America, in convention here, that true fraternities were "strong reliances of ordered government, according the public law."

Mr. Coolidge in his address, delivered from the south portico of the White House, did not mention by name any fraternal order or secret society, nor did he touch directly on politics or campaign issues.

Outlining the "homely virtues"—industry, thrift, loyalty, common sense, faith and the golden rule—the president said he endorsed fraternalism because, that spirit attempted "to translate these ideals into daily life and action."

Going to his desk immediately after an early breakfast, which was served when he arrived from the train this morning after his vacation in Vermont, the president put in a busy day and tonight the desk was clear.

The text of the address follows:

"It would be difficult to over-estimate the importance of what the National Fraternal Congress of America represents. In point of numbers I am told that you have between 10,-000,000 and 12,000,000 American men and women organized in various fraternities which have sent delegates to this gathering. It is not only this great number, but many millions in addition made up of the families and beneficiaries of members having a direct concern in the success of these great societies, which makes them inclusive of a very large body of our people. They are likewise broadly distributed areas. Many of them have a membership reaching into every part of the Union. While some are of recent origin, others are older than the nation itself, and the ideal which they represent not only antedates our own nation, but can be traced back almost as far as we can discover records of civilization.

"Whenever we find an institution including large numbers broadly distributed, resting on a foundation that has stood down through the ages we know that we can rely upon it to promote the welfare of mankind."

Spirit of Fraternity.

"It is easy to see how far-reaching is the spirit of brotherhood, of fraternity, and of mutual helpfulness. It is a fundamental principle of our country. It is scarcely too much to say that almost all which we can properly designate as American is a development of these precious principles and high ideals. Our political institutions are the recognition of a common brotherhood. From that emerging arises the right of freedom and equality. It is the basis for orderly and harmonious effort under public authority in our social, political and industrial life. Without the meeting spirit of fraternity, of a common effort for a common purpose, our government, economic and social organizations would at once disintegrate. When you minister to that spirit, when you stimulate it into greater activity, you provide for all the people. It is the expression of the spirit of common brotherhood which makes men desirous to serve their own town, their own state and their own nation in every lawful and law abiding way. It is the prime remedy for selfishness.

"A knowledge of these principles and these ideals is among the most precious of human possessions. They are of universal application. There are none so lacking in means or so humble in position, that they are unable to avail themselves of these blessings. Sometimes I have thought that we do not place emphasis enough upon the homely virtues, or sufficiently appreciate the common blessings of life. It is far from my purpose to criticise ambition. It is the chief mainspring of achievement and progress. But the desire for advancement, the wish for something more, ought not to make us unmindful of the place we now hold and the possessions we now have. The spirit of contentment is one which is well worth cultivating. We Americans are constantly criticized for the earnestness with which we seek wealth and power.

"I doubt if we are any more avaricious and grasping than those of other nations, though I admit we possess the enterprise which makes us more successful. I think it would be safe to say these Americans who have secured great wealth, or have risen to places of great power, would all agree that they are no happier and no better satisfied than they were in their days of comparative poverty and obscurity.

Real Satisfaction in Life.

"We know that this class of persons have for the most part secured their success by making some great contribution to the advantage of their fellowmen, for which they are entitled to our commendation. But it seems perfectly apparent that the real satisfactions of life are not found in great possessions. If that be the case there is no reason to condemn our institutions as old fashioned or consider them as failures because they do not immediately give us all great place and great riches. We must necessarily come to the further conclusion that we shall find the real satisfactions of life in some other direction. One other inference seems to me fairly plain.

"Whatever be the differences in station occupied by various individuals in our free country, there is a very substantial equality in satisfaction and in happiness. Not only youth with sturdy and home made joys, but maturity in humble surroundings may get about as much satisfaction out of life as those with surroundings made up of every luxury. If this, which I believe to be profoundly true, were more fully realized, it would remove much discontent on the one hand and remedy considerable vanity and arrogance on the other. There is a very great deal more of equality in America than is yet appreciated. Some day this will be generally understood and admitted.

"But if our satisfactions do not come from great possessions, we may well inquire what are their source. To my mind they come from the simpler things of life, from the exercise of the homely virtues that are within the reach of all. It cannot be that we live in a world where we must for the most part, with no fault of our own, be doomed to failure and disappointment. That would be the case if we all must have great possessions to gain happiness and success. It must be that there is plenty of satisfaction and happiness to go around, if we will but put ourselves in an attitude to accept them.

Virtue of Industry.

"One of the most elemental virtues, which is not only within the reach of all but must be practiced by all, is industry. It is very difficult to imagine any personal satisfaction of which this does not form a part. In the development of our industrial life we have had to make a large effort to secure and avoid unwilling and mechanical toil for long hours in close confinement. But because we have wished to prevent over-exertion and prolonged strain it must not be inferred that work is undesirable or harmful. There can be no human development without it. Education implies a long and intensive application by every individual who acquires its benefits, the whole fabric of our civilization is absolutely dependent upon it. Without it there is only disintegration and decay. Instead of being a curse, we can rather say that work is the prime source of all our blessings. On a little church high on a Vermont hillside I saw this inscription: 'No man who lives a life of ease leaves a name worth remembering.' Industry pays because it is right.

"But work is activity for an end. It always seeks to accomplish something. The main object with which we usually associate it is that of material progress. This means accumulation. The foundation on which this rests is the virtue of thrift. If there be any general advance, any increment as a result of industry, it is because the people as a whole produce more than they use, because they save. It is only by the practice of this virtue that we can build railroads, establish industries, support commerce, enlarge agriculture, endow colleges and provide places for religious worship. Without thrift these works will not arise.

There Must Be Loyalty

"Another virtue of which we must place a great deal of emphasis is loyalty. We are all placed in positions of more or less responsibility. If we think only of ourselves, we shall reap nothing but failure. When we have once made a choice, there must be loyalty to that choice. This is one foundation of the family relationship. When we have entered into employment, or identified ourselves with a party, or accepted an office, or received the benefits of citizenship, these obligations must be discharged with loyalty. After we have made our choice we must abide by it. Honesty is loyalty to truth.

Faith is Essential

"To these must be added faith. It is faith that lifts us above ourselves and gives us a strength that is not our own. We need faith in ourselves to exercise the power of our own ability and our own character. We need faith in others to secure their more complete reaction to our own efforts. Without it we could not make use of a banking system, or issue bonds and notes which are evidences of indebtedness, extend any credit or make any adequate provision for the future. Not to have faith in our fellow men is not to have faith in ourselves.

"It is to deny our mutual dependence upon each other and upon a divine power. We live in an ordered universe ruled by law and by the guiding power of Providence. We do not yet understand many of its ways. Whatever may appear to be the temporary power of evil it is always overcome by the greater permanent power of good. Not to hold this faith appears to me to attempt to fight against the stars in their courses. Such resistance must end in destruction. Faith in God is the beginning of religion.

"It is not necessary to refer to the desirability, or my belief in the general prevalence, or common sense.

Humanity Requires Fellowship

"It is perfectly evident that the development of humanity requires fellowship. The great effort of civilization is to provide the right to come into fellowship among all the individuals of the human race. It has been and can be somewhat aided by legislation. But in the main it must be worked out and provided by the people themselves. It is not so much a rule of law as an attitude of mind. We cannot improve our condition without sympathy, friendship, love and cooperation.

"In one way or another we are all the recipients of benevolence and charity. We could not even exist without them. These are the spiritual elements of human relationship which needs constant cultivation and improvement. This is not visionary, it is intensely practical. Without these sentiments which find their most complete expression around the domestic fireside, no home could be made, no family could be reared, no nation could be established.

"A definite and practical standard of action for the promotion of human fellowship was stated in the sermon on the mount, with a clearness and precision that have never been surpassed. It has come down to us through all the generations as the golden rule of human conduct. 'Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you do ye even so to them; for this is the law and the prophets.'

We must always consider the other fellow. This is a perfect expression of the fraternal ideal.

No Satisfaction in Life of Ease

"I have referred to these as homely virtues. They are known of all men. Undoubtedly they seem commonplace. It has been related to me that some one asked Henry Ward Beecher if he did not think Christianity had been a failure. He replied that he could not tell, as it has never been tried. Before we hastily conclude that we can disregard the value of industry, thrift, loyalty, common sense, faith and the golden rule, as adequate remedies for much that society desires to correct, we might well remember that they too have never been fully tried. We are always seeking for something that is new and we are likely to be impressed with whatever promises to make existence easier. But there are no satisfactions in a life of ease. No substitutes have ever yet been found for these virtues. There can be no substitutes. They do not require any elaborate preparation in order to be put into operation. They do not rely for their use or effect upon any act of Congress of official sanction of the government. They have that tremendous practical advantage of being here, now, and always within the reach of all of us.

It All Depends on Ourselves

"I believe that herein will be found to a very large degree the real satisfactions of life, all of us can, if we will, become partakers of them. It all depends on ourselves for no one can act for us. I do not wish to be misunderstood, because I believe in these I would not have it thought I believe in nothing else or suppose that in our social and political relations many other things do not need to be done. But these are fundamental and necessary, they always work. Before we conclude that the times are altogether out of joint that all our institutions have proven a failure, that we must have an entire new order of things, we ought to be certain that we have fully availed ourselves of the advantage of the observance of these simple, elemental, homely virtues. It will be time enough to experiment with proposed substitutes when these have been exhausted.

Fraternal Spirit Summarized

"It is because the fraternal spirit is an attempt to translate these ideals into daily life and action that it is entitled to so much commendation and approval. It deserves to rank among the soundest and most practical efforts of the present day to better the life of mankind. It emphasizes brotherhood. It promotes fellowship. It aims to provide benefits which are not charity but result from mutual service and helpfulness. It teaches its members to consider the future as well as the present in order to provide against adversity. It promotes self-reliance, self-respect, self-control and independence. The rituals of nearly all fraternal organizations are based upon religion. No true fraternity can rest on any other conception. It is for these reasons that they are supporters of the true aims of society, strong reliances of ordered government, according to public law, able advocates of the cause of righteousness and religion, and effective promoters of peace and good will among the nations of the earth."

Fees to Alienists Make Up the Larger Items of Both State and Defense Costs.

Chicago, Aug. 29.—The cost of deciding between hanging or imprisonment for Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, for kidnapping and murdering Robert Franks, will amount to a quarter of a million dollars, according to a compilation of estimates by state and defense. Fees to alienists make up the larger items of both state and defense costs.

Not all bills are in, but Lawrence Cuneo, secretary to Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney, estimated the total would be "between $50,000 and $60,-000." The defense spent another $50,-000, according to Clarence Darrow, chief of defense counsel, with attorneys' fees yet to be fixed.

Other trials have cost the state greater amounts, it was pointed out, but the Franks hearing established a record for a plea of guilty.

Alienists' fees are estimated at $14,000.

Mr. Darrow and his associates agreed to have their fees set by a committee of the Chicago Bar association, which has not acted.

Judge Caverly will remain here a few days more perusing the approximately 2,000 pages of the record of the hearing, and then will retire to prepare his decision.

Loeb and Leopold, attired in new clothing, held forth gaily at the county jail today. Foreman Leopold visited his brother this afternoon and spoke to Nathan about newspaper reports that he and Loeb generally were referred to as displaying indifference. Such accounts were worrying their father, Foreman told Nathan, and he asked that Nathan exercise care not to give such impressions.

PRINCE OF WALES ARRIVED ON LONG ISLAND

Slightly built and diffident, he blushed while newspaper correspondents and reception committees thronged about him in greeting of his second visit to the United States. Three army airplanes hovered over the ship and thousands of persons ashore and on small boats around the Berengaria strained their eyes for a sight of the distinguished young Englishman on his pleasure jaunt.

Shortly afterward he climbed down a ladder to a private yacht which took him to Glen Cove, on the north shore of Long Island, whence he journeyed by motor to the home of James A. Burden at Soyosset. He will depart early tomorrow morning for Washington, to be the guest of President Coolidge at luncheon. Returning to Soyosset, he will stay there for about two weeks.

The prince, clad in a blue shirt and collar and a sack suit of light gray, looked more like a college boy than a man of 30 years reared to be a king.

He appeared to be deeply embarrassed when he found seventy-five newspapermen awaiting him on the starboard deck.

There was no royal pomp about the arrival of the prince. At his own request, there were no military or naval salutes. The only display of that sort was the airplane escort which circled around the Berengaria as she steamed into the bay.

SEAPLANE CAUGHT FIRE OVER BLOCK ISLAND SOUND

Newport, R. I., Aug. 29.—Richard F. Hoyt of New York city and Marion, Mass., a broker, narrowly escaped death today when the seaplane which he was piloting from New York to his summer home caught fire over Block Island sound. Only the timely arrival of the little Block Island schooner May Archer, whose captain had seen the burning plane descend, saved Mr. Hoyt from death by burning or drowning.

The seaplane continued to burn after her pilot was rescued, and, fast filling where, her seams had been sprung, sank. Mr. Hoyt for five years has been traveling to and from his Marion home by plane, he said, declaring this was his first mishap.

DAWES PLACES THE FARM SITUATION ABOVE POLITICS

In Address at Lincoln, Neb., the Republican Vice Presidential Nominee Declared the Agricultural Problem the Most Serious Economic Question Confronting the United States—Object Desired is Equality in Earning Capacity Between Agriculture and Industry—Discussed at Length Phases of the Agricultural Commission Proposal —Warned Against the Adoption of Unworkable Plans

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 29.—(By The A. P.)—Declaring the farm situation to be the most serious economic question now confronting the United States, Charles G. Dawes, republican candidate for vice president, in an address here tonight presented an explanation of the purpose of the present administration in the comtemplated appointment of an agricultural commission.

"We make but one promise — that the republican party utilising the best minds and those by training best fitted for the task, will bend its every energy to the study of our agricultural problem to the end that through legislation or other means, its solution may be accomplished," Mr. Dawes asserted. "Whoever promises more than this is entering into a contract which can not be filled."

The republican nominee devoted the major portion of his address, delivered here in the heart of the agricultural middle west, to the agricultural question taking up the causes for the recent depression in farm prices, the remedies recommended and the prospects for the future.

Need for the appointment of "an impartial, non-partisan competent commission under economic guidance" is imperative, Mr. Dawes said, adding that "the recent improvement in the agricultural situation must not be taken as evidence that the farmers' problem has worked out its own solution."

The problem to be solved, he asserted, resolved itself into a question finding how "equality in earning capacity can be secured between agriculture and industry." This problem, he added, arose primarily from conditions resulting from the world war and foremost among the causes responsible, he declared, was unregulated production. Figures were cited to show the increase in acreage over pre-war years, attention was called to the increase in taxes, the possibilities of extension of co-operative marketing were discussed, and Mr. Dawes then launched into an explanation of the agricultural commission proposal.

"The mere fact that it is not now possible to consider this question when the industry is not in the trough of a terrible depression, as it was sixty days ago, has its great advantages," he declared. "It removes that obstacle to the gaining of perspective which immersion in immediate crises always involves. In fact, there never was a better opportunity presented for the proper consideration of constructive measures relative to an industry than exists at present, when a terrible experience, with its lessons, is so recent and the demonstration of the ultimate effects of economic law is at the same time before our eyes.

"It is, however, one of the fundamental characteristics of human nature to be much more concerned with getting out of the trouble than, when once out of it, to keep from getting in again. This we must guard against, or the opportunity may be lost.

"The position outlined by the proponents of agricultural relief is evidence that they regard properly the protective tariff and restricted immigration more as a moral justification of the demands for agricultural relief than as the cause of the recent depression.

"This is natural, for in the ten year pre-war period, the surplus of the farmers products, as at present, was sold in the world market and be bought in a protected market.

"Our policy of protection in no way eliminates the operation of the law of supply and demand within our own border, but simply limits supply from abroad below a certain price level determined by the import duty.

"That the protective tariff was somewhat lower than thatnow in existence was because it was sufficient to give labor and manufacturing their American market. At that time, (before the war) the manufacturing costs of production in Germany had not been lessened by the enormous decrease in the wages of labor there, caused by the degradation of the mark. Inflation in other European currencies had not then lessened other labor costs in Europe. The lower tariff then prevented ruinous foreign competition as the Fordney tariff does now.

"As to restricted immigration, considering the two periods of before the war and since the war, the difference in the number of immigrants is not yet such as to be a real factor in the difference in labor costs. Other reasons have operated there, including the proper organization of labor for its own protection.

"Fair consideration of all elements in the situation leads on to the conclusion that the great underlying cause for the recent depression in agriculture has been the condition resulting from the world war. * * *

"The recent situation in the American agricultural industry considered by itself, is somewhat analogous to the European situation in industry at the inception of the work of the expert committee on reparations. So great was the necessity for settlement with Europe facing the abyss that almost any plan upon which the expert committee could have unanimously agreed might have been temporarily accepted for it then compelled Europe for the first time, to think in alternatives.

"Even an unworkable plan, adopted unanimously, at least might have provided the basis of a temporary economic peace. But if, influenced by nationalistic or political considerations, there had been drawn an unworkable plan, because that was the easiest—because upon its basis the nationalistic demagogues of the different countries would have been placated—the peace upon which Europe is about to enter would have been temporary, and the chaos which would have come as a result of the inevitable failure of such a plan probably would have marked the beginning of a new dark age for that continent and its civilization.

"The worst calamity that could happen to American agriculture at this time is the adoption of an unworkable plan.

"The difference between an economic and an unwise political settlement of what is to be done for American agriculture, through new legislation, is the difference between success and failure. There must be most careful consideration of the application of economic principles, and also close calculation of the probable effectiveness of any proposed remedy.

"The immediate political exingencies of the great political parties in this campaign would be settled if they could make the American agriculturalists believe in the fulfillment of an unfulfillable promise. But this must not be made a matter of political exigency. It must be considered without prejudice and from every standpoint.

"After two years of discussion upon this subject, as extensive as was ever devoted in the United States in the same space of time to an economic problem, it is at present clear that there is no consensus of either agricultural or economic opinion upon any of the proposed legislative remedies now under consideration. Under such circumstances, the same common sense method of procedure which led to the settlement of the difficulties of Europe should be followed in the search for the settlement of the American agricultural problem."

Mr. Dawes also discussed the possibilities of co-operative marketing, declaring that the problems involved in co-operative marketing should receive most serious and continuous study to the end that this form of distribution may be established on sound lines which ultimately will bring results advantageous to the producer.

"The farmers must organize—preferably on a commodity basis," he continued, "for the purpose of improving marketing facilities where present costs are burdensome or can be reduced, and what is of equal importance, for the purpose of collection and prompt dissemination of information in intelligible form which will aid in the working out of proper seeding and planting programmes."

Mr. Dawes emphasized that the agricultural question "is a national question, * * * non-partisan and economic question and it must not be and can not be either discussed or settled as a party question."

He was employed in the Slater store and by Dearnley & Clarke as a clerk, and later conducted his own store for sixteen years. He was a member of Council Chapleau St. Jean de Baptiste, and of Very Rev. Michael McCabe council, K. of C. He is the first member of the latter council who has died since its organization. He leaves four sisters, Mrs. Angeline Tetreault of Moosup, Mrs. Fred Belanger of Taftville, Mrs. T. A. Rioux, Jewett City, Mrs. George LaBonne, Waterbury, and three brothers, Louis of Taftville, John of New London and Francois of Canada. Value—
The Main Thing Rickenbacker Has to Offer!

That's precisely what every shrewd buyer is after. He wants value—excess value, for the very least amount of money. That, and only that, is found in every Rickenbacker ever built.

Can you find another car which has:

Either a 6 or an 8 cylinder motor which is as finely engineered as the Rickenbacker—one so simple, clean-cut, fool-proof, and compact—one so responsive, powerful and economical? In the matter of motor alone, Rickenbacker is years in advance of the industry.

Who introduced 4-wheel brakes in America? Rickenbacker. And this invention is as important to automobiles as the Westinghouse air-brake was to Pullman cars.

Who was the first to eliminate those annoying periods of vibration? Rickenbacker. "Tandem fly wheels" we call them, which means two balanced wheels—a light one on each end of the crank-shaft instead of only one.

Who made it easy for the ladies to steer an automobile? Rickenbacker. This is largely due to the ball-bearings, which first in this car, replaced the plain bronze type of bearing.

Comfort-providing "cradle" springs are another feature which were conceived by Rickenbacker's engineering staff.

Who first standardized on steel disc wheels? Rickenbacker. This means more resiliency and effects a great saving on tires.

The ingenious Rickenbacker air cleaner, makes for longer motor life and smoother running under all conditions.

These are but a few of the Rickenbacker refinements. All are incorporated in both the famous 6 and the vertical 8. All represent value—sheer, unqualified, absolute, down-right value.

And remember, that in price the Rickenbacker is just as attractive as in appearance. Come in today and see for yourself!

The City of Askum

Excavations in the ruins of the forgotten city of Aksum in Abyssinia were described in a recent address of Professor George Krenker before the Berlin Scientific Society. Aksum was the capital of a Semitic empire which became Christian in the sixth century. It contains a monolithic stele or stone record, more than 100 feet long, the largest ever erected. Royal thrones were found by the excavators. On the site of the city is built one of the oldest churches of Christendom, the center of Abyssinian Christianity. A monastery containing 1,000 monks, is built on a nearby mountain slope. The monks assert that they possess the original shrine of Soloman's temple.

Evergreen Sheds Leaf.

Some are of the opinion that evergreen trees carry the same crop of leaves throughout their entire life, says Nature Magazine. This is not correct, for evergreen trees develop successive new crops of leaves and shed them regularly, but they are not completely devoid of foliage at regular periods of each year.

Smallest State.

The smallest independent state is Monaco, area approximately eight square miles, bounded by the Mediterranean and the French department of Alpes-Maritimes. The principality practically consists of the capital, Monaco, Monte Carlo, and the village of Condamine.

Wild Horses Increase.

Wild horses in the vicinity of Bend, Ore., have increased so rapidly that they are becoming a nuisance. Extremely low prices for horses resulted in the ranchers turning them out into the mountains to shift for themselves.

Surely Is.

Isn't it queer that the things that people want most to know are usually none of their business?

New Pacific Record

Interest in trans-Pacific speed records was revived with the arrival at Vancouver recently of the Canadian steamship Empress of Asia from the orient, the vessel making a new record for herself in the Yokohama-British Columbia service. She reached Race Rocks at 11:09 a. m., July 20, exactly eight days fourteen hours and forty-eight minutes after leaving the Japan coast. The steaming time of the Empress of Asia is within four hours of the record of the steamship Empress of Canada, which made the run in eight days ten hours and fifty-three minutes from Yokohama to the quarantine station at William Head, B. C., in June, 1923. An average speed of 20.2 knots was maintained throughout the voyage. On her seventh day out from Yokohama the Empress of Asia steamed 477 miles.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Earl H. Leach underwent an operation for appendicitis at the W. W. Backus hospital in Norwich Thursday afternoon. Friday he was reported comfortable. He had returned to his home in Wauregan a week ago after a month's visit here with his grandmother, Mrs. Theodore F. Bailey.

Danielson's business section glowed Friday evening under the brilliant illumination of its new street lights. A number of them were put in place during the day by workers of the lighting company's force and in the evening were appreciated as a very decided improvement over the lights that have been in use heretofore.

The new lights are of 400 candle power, replacing lights of 80 candle power. Fourteen of these lights are along Main street. Two others are in the square at the railroad station. Another is in Center street near the theater. The lights were authorized at the annual borough meeting last spring but have not been placed until this time because of delay in the arrival of some of the materials required for the change.

The new lights are a part of Danielson's progress toward better things in municipal management. They will make the business center of the town more attractive, and will hold all the appeal and give all the cheer that is associated with well lighted centers.

Deposit with the bank of security. The Windham County National Bank. —adv.

Scores of motorists here who have been gazing while they ride at the Glyph-like figures of bathing girls pasted on the windshields of their cars are given warning that such devices are no longer permitted in Massachusetts and Rhode Island, being regarded as a violation of the motor vehicle laws in that the obstruct vision and as such are dangerous. An order for their removal is being enforced in Massachusetts and in Rhode Island official condemnation of them has been made. Up to Friday afternoon they had not been prohibited in Connecticut, at least no orders relative to them had been received at the state police barracks here.

The bathgirl stickers already have numbers of accidents charged against them in New England towns and cities—because of the fact that they have shut off the vision of car drivers and caused collisions or the running down of people who were walking.

How much of a nuisance the bathing girls are considered across the border in Rhode Island is set forth in the following that appeared Friday, and it is of interest here because so many people go out of this territory into Rhode Island, as many also go from this section into Massachusetts:

As the result of action taken by the state board of public roads, the practice by motorists of obscuring their own vision with paper stickers in the form of bathing girls will be prohibited in Rhode Island. Secretary George R. Wellington is preparing a public announcement of the new ruling which will go into effect shortly.

This action by the Rhode Island board, preceded by a few days similar action by the Massachusetts authorities. In a statement Frank A. Goodwin, registrar of motor vehicles of the Bay State, condemned the practice and declared that offending operators must immediately remove the stickers under penalty of prosecution under the Massachusetts statute prohibiting any operator from having on or in his vehicle anything which may interfere with or impede its proper operation.

Relative to its service in the town of Plainfield, where there has been some criticism, and what is being done to improve it the following statement was given out Friday at the offices here of the Danielson nad Plainfield Gas and Electric company:

There is apparently a misunderstanding in regard to what is being done by the Danielson & Plainfield Gas & Electric company, to improve the election service in Plainfield, Central Village and Moosup. A new sub-station costing $10,000 was put into operation last spring, resulting in much improved voltage conditions and placing each town on a separate line, where formerly all three towns were served from one line. In this way, trouble in one town in no way affects the others.

The high tension line from this sub-station to Danielson was then completely dismantled and an entirely new line, with steel cross-arms and much heavier copper wire, is now being built. This work it is expected will be completed in about three weeks.

During the reconstruction period, the old transmission line from Jewett City which runs through the trees on Railroad street on Babcock avenue, Plainfield, has been used to supply the above towns and little or no trimming is permitted. This line has been a constant source of trouble.

An appropriation has also been passed for a new three phase 2300 volt line for local service in Plainfield, and a new three phase line to Moosup was completed last spring. While the service during the reconstruction period is not all to be desired, these are a few of the things the electric light company is doing to better the service.

Mr. and Mrs. David A. Witter are entertaining Mr. Witter's sister, Ruth Witter, of Derby.

Manufacturing concerns in Danielson will close this noon until after Labor day.

PUTNAM

The democratic party of Putnam has elected the following delegates to party conventions to be held in Hartford: State Convention—Edmund Dubois; Alfred Bonneville, J. J. McGarry, Edward W. Mullan, George Potvin, Congressional Frederick Dumas, Thomas F. Ryan, Eugene Dumas, Alexander Gilman, Mrs. Mabel D. Ryan. Senatorial, Alfred Bonneville, Mrs. W. J. Bartlett, Edmund Keane, Joseph W. Paradis, John J. McGarry. Each delegate was empowered to appoint his own alternate in the event that he is unable to attend.

Putnam will have Chautauqua again next year. This was emphatically emphasized at the close of this year's Chautauqua, Thursday evening, when it was announced that 75 guarantors had signed for next year. This is 45 more names than needed and the largest number that ever signed since Chautauqua first came to Putnam.

The officers for next year are: President, Howard C. Bradford; vice president, Albert H. Williams; secretary, Dr. H. L. Pease; treasurer, Miss Emma Roberts; ticket committee chairman, Iver Nelson; lot and permit, Elbert C. Kinney; publicity, Mrs. W. J. Bartlett; hospitality, Miss Constance Russell.

The guarantors for this year voted to have the secretary send a written vote of thanks and appreciation to Miss Constance Russell for her activity as an entertainment committee and the manner in which she handled this duty.

There was one of the largest audiences that ever assembled on a closing night. The superintendent was showered with congratulations and he in turn expressed his appreciation of Putnam audiences, also the appreciation of the performers.

On account of local conditions it was necessary to put forth a special effort to make Chautauqua a success. Under the circumstances the committees and officers are greatly pleased with the outcome and declare the program for the week was the best ever given.

The superior court for Worcester county, Mass., has appointed a committee to examine Mitchel Shotdian, formerly of Putnam who some weeks ago shot and killed his mother-in-law and tried to shoot his wife. Shotdian then turned the revolver on himself, but recovered from his wounds at a Worcester hospital.

Shotdian lived in Putnam for some years before going to Worcester. He saw service overseas and was gassed. Friends in Putnam knew that he often complained of severe headaches and that he did not appear normal after his return from the World War. He was always considered a quiet, unassuming young fellow by those who knew him.

A. W. Buchanan, representative of the state board of Education, who usually comes to Putnam every Monday morning to examine children who wish to leave school and go to work, is to be in Putnam next Tuesday, as Monday is a holiday. He will be at the municipal building at nine o'clock and will go to Central Village in the afternoon.

Funeral services for George A. Wheaton, 53, who died Monday at the home of Frank G. Slye, at Pomfret Landing, were held at the undertaking rooms of Smith & Walker, Friday afternoon at one o'clock. Mr. Wheaton, who had been ill for five weeks, had made his home with Mr. Slye for the past five years.

A funeral service was held at Grove street cemetery chapel, Friday afternoon at two o'clock, for Mrs. Elizabeth Potter Hollingworth, of Pittsburgh, Mass., formerly of Dayville, who died at her summer home in Becket, Mass., Tuesday. She was a daughter of Albert and Almira Potter, of Dayville, and was a direct descendant of Roger Williams. She is survived by her husband and four nieces.

Mr. Dupre was born in St. Simon, Canada. He came to Putnam when he was thirty years old. He is survived by his wife and two children.

Leroy Ames, son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren P. Ames of Walnut street, will return to Aurora college, Aurora, Ill., next week for his sophomore year. He will be accompanied by his sister, Miss Thara Ames, who will enter with the freshman class.

Attorney Charles L. Torrey, public defender for Windham county, and State's Attorney, Charles E. Searls, were in Willimantic, Friday, attending to matters concerning the criminal term of court that opens next week.

BANK EXAMINER LEAVES AFFAIRS WITH RECEIVER

(Special to the Bulletin)

Putnam, Aug. 29—After a checking and rechecking lasting nearly three weeks, the statement of the assets of the First National Bank of Putnam was completed, Friday afternoon and Bank Examiner William B. Carolyn, turned over the assets to the receiver, Charles H. Coffin. This eliminates the bank examiners and leaves the bank's tangled affairs in the hands of Receiver Coffin to liquidate.

The fact that the inventory is completed does not throw any light on the situation, as far as the creditors and the general public is concerned. The report will be sent to the comptroller of the currency in Washington. It is maintained here that the bank examiner and the receiver have no authority to give out any statement, in fact are under instructions or regulations which forbids them to do so.

While no information comes from those in a position to know the exact state of affairs, it is the general opinion, that eventually the bank will pay a hundred cents on the dollar. Whether this will necessitate an assessment on the stockholders is not known, but it is generally accepted as so that there will be no less to depositors. In view of this, depositors are being urged to be wary of anyone who may appear and offer to buy their claims at less than one hundred per cent. face value. Such offers will only be from men who believe that they can eventually make money by buying the deposit, the same money that the depositor can make if he is patient.

As it appears now, people naturally curious may never have that curiosity satisfied, they may never have answered the questions being asked: How long have the irregularities been going on? How was the shortage covered up? Why didn't the bank examiners discovered the irregularities before? Where has all of the misappropriated money gone to? Who received the benefit of the large sums? These and similar questions have been heard for the past two weeks.

It has been stated in some newspapers, probably with little foundation, that the irregularities began five years or more go. This is not the general opinion locally. It is believed here that the situation has arisen within three years at most.

It is also believed that the assets of Gilpatric's estate may be considerably more than at first supposed.

GALES FERRY

The wind and rain storm, Tuesday, was one of the worst in years. Trees were uprooted, two power boats, filled and sank in the harbor at Perkins place, corn was blown flat. The storm was strong from the northeast, and following a line, east of the home, of Noyes B. Allyn, three large locust trees on his grounds were uprooted. They are said to be 75 years old. A grape arbor and lattice screen followed and a popular on the lawn of Eddie Simmons nearby, one locust tree fell on the wires of the Eastern Connecticut Power company across the road in the afternoon and the village was without power until Wednesday morning about 10 o'clock when the company had the wires in condition again. R. Irving Hurlbutt, road supervisor, had the highway cleared, the trees being trimmed up, and by order of Selectman J. Edmund Norman they were removed to the grounds of Mr. Allyn, where they will sometime be used for firewood. This opened up the road for traffic again. The Good Maxwell Will Change Your Conceptions of Performance

The good Maxwell is now far in advance of previous conceptions of four-cylinder performance and value. One of its most notable improvements is the practical elimination of vibration—but the touch of Chrysler engineering genius is evident in every phase of riding and driving.

Maxwell is now the complete realization of the high standards toward which the new organization began to build three years ago.

Ride in the good Maxwell and drive it—and then decide for yourself whether anything in the four-cylinder field, at anywhere near its price, can match it.

WINDSHIELD STICKERS.

A ruling that must be looked upon as being in accordance with the regulations is that which has been made by the registrar of motor vehicles in Massachusetts, who has ordered all pasters on the windshields and rear windows of automobiles removed. The law is not new but the ruling is, having been prompted by the manner in which auto owners were decorating their cars with pictures of bathing girls, large ones and small ones, thin ones, and fat ones, until it was possible to regard them as interfering with the proper operation of motor vehicles.

This fad, for which no one is expected to offer a logical excuse, has been growing among a certain number. One poster wasn't enough; there must be several and those who like the fat girls were competing with those who like the thin. It not only covered up part of the windshield, which needs to be kept unobstructed if the driver is going to have the proper view of the highway and corners, but the decorations served to draw attention from the handling of the car and the observance of due precaution.

It is not that the registrar of motor vehicles has any special antipathy to the bathing girls, but because the fad has shown signs of dangerous developments that he has taken action, and under his order all kinds of stickers on the windshields are of course involved. This means that a long list of pasters will have to be abandoned and some plans for adopting such a plan for publicity purposes will have to be given up. There are windshield stickers which cover much more glass than do the bathing girl pictures, and there are those for which little more can be said.

In the interest of safety, a factor which has to be constantly kept to the front these days, the ruling must be regarded as a good one and one that will be complied with without balking for the most part. It is the law in the first place and it is filled with common sense.

HYDRO ELECTRIC DEVELOPMENT.

Canada has been having a visit from Sir William Ashley, a noted British economist, who in the course of a recent address made reference to the resources of the dominion in waterpower and the promising future benefits that were in store from the development of hydro-electric plants.

There is a disposition in Canada to encourage such development and there are those who are not so much interested. There is a disposition to feel that while hydro-electric development might do much for Canada the establishment of great national power stations in England for the conversion of the coal into electricity would be of great benefit and that England might well give consideration to its own problems before attempting to tell Canada what it should do.

Perhaps that isn't a very grateful attitude to take. It is easy to understand that Canada might well be interested in the views which others have as to its possibilities. Sir William Ashley is not the only one who has pointed out Canada's opportunities for hydro-electric development. It is a subject that has long been studied, but it is unfortunate that there is a sentiment in Canada, quite the same as there is in Maine, against the production of electric current except for such use as the dominion may have for it. In other words instead of checking the enormous waste that is going on daily because of the failure to harness the streams there is no interest because Canada is not ready to use all the power it might develop, though it might easily find a market through the distributing system which has been projected in this country.

It is a deplorable fact that there is a willingness to let the usefulness of its many streams go for naught until someone is prepared to establish manufacturing plants along their banks. Canada and Maine might serve their neighbors after taking care of their own requirements and do so at a handsome profit to themselves. It is regrettable when they persist in denying advantages to others as well as themselves. And insist on continuing the waste when a way of checking it has been found.

FIGHTING MOSQUITOES.

There is more or less common interest in the fight against the mosquito. If by chance a community is free from them, residents thereof have had sufficient experience at places which they frequent to understand the characteristics of the pest and to appreciate their undesirability. Thus whatever progress is made in eradicating them is a matter of general interest.

It is claimed that Providence is boasting of the fact that the number of mosquitoes within its limits is negligible. If Providence has conquered the mosquitoes it has reason to boast, for it was infested with them in a manner to cause great discomfort, and it has been waging a fight for a number of years in behalf of prevention.

The important thing in connection with the mosquito nuisance is to fight it at its source, and to realize that more than the immediate vicinity must be included. Stagnant pools of water, swamps and lowlands are the chief breeding places and Providence in keeping with other places has been giving them baths of oil. It has even used it in the catchbasins and, in recognition of the fact that there are no immigration restrictions in effect among the mosquitoes, it has reached out into surrounding towns and given like treatments to breeding places there.

Results are what count, for thousands of dollars spent without the desired relief means just so much waste. When Providence is able to point to the great reduction of mosquitoes and to declare they are negligible there, it isn't to be inferred that they are "" gone, but there has been progress made. Perhaps the real gain has come from establishing the fact that the authorities have hit upon the right method of attack and that continued and increased operations will eventually end the evil.

The plan of drainage and the system of oiling bid fair to produce relief in any community that is afflicted. Work and expense are involved but they are secondary to being chewed up by mosquitoes.

WELL DIRECTED ACTION.

The republican congressional committee makes no mistake when it declares that it is to enter every district where there is a chance for republican victory and wage a contest bent upon placing in congress a house that will be not only republican in name but in spirit and action.

Good and sufficient reason for this decision was furnished by the situation that existed in the last session of congress where those who were elected as republicans, were rated as republicans and claimed to be republicans failed to support the policies of the party and administration. By their flirting with the radical forces they were simply playing into the hands of the opposition and causing embarrassment to the administration in its effort to obtain desired legislation.

Where party government is depended upon there is no place for the system of bloc government that has been borrowed from Europe. The quicker that can be eliminated the better it will be for the country. The idea that no legislation will be supported that does not conform to the dictates of a certain group is the height of folly. It is un American and the time for putting an end to it is on election day.

The congressional committee is likewise making no mistake by making its preparations for this fight thus early in the season. There is as always the need of getting out the vote and impressing upon voters the importance of doing their part to obtain the conditions which they desire. Congressmen may gain the idea that slight interest in their selection may mean little regard for what they do. It is time that any such impression was promptly terminated, and a well directed campaign fight should accomplish it. The committee moves in the right direction.

DEPENDING ON GERMANY.

Much depends upon Germany as to the early application of the plan arranged at the London conference. Much has depended upon Germany for a long time. The present situation in Europe is due to that country, and it has been prolonged because or Germany's determination to obstruct.

It will be unfortunate now for Germany to prevent the putting into force of the Dawes plan at this time. Because of the requirements and the obligations placed upon the railroads of Germany in settling the reparations question, a two-thirds vote in approval is required in the reichstag. Inasmuch as that failed on the second reading it means that either that must be overcome by quick work or else the reichstag must be dissolved. Then the agreement might be signed but it would be a matter of several weeks before ratification could be obtained provided the election resulted favorably.

There have been too many delays already without facing any more. The fact that the responsibility rests with Germany isn't enough to overcome a certain opposition in that country. What pressure can be brought to bear upon others is a question. The impression is gained that Germany sentiment is for the most part with the Marx government. This should be apparent, and probably is, to those who are now responsible for throwing a monkey wrench into the machinery but they are unwilling to sacrifice their own views though in the minority and are insistent upon making all the trouble possible. No consideration has been given to the effect of such tactics in the past and none is being given now.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

There were apparently some trees which did not jibe with the landscape ideas of the weatherman.

"There's nothing like leather," says a headline. That is, of course, barring an occasional steak.

The man on the corner says: Have you been kind to the neighbor's cat during the vacation season?

Not every boy and girl was overjoyed by the announcement of the date for the opening of school.

The coming of the prince of Wales means much good advertising for Long Island and Lord Renthrew.

At this stage of the vacation season the pocketbook has been relieved of any undue strain from which it might have been suffering.

Those who gather and eat toadstools instead of mushrooms are lucky if they get a chance to recall that advice to "Be sure you're right; then go ahead."

Just because Massachusetts had auto fatalities during the week when there was a decrease in drunken drivers doesn't argue for an increase of that particular class.

Connecticut had a hard storm, but we must still insist that those living in the Nutmeg state are fortunate to escape some of the devastating storms of the midwest.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

In the final appraisement of the several presidential speeches of acceptance, that of Mr. Coolidge stands forth clear cut and distinct for, at least, the high level of its discussion of real issues. Wisely or unwisely he did not deem it expedient to devote the greater part of his speech to throwing mud at other parties. The voters of this country may be divided into two classes according to their views of public affairs. The first is the "treat 'em rough" class, who measure the quality of their candidate by the amount of slime he can hurl at his opponents. This is the test of his fitness for the highest administrative office on earth. The other class embraces all those who are old fashioned enough to believe that the candidate should deal with the great political questions of the day. President Coolidge belongs to the latter class, and there are some people who believe that he has done this honestly, and with some degree of ability.

The "Cornfield Philosopher" makes this trite remark: "The time really to enjoy a summer vacation is about the middle of January." This sentence has the twang of a sensation, but it evidently was not uttered with that end in view. It is easy to pass the sentence by with a sneer saying it is utterly ridiculous. Think a moment! What vacation as a rule yields the greatest satisfaction, that which is entered into on the wane of the moment with little or no deliberation, or the one that has been carefully planned months ahead? Do place, time, expense, companions, and needs of mind and body have anything to do with a real vacation? They are the bone and sinew, blood and muscle of a real vacation? To get all this there must be intelligent planning as far back as "the middle of January." We may be compelled to change our plans, but we should plan just the same.

Can anyone spend an August day more ideally than as follows: Start from the Rose of New England in a good automobile with a good driver and a bunch of fellows almost as high grade as yourself. Let the objective be some point on the sound. If you want the best point on the whole coast from New York to Eastport of course it will be Groton Long Point. When you arrive at this last word in creation, you stop at a commodious cottage presided over by a genial host and hostess. As you are of the "earth, earthy" you will be thrown into a frenzy of delight over the delicious odor of steaming clam chowder. After some of your party have devoured three plateaful of the unfortunate bivalves, your host arranges a sail in a power boat for Fisher's Island where bathing is indulged in on one of its incomparable beaches. After more sailing with some fishing the return is made to the "flesh pots of Egypt," that is to more clam chowder. After that the Rose of New England.

Are we not inclined to pity an automobile driver? I do not mean the fellow who is carelessly the cause of an accident, but the fellow who must be "Johnny on the spot" all the time. But is there not a rich compensation for this attentive strain? Does it not strengthen, if it does not create, alertness? Hands, feet, eyes, judgment must be ready to act on the spur of the moment. You never know what the lower animals, or children, or women, or city officials, especially traffic cops in the middle of the street are going to do next. One needs to have as many pupils in his eyes as a horse fly to be up to all these emergencies. Now if an man learns to be alert in one thing he is not apt to be stupid in anything. Hence the value of driving an automible.

In these days in which so much is said about working for permanent peace, a good argument in its support is found in the campaign in and about Manassas, Virginia, the last day of which was Aug. 30, exactly sixty-two years ago. Manassas was one of the tragedies of the war of the rebellion. History tells us how it lingered along month after month through the inactivity or incompetence of General McClellan. His dilly-dallying exhausted the patience of Washington in both the legislative and administrative departments. On this last day had the divisions of McDowell and Ricketts been properly supported the result would probably have been different. McClellan was a wonderfully good drill master, and understood the science of war, but his inactivity if not a disease was a crime. This whole Virginian campaign was a good illustration of the futility of war.

One of the most important commodities in our modern industrial world is oil. The political world proposes also to work it for all it is worth in the presidential contest that is now on. As oil in this double sense is so important it may be well to remember that the first oil well in the United States was sunk near Titusville, Pennsylvania, Aug. 31, 1858. When we connect this fact with the present oil industry, certainly one of the very greatest in the world, we have some idea of the rapidity of its development. The Standard Oil company with its subsidiary concerns is the greatest industrial organization in the world. When one considers the fact that many of the original oil wells have become exhausted, and the tremendous strain that is put on those still running, complete exhaustion is probable before many years. But some keen mind will find a substitute.

The very early approach of Labor day brings the inevitable feeling that the annual summer vacation has come or is rapidly coming, to a close. Of course it is somewhat shorter than usual, but the length of a vacation is by no means its only asset. Possibly it is not its most valuable asset. There are many factors that enter into a good vacation; one that leaves pleasant memories for months to come. To have a good vacation one must have rest, change, agreeable companions, and an attractive place. The real source of a good vacation lies within, and unless we do have it these externals will not amount to much. It is not so much geography as an attitude of mind that lies at the root of a good vacation. Salt water and fresh water, mountains and seashores are always subordinate to the spirit that possesses us. It is we ourselves rather than our surroundings that determine the character of our vacations.

In religious papers there seems to be a revival of plans for church unity. The writer is not so optimistic as some along this line, because it is so difficult to overcome insistence upon ceremonial non-essentials. It is not theology that is keeping denominations apart today. All denominations have both conservatives and liberals as far as a doctrine is concerned and they live together in brotherly love and harmony. A strong preacher who is not an extremist in his belief will be welcome in any Christian pulpit today, as far as his belief goes. But the stumbling block is ceremony. The Romanist insists as strongly as ever that the consecrated elements are the actual mystical blood and body of Christ. The Anglicans will not recognize as full ministers those who are not in the line of a technical succession. And thus it is we are kept apart not by the acceptance of essentials, but by insistence upon non-essentials.

CHURCH LIFE IN COUNTRY COMMUNITIES

The presence of city people in Connecticut country towns is stimulating the church life in these communities during the summer months when the churches are otherwise all but deserted. Not only are the summer visitors from the city attending the church services, but they are giving liberally to the support of these churches, thus making it possible for the communities to have resident ministers the year round.

Coming from the cities where church life is dormant during the summer, the city people, according to reports from the country towns, are attracted to the small country churches and take an active interest in the religious and social life that centers about them.

The resident minister in such a community thus has an incentive to stay in the country town during the winter months and his presence with his family makes life in the village immeasurably more interesting, but the church activity of the summer months which is increased by the coming of the city people makes it necessary for the minister to forego his summer vacation and take his holiday later in the year.

One Connecticut country town has just engaged a resident minister for the first time in seven years, the community having adopted the federated church plan which mobilizes their meagre or disunited numerical, social and financial forces and thereby furnishes an adequate task for a capable minister.

Other Connecticut villages are considering the advisability of adopting the federated church plan, which is already in operation in fifteen centers in the state. The Connecticut Federation of Churches, realizing the importance of the country church as a factor in conservation and progress, is co-operating through its committees on comity, rural life, and social service, in putting the federated church plan into effect in the small towns.

A brochure entitled The Country Church of Yesterday and Tomorrow has been prepared by Reverend Morris E. Ailing, Secretary of the Connecticut Federation of Churches, which describes the village of Northford as typical of many communities in the state where the federated church would prove advantageous. The brochure, which is illustrated by pictures of country churches, reads in part:

"The story of this Connecticut village is told because the facts are typical of many within our state and well worth recording.

Under the shadow of Totoket Mountain, ten miles from New Haven, lies the community of Northford, a society within the town of North Branford, once a part of ancient Branford.

The long street has the charm of old houses with views of wooded hill and rumbling brook. Avoided by the railroad the old factories have fallen to decay. Old houses have gone down before wind and weather. Few of the sons of the fathers are now upon the land.

The removal of small but thriving industries to more favored places left the farms as the descendence of village life. For twenty-five years the farms have undergone the shiftings and changes common to New England, waiting for the outreach of the city to turn the ebbing tide.

Of late a new prosperity has come. The old stage road has become a state highway straight and smooth. Hillsides have been restored to the plow. Farm and village property has risen in value. Northford faces the future confidently.

With deepest appreciation for the lives of those who remained at home, with apologies for omissions, not one of which is intentional, a partial enumeration of Northford's contribution to the work of the world is given.

There was a foundation of good stock possessing thrift, and energy. There was, as money is counted today, no accumulation if wealth. Who kept down the weeds of inaction? Who opened the windows of vision? Who moulded this material?

If proof were needed, Northford's children could be called back today to testify that the pastors and teachers of the village were the inspirers of youth. Religion as taught and exemplified by the ministers was a vital force in all the community.

The springs of the river that flows the length of the valley have been tapped at the source to supply water to the city. The youths who stood at the village altars have been drawn out into the larger life of the city, state and nation.

And now—

The houses provided for the ministers are rented or tenantless. There is not a resident pastor in the village. Yet Northford is not a Godless town. The stream of influence, though weakened and intermittent, still flows, waiting for the forces of religious conservation to develop new sources of power."

This story is typical of scores of villages in Connecticut. Many of the older families are gone. The newcomers are alien to the life of the churches or without that sense of attachment held by the fathers.

Always remembering that "where two or three are gathered together" the work of the Christian church may be effectively done, we have also to face the fact that standards of business efficiency are needed in churches as elsewhere.

In the cities and larger towns where parishes are large enough to permit of normal growth, churches average from five hundred to a thousand members. A common factor necessary to the life of these churches is their ability to support a resident pastor.

Many of the older churches in the smaller communities have memberships of less than a hundred and not a few of less than fifty. The constituencies of these churches are now from one-fifth to one-tenth the strength of their sister churches in the city.

In another community there are twelve hundred people, of whom a thousand are divided among the Baptist Congregational, Episcopal and Methodist churches. Each church has a possible following averaging two hundred and fifty or less, with membership averaging fifty persons.

Whatever sentiment there may be towards a local problem like the above, one consideration must by common consent be kept uppermost. Generally speaking, strong leadership can be commended where there is work for a strong man to do.

Connecticut is spending three quarters of a million dollars of state revenues annually upon schools in the smaller towns. Money is cheerfully appropriated to agricultural agencies giving service to the farmer. The city merchant is interested in good roads as trade assets.

The importance of the country church as a factor in conservation and progress calls for an approach to this problem through a responsible agency, which can work as intelligently and as effectively for rural and village improvement as other agencies.

The problem is: to awaken the churches in the larger centers to a sense of their responsibility for the country church; to arouse the country church to a sense of its own needs; to furnish a mechanism through which the work can be done."

Mrs. Sage's 30 Years of Privation.

Born amid comfort Margaret Olivia Slocum felt privation when her family met with financial reverses, and had to endure 30 years of gruelling hardships before she became Mrs. Russell Sage.

The Slocum home in Syracuse, N. Y., was a happy one until the father lost his money in the panic of 1837, and Margaret, then nine, had to go to work to help the family.

By home study she gained the rudiments of an education, and at 16 she prepared to enter Mount Holyoke college, hoping to obtain housework to pay her tuition for the four-year course. Taken ill on the way, she was compelled to remain with an uncle at Troy until she recovered her health.

Induced to enter the Troy Female seminary, she made her way by doing any kind of work that she could obtain and by abstinence almost akin to privation. After she was graduated she spent 10 years as a teacher in Syracuse, Troy and Philadelphia schools. Receiving but small pay and helping the family at home, she had little for even the comforts of life, and hers was a life of self-denial until she reached middle age.

She was 13 when her schoolmate and friend married Russell Sage, a young banker of Waterville, N. Y. Twenty-six years later, Mrs. Sage died, and two years afterward the banker proposed to Miss Slocum, then 41. Sage was rated as rich, but her sudden change to the mistress of millions did not alter her, and her life was unostentatious and happy. Her greatest pleasure was in bestowing benevolences.

Five years before his death Sage turned over to her the entire management of his business and his fortune, and her handling of his affairs was highly successful.

Mrs. Sage was 78 at the time of his death and she fell heir to $10,000,000. She founded the Russel Sage foundation, gave to friends, institutions, and cities of her years of privation, and helped many causes that seldom were thought of by benefactors. She became known as Lady Bountiful, and despite the multitude of prasistent and threatenable demands for funds, she enjoyed living until the time of her death.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

A Heavenly Vision.

Whereupon O, King Agrippa, I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision.—Acts 26, 19.

St. Paul is looking back and remembering the brightest point of all his life, his life not only took a new departure but began to move in a different direction and became a new life.

Every thing a man does that is worth while comes to him in the first place in some kind of vision. As we look back on our lives we can see that visions have been shown us, the difference in whether we have been obedient or disobedient to them.

The vision of the Christian is Christ. Paul, when the heavens opened on the way from Jerusalem to Damascus, had a vision of the crucified and risen Jesus; when he recognized the vision he became obedient to it.

The Christian recognizes the life of Jesus as a pattern of the life into which he is to be shaped by his obedience to Him.

It is not an unnatural thing to become a Christian. The rescuing of a soul and bringing it to Christ is simply bringing it back into a life to which it belongs. The Saviour's teaching is that man belongs to God, and that coming to God is coming back to the God we have departed from. St. Paul's one great aim of his life was to do only the Master's will, imprisonment, persecution or peril of any kind were as nought to him for the great love he bore his Master. He says, "None of these things move," when a life is filled with the spirit of the Christ. He will strive to win others to walk in the Narrow way, his life will be an inspiration to all who come in contact with him. This Christian life is the glory of all life. It is only by that has at last the vision of the golden streets and the river of life.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Dr. David Starr Jordan, who has tentatively accepted the directorship of the recently established Pan-Pacific Research Institute at Honolulu, is the well-known Pacific Coast educator who for so many years was president and later chancellor of the university founded by Leland Stanford in memory of his son, Leland Stanford, Jr. Of late years Dr. Jordan has been prominent as a publicist, much interested in promoting international good will. His earlier career was that of a zoologist and an authority on ichthyology, with experience as professor of high grade educational institutions in the middle west. He was president of Indiana University when he was summoned, in 1891, to go to Palo Alto and lay the foundations of the university which is his creation, on the pedagogical side, precisely as much as it is Mr. Stanford's on the pecuniary side. Dr. Jordan is a member of many learned societies in Europe and in the United States, and has received the degree of doctor of laws from a number of universities and colleges.

Mrs. McCormick Tells How Tanlac Corrected Troubles and Restored Health.

"What Tanlac does it certainly does well, for it restored my health a year ago and I am still feeling fine," this is what Mrs. Mabel McCormick, 88 Paris St., Portland, Maine, devoted mother of seven lovely children, has to say for the famous treatment.

"Four years of stomach trouble had brought me down to where I barely had strength to do my housework and care for my children. The gas on my stomach made my heart skip and palpitate until it would frighten me, and my nerves were completely undone.

"Life was more or less a burden to me then, but since taking Tanlac it's a genuine pleasure. Tanlac just seemed to soothe and settle my stomach from the very first, and three bottles made me so healthy and happy that I go about my duties every day singing. Tanlac was a blessing to me, that I can never forget."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

By DAVID CORY

Curious Over a Voice

It was three or four days after his first visit that Little Jack Rabbit again hopped up to the tree in which Mrs. Hummingbird had her nest. It took the bunny boy some time before even he could locate her moss-covered home, so like a knot on the limb of the tree it seemed. At last, however, he discovered it. Hardly above a whisper he asked: "Have you laid your eggs yet, Mrs. Hummingbird?"

"Yes, I've laid them," she answered, looking down at the curious little rabbit. "And now I shall warm them with my feathers until two little birdies come out. Won't Mr. Hummingbird be proud?"

"Aren't you afraid perhaps some one will find your nest?" asked the anxious little bunny.

"I don't worry about that," replied the tiny bird. "You see if any one comes near, I never leave it. Neither do I come back if any one is around."

Mrs. Hummingbird was not of an anxious disposition. Although a very particular little person, and most particular about her nest, after she had taken great pains to build it to look part and parcel of the limb on which it rested, she worried no more. She simply trusted to the plain fact that as it wasn't hidden, nobody would try to find it, and because it was in plain sight and seeming to just grow on the limb everybody would overlook it. So contentedly she sat on her twe tiny eggs, no larger than the smallest sized bean, until two little birdies as small as bees should break through the shells. Yes, there she sat, careful not to move lest some eye should discover her little home.

"Where is Mr. Hummingbird?" asked the bunny boy, hitching up his knapsack. "Is he around?"

"I guess so," answered Mrs. Hummingbird. "But even he doesn't know where my nest is," she added, with a chuckle.

"I'll never tell," promised the little rabbit, "Except Mother. You don't mind if I tell her?"

"No, you can tell Lady Love," replied Mrs. Hummingbird, "All the little people of the Shady Forest and the Sunny Meadow love and trust her. Yes, you may tell Lady Love."

Then away hopped the little rabbit, clipperty clip, lipperty lip, up the Shady Forest Trail in and out around the rocks and the bushes, between the trees that almost seemed to touch the big blue sky, from which Mr. Merry Sun shone down all the day long while Billy Breeze whistled his happy song.

Pretty soon, not so very long, the little bunny came to a pile of brush. Something was moving underneath, and the next minute he heard a low voice, as if someone were talking to himself.

"Who can it be?" thought the little rabbit, and being a curious little person, he hid behind a tree.

"Yes, I think this would be a good place," went on the voice, quite low. Then came a scratching sound, a snap of a twig, and again the voice sounded:

"I guess I've found the very spot."

"Who can it be?" thought the bunny boy, peeping curiously around the tree. And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

COLCHESTER HOTEL IS DESTROYED BY FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin)

Colchester, August 29.—The summer hotel owned and operated by K. Goldstein was destroyed by fire here tonight about 10 o'clock with a loss of $15,000. The fire started in the attic of the hotel, broke through the roof and in a few minutes the entire building was in flames.

A fire alarm was sounded and the local department responded but were practically powerless to save the building owing to lack of water. It was necessary to lay hose from a brook 2,200 feet from the scene of the fire as the hotel is located on the New London turnpike and at the edge of the borough. The water supply was so distant from the hotel that it was practically impossible to pump water to the fire.

The building and contents were valued at $15,000 and there was about $5,000 insurance. Some of the contents of the building were saved: The hotel had accomodations for about 50 guests but the greater part of the guests had left for the summer. No one was injured.

Although there is nothing of a boom about it, the demand for printed cottons, especially percales and shirtings, has improved materially of late. In the aggregate, orders have been large enough to force one of the leading textile printing concerns to remain full-time operations.

Figures on file in the Bureau of Dairying, United States Department of Agriculture, indicate that July 1 there were about 730 cow-testing associations in active operation, as against 627 a year ago. This is a gain of more than a hundred in the last year, or more than 16 per cent.

SECRETARY O'ROURKE TO REMAIN IN NORWICH

Following a special meeting of the directors of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce Friday noon, President Herbert M. Lerou announced that the board had prevailed upon John J. O'Rourke to remain as secretary of the chamber. Mr. O'Rourke had submitted his resignation as secretary of the chamber to accept a position as secretary of the Pittsburgh, Pa., Chamber of Commerce. Upon hearing that Mr. O'Rourke was considering the offer made by the Pittsburgh Chamber and was to present his resignation as secretary of the local organization a special meeting of the board was called in an endeavor to persuade him to remain in Norwich.

JOHN J. O'ROURKE.

Mr. O'Rourke, who came here from Lowell, Mass., Nov. 1, 1920, has taken a deep interest in the chamber and his efforts have aided materially in building up the organization to its present excellent condition numerically and financially. The directors felt that Mr. O'Rourke's resignation would be a distinct loss to the organization.

Mr. O'Rourke has agreed to stay with us, said President Lerou, after the board meeting. We all felt that he has been a very valuable secretary to the chamber of commerce. Mr. Lerou added. He went on to say that chambers of commerce in other cities the size of Norwich are paying their secretaries salaries larger than is paid the local secretary. Bristol pays its secretary $4,000, Naugatuck $4,000 and Stamford pays $4,500. All the directors present were unanimous in the board's decision to persuade Mr. O'Rourke to remain in Norwich and several not present called up the chamber office by 'phone to express the same sentiment.

Speaking of some of the most important accomplishments of the chamber of commerce President Lerou called attention to the interest the chamber took in the Williams crossing matter when a committee from the chamber appeared before the highway commissioner to urge the crossing improvement. Other matters in which the chamber has been active include the Colchester highway improvement, the Gardner Lake road, the Norwich-white way, the creation of the local recreational commission; the proposed deepening of the Thames river channel, the bringing of the Werman shoe factory to Norwich and community advertising, 20,000 booklets advertising Norwich having been distributed about the country.

The chamber has also been active in bettering local freight and passenger train service.

WATER BOARD AWARDS CONTRACT FOR STONY BROOK IMPROVEMENT

At a meeting of the board of water commissioners Friday evening at the rooms of the board in the town building, President J. J. Corkery opened the bids offered for the construction of the new dam at Stony Brook reservoir. The lowest of the five bids received was from Louis Petrossi of Hartford, $31,460 and it was the unanimous vote of the board to award him the contract of raising the dam at the reservoir. Mr. Petrossi is familiar with the work at Stony Brook for when the bids for the original dam were received he was awarded the contract for that work.

Of the five bids received, four were from local companies or individuals. The bids were as follows:

Peck-McWilliams Co., $59,982.
Conn. Engineering Co., $46,377.
Lowell J. Wilcox, $36,221.
Archibald Torrance, $34,945.
Louis Petrossi, $31,460.

The estimates submitted are figured on the main dam, side dam, spillway and a new bridge across the spillway. All estimates are figured by cubic yards and include rock and filling.

The plan adopted by the board calls for the construction of a cement core wall and Mr. Petrossi will begin working on the new dam immediately with a view to finishing raising the dam the required number of feet before the setting in of cold weather.

The contract awarded to Mr. Petrossi is only for the work on the dam proper. The city department will have in charge the removal of trees, brush, stumps of trees, cartage of dirt and other work necessary to clean off the shore about the reservoir to a point above the new flow line.

Mr. Petrossi's bid of $31,460 is nearly $10,000 less than had been figured by the engineer, who had placed the estimate for the raising of the dam at $41,000. A sum not to exceed $60,000 was appropriated at a special city meeting held Tuesday evening to cover the entire cost of raising the dam and clearing away the shores to the new flow line.

When the work of raising the dam 5 feet above the present level is completed, Stony Brook reservoir will have a capacity of approximately 500,000,000 gallons, an increase estimated at 112,000,000 gallons over the capacity of the reservoir as it now stands, the present capacity being 388,000,000 gallons. It is also figured that the raising of the dam five feet above the present level will give Stony Brook reservoir a storage capacity per square mile of watershed to that of Fairview reservoir.

WESTERLY GIRL THROWN THROUGH AUTO WINDSHIELD

(Special to the Bulletin)

Westerly, Aug. 29—Ida Saddow of Westerly sustained a cut on the left side of her chin, two on her forehead and a cut in her scalp, the last named requiring three stitches to close, when the Oldsmobile touring car in which she was riding and driven by Salim Tamer of Westminster street, Westerly, was in collision with a touring car operated by Elton Dunham of 191 High street, Westerly, on the Norwich-Westerly road, this side of North Stonington, tonight. Miss Saddow was thrown through the windshield of the machine, the flying glass inflicting the wounds about her face and scalp. She was brought to the office of Dr. M. H. Scanlon where the cuts were treated.

The Oldsmobile was headed in the direction of Westerly while the touring car was traveling in the opposite way when the accident occurred. The driver of the Oldsmobile claimed that a spotlight on the other machine blinded him so that he was unable to see the approaching car. Officers McLean and Sheldon of Stonington investigated the accident.

AUTO COLLIDES WITH TROLLEY WORK CAR

George R. Cummings of Meriden, narrowly escaped serious injury, about 11.45 o'clock Friday morning, when the Hudson coach he was driving, struck a work car of the Connecticut company at the intersection of Washington and Sachem streets, causing the automobile to land up against the sidewalk.

Mr. Cummings was on his way from Meriden to the Norwich State hospital where he has a contract for the roofing of buildings. He was traveling, he stated, at a reasonable rate of speed, when he saw the trolley heading towards the Falls. He, applied the brakes on his car and steered to the right to avoid a head-on collision, stopping in about 75 feet.

The marks on the highway, made by the tires after the brakes were applied, measured 78 feet, when taken by the trolley crew, Robert Lilly, motorman, and Harold Humphrey, conductor. The auto was considerably damaged, losing a running board, left rear mudguard, tail light, and the spare tire was ripped off. No damage was done to the trolley car.

PAUL SANTILLI AGAIN IN CUSTODY OF LOCAL POLICE

Paul Santilli, Italian, 36, charged with rape on a fourteen year old Italian girl and who jumped his bond of $1,000 last June is again in the custody of the local police. Santilli arrived in Norwich Friday night from Philadelphia in custody of Officer C. Smith and was locked in a cell at police headquarters He will be presented in the city court this (Saturday) morning to answer to the serious charge against him.

Santilli was a boarder at the home of a family by the name of Demecco at No. 11 Lake street. June 1st he was arrested by the local police when the serious charge was made against him by Jennie Demecco, 14. He was presented in court the following morning and his case continued until Wednesday morning June 4th. He was allowed his liberty on bonds of $1,000 but failed to appear in court when his case was called.

Since, that time the police have been seeking his whereabouts. Recently they got track of him and he was located in Philadelphia and held for the local police by the authorities of that city until extradition proceedings were completed.

PENDLETON HILL FAIR PROVED SUCCESSFUL EVENT

Pendleton Hill, Aug. 29.—The Pendleton Hill fair, held recently, was very successfully carried out. This fair is an old institution, covering a period of 75 years.

Pendleton Hill is one of the most remote and least densely populated sections of North Stonington. Practically every person, young and old, in the parish, which covers a radius of five miles in nearly every direction, participated in this fair, each playing his or her part excellently.

The decorations in charge of Henry Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Thompson, were as beautiful as they were elaborate. They consisted of hemlock boughs and laurel branches, with beautiful red cedars dressed in their brightest green, and richest berries. These furnished the foundation for a wealth of color supplied by the ladies in charge of each stall. The result was two thousand square feet of veritable fairyland.

A broad midway nearly a hundred feet in length extended east and west on either side of which were colorful and most attractive stalls and booths. Mrs. Robert P. Milne of Dorchester and Pendleton Hill presided over the entrance to the midway and received entrance fees. Her reception room was in light blue.

Opposite on the north side of the midway was the stage for vaudeville, community singing and fancy dancing. Next to this stall was a rest room where Miss Carrie Ryder allowed one to guess in her own especial make of "one, two, three, four" cake. This stall had for its only decoration a very beautiful bedquilt pieced by Mrs. Fidelia Gallup, a lifelong resident of Pendleton Hill, and one of the most earnest workers the fair has ever had. Mrs. Gallup is nearly 96. Her bedquilt was sold for $11.

There was a stall for the sale of useful articles with Mrs. James Brooks of North Andover, Mass., and Pendleton Hill, and Mrs. Byron Dawley of Pensacola, Fla., and Pendleton Hill, in charge. This stall was most elaborately decorated with the national colors, crowned by a magnificent bouquet of red dahlias. Mrs. Dawley, costumed as America, took her part well.

The next stall was a huge candy basket in yellow and white, where Miss Cecile C. Palmer presided.

The next was a very gay booth in pink, elaborately decorated with pink streamers, pink roses, pink sweet peas and pink candles. This booth was presided over by Mrs. Jennie Thompson, a past master in affairs of this kind. Mrs. Thompson made $31.30 on her fancy articles.

The millinery department was decorated in orange and black, with enormous bouquets of tiger lilies.

The rummage stall was in turkey red, with a large auction flag in red with white letters and red streamers. This stall was most ably managed by Mrs. Annie Pendleton Allen of Westerly, and a close relative of Pendleton Hill. The proceeds from this stall were over $30.

Then came the ice cream parlors in black and gold, with elaborate decorations of golden rod, tansy and Joe Pye weed. Mrs. Birdsey G. Palmer and her assistants presided at this stall.

The kitchen and dining room were in charge of Mrs. George Palmer, Mrs. James Cook, Mrs. Charles Roode and Mrs. Martin Chapman. The background was entirely of white with streamers of white, red and green. The ladies wore caps embroidered with the words "Pendleton Hill Fair."

It is probable that $150 will be realized.

In the City Court

Four autoists were in court Friday morning charged with violations of parking regulations or motor vehicle laws and were ordered to pay $3 or more by the court. Three men charged with intoxication also appeared and one for non-support, all charged with intoxication paid fines and costs, the man charged with non support having his case continued for six months.

BODY FOUND IN DORY 13 MILES EAST OF CAPE ANN

St. John, N. B., Aug. 29.—The body of a fisherman, found in a dory 13 miles east of Cape Ann, Mass., by the steamer Prince Arthur on Wednesday afternoon, was today identified as that of William Kellenbeck, of Portsmouth, N. H.

The dead man had been fishing off the Isle of Shoals and was last seen by the lighthouse keeper Tuesday morning, just before a heavy fog set in. A son, who made the identification, said his father was suffering from heart trouble.

Boston, Aug. 29.—John E. Todd, known to detectives as "the man with the toupee," is sought in connection with recent jewel robberies in Hyannis and Woods Hole, where the homes of Mrs. Winthrop M. Crane and E. C. Crossett of Chicago, were robbed of jewelry aggregating over $100,000. A circular sent out today by state police said that Todd was noted for his rapid "getaways" which he generally made in a high-powered automobile with New York number plates.

POPULAR IDOL OF EASTSIDE BASEBALL FANS IS TREATED ROUGH BY SINGLE MEN

After being perched on the pinnacle of fame for the past two weeks and enjoying the homage of an admiring populace, Tod Coleman crashed to earth with a resounding smash when the Single Men rudely and without the least semblance of mercy gleefully kicked the pinacle out from under him Friday evening at Duwell Field. The Single Men made good their boast that they would show that Coleman was only a mediocre pitcher whom fickle Dame Fortune had cast only a floating smile. The Single Men, grim and determined, overcame a four run lead and won out in a three-inning game of intense excitement over the Married Men, 10 to 4.

Coleman was by no means easily toppled from his high seat in baseball and fought staunchly to maintain his balance while the Single Men rocked his pedestal with their battering rams. Try as he did it was beyond his physical prowess to stem the tide of bitted defeat, an onrushing flood that engulfed him and sucked him down into baseball oblivion. Bobbing over with supreme confidence Coleman strode to the mound feeling, as he remarked to one of the fans, "That the Single Men would be lucky if they secured a single hit." But from the first ball thrown from that arm that had held the Single Men in submission during two games, it could be seen that all was not well with the popular hero. A feeling of depression and of impending calamity settled over the Married Men and their supporters, while the Single Men sensing that all was not well with the pitching marvel yelled for his scalp. The fickle crowd which always deserts their hero in his time of trial turned their backs on him and cheered for his downfall.

Coleman also seemed to feel that disaster was silently approaching and pulled himself together after he had issued a base on balls and allowed two hits and struck out a man and threw one out at second, Riley pegging a man out at second.

The Married Men scored four runs in their half of the first inning and all looked rosey for them but Old Man Hard Luck was sneaking up behind their hurler. In the second inning Coleman's throne began to totter but he hung on for dear life, putting his heart and soul into the conflict but without avail, the die was cast against him. Four runs pattered over the plate in this inning all traceable to Coleman's pitching. He walked four men and four hits drove in the four runs. It looked as though he might weather the storm as the score was tied.

The Married Men failed to break the tie in their half of the inning. Then on came the sweeping flood of defeat and down and down and down sank Coleman until it seemed as though he would go clear through to his beloved China, the land of Mah Jong, where he is considered an expert at this pastime. He weakened fast and hit after hit sent runs over the plate until the final count read 10. In all fairness to the fallen idol, it must be said that two of the ten runs were due to errors of his teammates. Manager Cook hating to see his star suffer any longer pulled him from the box and sent in Joe Belair who stopped the slaughter. The Married Men failed to score in their half of the inning. The name of Tod Coleman which was written so flamingly in the East Side hall of fame is now only a charred and blacken memory, and the name of Bob Woodmansee stands in its place for Bob pitched a great game and due credit is given him.

One amusing incident of the game was Cy Perkins' resignation as ump're. Cy had been umpiring a good game until Coleman appealed to him on a decision and Cy threw down the balls remarking to the crowd 'that he wished he could pitch as well as Coleman thought he could." The score:

JOHNSON'S PITCHING FEATURED SENATOR'S WIN OVER YANKS

New York, August 29.—The Washington club increased its lead in the American league race here today winning the second game of its series with the New York Yankees by a score of 5 to 1.

The remarkable pitching of Walter Johnson featured the game. Johnson was forced to retire in the eighth inning, when he injured his right hand stopping a hot liner from Schang's bat.

Johnson struck out seven men getting Meusel three times. New York had seven men left on bases in the second, third and fourth innings. In the fourth inning, New York filled the bases with none out, but failed to score. Bush also pitched well, but Washington made the best of its six hits. Goslin, yesterday's batting star, continued his hard hitting today with a home run and two singles. He scored three runs and drove in a fourth. During the two games, Goslin has driven out seven hits for nineteen bases. The score.

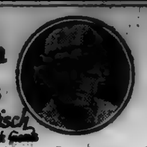
How It's Done In the Majors



By Frank Frisch
(Captain New York Giants)

The infield is playing in. There is a runner on third and one out. Batter hits to second baseman. Second baseman throws home. The runner pulls up and starts back for third.

What should the catcher do in this situation?

When this play occurs, the catcher should start running down the runner who has turned back to third, as soon as he gets the ball. The thing to remember here is to put this runner out as soon as possible in order to prevent the batter who has hit the ball from reaching second on the play.

TEDDY KUNDIG

Teddy Kundig, local aquatic star, clipped 54 minutes and 30 seconds off the record for the Ocean Beach to Fisher's Island swim Friday afternoon, completing the seven miles in 3 hours and 30 seconds. The former record of 3 hours and 55 minutes was held by George Walsh and was made several years ago.

Kundig's swim is remarkable as it was made against bad currents and tides and through water that was made choppy by a slight breeze. This is the second time that Kundig attempted the swim. The first time he came within a half mile of the shore and was forced to quit the water owing to a stiff tide and high wind.

The start was made from the Ocean Beach pier at 11.45 a. m., Kundig cutting through the water at a 38 beat stroke, which he maintained practically all the way, using the English overarm stroke, which he did not change during his whole swim. At 2.45.30 he emerged from the water at Fisher's Island and walked up the shore, where he was greeted by a large crowd which had assembled at the beach when it became known that he was trying to break a record. Kundig was in good physical condition when he emerged from the water, although for the last three-quarters of a mile he had bucked a strong cross current and the water in places was at a temperature of 56 degrees.

After he had rested for a short time he was given a dinner by several Norwich people who are at the Fisher's Island resort, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Chadwick, J. T. Kelly, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Crowe and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Jodoin.

Accompanying Kundig on his swim was S. M. Gruskin of the life saving corps at Ocean Beach and Albert J. Lubchansky of New London, who followed him with a boat. Kundig will attempt a Norwich-New London swim later in the season.

ROMERO TURNS LOSING FIGHT INTO VICTORY

Boston, August 29.—Quinton Romero-Rojas, Chilean heavyweight turned a battle that was going against him into victory tonight by knocking out Jack Sharkey of this city, until a few months ago the heavyweight pride of Uncle Sam's navy.

The blow that sent Sharkey down was delivered from a swinging right hook to the jaw in the closing seconds of the eighth round. The bell floor. He came up for the ninth round rung with Sharkey sprawled on the but fell across the ring in a futile attempt to stand up.

Romero had found Sharkey a shifty opponent, and a man who, not withstanding that he lacked seven pounds of the Chilean's 195 could send home stiff punches with right or left. Sharkey had outscorde Romero in at least five of the eight rounds.

Nothing daunted, Romero came up for the eighth round with a right hook that opened Sharkey's nose. The Bostonian jabbed away at him, obviously tiring. Romero rushed in with hook and straight arm, pressing him against the ropes.

Sharkey tried his shift again, but found Romero on top of him.

A left to Sharkey's ear, a right to the body, and another left that caught him on the shoulder preceded the hook that the Chilean sent crashing with his right against the sailor's paw.

Sharkey was down for a count of seven when the bell saved him temporarily. His seconds worked over him frantically, lifted him to his feet for the star of the next round, only to see him fall flat.

TAFTVILLE A. A. AND MARTIN TEAM PLAY ON SUNDAY

After the game with Riverview the Taftville A. A. will next take on the J. B. Martin team at the Velvet Mill diamond on Sunday. Here is also a series for blood and baseball honor. No two teams can be found where the feeling is so strong and it is expected that a real baseball game will be the result.

DIVING CHAMPION AT ASHLAND PARK

The biggest list of entries ever recorded for the annual water sports program as promoted by the Ashland club of Jewett City is now lined up for Sunday's carnival.

The lovers of aquatic sports are in for a real treat in this year as some of the best attractions ever to appear in this vicinity will take part.

Hal Chase, who is handling the program, considers himself especially fortunate in landing Howard "Buddy" Soule Metropolitan Champion of New York and a member of the victorious American Olympic team which carried away the diving honors easily at the games held in France this summer. The name of Soule on any program would be considered a big time event, and it is a rare privilege for sport lovers in this vicinity to watch one of the country's best perform.

The Mathieu Twins need no introduction in this part of the state and these twelve year old diving girls are said to be better than ever. Among their assorment will be shackled dives.

Teddy Kundig has entered all events and Teddy has proven his metal on numerous occasions.

Plainfield is sending down several crack swimmers including a relay team.

In addition to the fancy diving exhibition by Buddy Soule, Henry Vincent and Roland Guillett, two of the best boys in eastern Conn. will also give an exhibition.

The female divers have developed considerable in the past few weeks and are capable of putting on a real diving act.

A new event has been added to the program. Perint and Deveaux will hook up in a single scull race and the advance dope is that it will be a hummer.

PACHAUG STRONG MEN ACCEPT ASHLAND'S CHALLENGE

The entries are still coming in for the big athletic meet which will be staged on the last day of the Norwich fair.

Hal Chase of Jewett City, who has charge of the meet now feels assured that the various events will be well contested, but the entries will be kept open until Wednesday Sept. 3rd in order to give the late comers a chance to take part if they so desire. Passes for the contestants will be left at the box office of the main gate and it will help matters considerable if those who anticipate taking part in the meet so inform Chase as soon as possible.

The latest entries to be received are those of Bob Cardie of Taftville, who will enter the dashes. Alexander Majenski of Norwich is another entry in the short dashes and the 440 yard run.

The Tug of War always one of the big features of the last day of the fair is now an assured part of the program as Elmer Miller of the Pachaug Grange has accepted the challenge of the Ashland team who claims the county championship by virtue of their win over the State Hospital last year.

The prizes for the various events are now on exhibition in one of the Boston store windows and are attracting considerable attention.

FIRST OF RIVERVIEW AND TAFTVILLE A. A. GAMES TODAY

The first game of the Taftville A. A.-Riverview series will be played today at the State Hospital diamond. This game is the result of a long conference and the culmination of a long period of bitter rivalry. Both teams have anticipated this game all season and have been anxious to get at each other's throats.

Riverview will use old reliable Paul Zemke in the box against Taftville with Joe Belair on the receiving end. Pepin, the youthful hurler, who has been pitching good ball for Taftville will start for his team. The lineup of the Riverview besides Zemke and Belair will be Coullard 1b, Burns 2, Moore ss, Mills 3b, Laffey lf, Noel cf, Frechette rf Hank Morin will umpire and call "Play" at 2.45 p. m.

VISITING IN PENNSYLVANIA

Dear Social Corner Sisters: The ...st letter I wrote I said I was not ...oing away this summer but here I ...m way out in Pleasant Mount, Penn. ...e came yesterday, started at 2 o'...ock in the morning and had a very ...ce trip; got off the road a little bit ...nd had a little trouble with the so ...at delayed us. We came 304 miles ...nd got to our cousins in time for ...nice supper and received a royal ...elcome. In our party is my husband, ...y son and wife and two children and ...yself. We saw some of the most ...eautiful scenery and lovely places ...n our way out. We came across the ...erry at Peekskill to Tomkins Cove ...nd came over Bear mountain. Some ...aces I can tell you. There is where ...e had tire trouble and there happ...ened to be a garage there. Looking ...round while they were fixing it I ...aw a big car all smashed to pieces. ...The men said it went down a 60 foot ...ank and one woman was killed. Oh, ...ear, that rather spoils the pleasure ...f driving, but we arrived safe and ...ound and are enjoying ourselves ...very minute. One funny thing happ...ened., My son asked a man the ...ay. He told him and said, "You ...an't help missing it, there are signs ...ll the way." It made us all laugh. ...The poor man meant allright. Well ...e have lot of things planned. Hope ...e can go to see all our cousins, and ...here are many of them around here ...nd some in Scranton whom we hope ...o see. This pen is not very good. ...Hope the editor can make it out.

Best wishes to all.

OUR DEAR LITTLE FRIENDS

Dear Editor and Social Corner: I ...ant to write you about our dear ...ttle friends, or some of nature's cel...brated feathered musicians, who so ...heerfully sing their songs of love ...nd friendship during the happy sum...mer hours. About the first intima...tions we have that spring is along ...he last of February, when downy ...oodpecker is heard sounding the "re...veille or tattoo", that can be heard a ...uarter of a mile. Around March 20th ...he clear but clarion call of the first ...luebird is noted, then the Phoebes ...appear. This year a pair of them ...raised a family of four, building their ...home under the floor of the stoop, ...where we daily passed in and out. ...Then we hear the song of flicker, the ...wood pewee, and the robin. Robin ...Redbreast, for his willingness, and ...ability, gets him first place as chor...ister at the Grand Chorus in early ...morning and evening. We little ...thought that his cheery song a short ...time ago was his farewell music to ...us, but it was.

Then we mention a number of our ...supreme "soloists," who are heard ...at their best through May and June. ...The wood thrush gives his best and ...sweetest solo selections, during late ...afternoon; the brown thrush sings his ...extra numbers, without encore, in the ...morning hours. Another one of the ...sweetest of feathered musicians is ...the warbling virga and his continous ...song is heard in the maples through ...sunshine, and rain. A sweet little ...triller is the prairie worbler. Bob ...O'Link arrives from the south about ...May first. Though he does great dam...age to the rice field in the southland, ...and he is sometimes called the "skunk ...blackbird," we do enjoy his rollicking, ...happy go lucky, songs of jollity. Then ...there is the song of the cat bird, and ...meadow lark, also the whippoorwill. ...We did not hear as many as usual ...this year. We wonder why. And ...the hawks, have been conspicuous in ...their absence. As a boy how we ...used to like to watch them soar away ...then drop like a parachute. August ...25th, we now hear the cuckoo, the ...thrushes and chewinks. Also one of ...our little winter feathered friends the ...chickadee. The chimney swift remind ...us of the merry skaters as they cut ...circles close to us while we were ...shingling the house this summer.

It was in June that we heard bob ...white the professional whistler down ...in the meadow. We were much pleas...ed to hear from him, though he was ...greatly depleted in numbers this year. ...Some of our feathered singers we ad...mired for their beauty rather than ...their music, such as the goldfinch, ...the fivehang bird, the oriole and the ...bird that wears "base ball clothes" the ...blue jay. We also appreciate the ...presence of the silent little juncoes ...when the snow of winter comes.

MUCH CANNING DONE ALREADY

Dear Corner Sisters, One and All: Will now write my bit to help keep the Corner page full. Was very glad to see an article again from Eliza Jane, and hope now that she has again written she will do better in the future. I wonder how many have began their canning. To date I have 50 jars filled with peas, beets, carrots, corn, and huckleberries and still have many more to fill. Have quite a bit of jelly made too. This week I expect to can more corn succotash, and vegetable soup.

Balsam Fir: Was awfully glad to see you while on your visit in Connecticut. You said you would give me a surprise and you certainly did. Should have known you had I seen you in day light, but under the cover of darkness I was rather in doubt. That wedding cake was fine. Thanks for not forgetting me. It came just as you sent it. Didn't the sun shine on you all? They say happy is the bride the sun shines on. Why don't you send a picture of the wedding party. It would be greatly appreciated. You certainly managed to keep the "grand occasion" very quiet and to yourselves. What did you do, caution Mr. and Mrs. T. also Miss M. to keep quiet? You rather slighted your side Wheeler, didn't you? Never mind Girlie the Social Corner sisters will overlook it this time, but look out for the next, ha! ha!

Ormandine: What a time you must have had with your flower bed and how provoking to have the results of your labor all ruined with those cats and dogs.

Sayilla: I thought you must still be alive. I had heard nothing to the contrary and was glad to see such a nice account of June 7 and I know you did not over estimate your cards, booklets, presents, etc., for I had the pleasure of seeing them all myself. But I do not see that promised letter coming this way. Get busy Sayilla, get busy, and write to.

REGRETS MISSING BEACH PARTY

Dear Social Corner Editor and Friends: It is such a long time since I have heard from any of the Social Corner sisters that I think they have forgotten all about Dom Pedro. I have not seen any report of the meeting at Ocean beach. I thought sure I should receive a call from some of the sisters when they came as near me, but no one came and and I was not able to meet them down there.

I have not walked as far as State street in almost ten months. I feel able but haven't the strength. I am going to try to get out to the postoffice this coming week if I can. I have been having a summer cold but am nearly over it, so I go out on the balcony every day and get a sun bath.

Calla Lily: It is a long time since I heard from you. I wonder if you came down to the beach picnic.

Peggy Anne: Thank you for your kind inquiry regarding my health. Did you come down to the beach party?

I am so sorry I could not have gone down there, but did not feel strong enough to go. I have not recovered my strength from last winter's illness.

Best wishes for the Corner and all interested in it, from

DOM PEDRO.

FULL BLOOM

Dear Cornerites: Sisters who haven't read the editorial Full Bloom in Liberty will enjoy this, I think, it is so well written.

The garden gate is wide. The sweet corn is ready for the pot and Esau the great friend, of the table knows the month is his. The paths are lined with bergamout, wild sunflowers and golden rod. The gold finch is the seed bearer of the thicket. The wild rose is gone and the wood thrush silent but the yellow bill cuckoo is calling in the oaks and there is the song of the black cricket harvest fly and the katydid at night.

Hollyhocks stand against the wall and dahlias are in bloom. The glory of the garden is the phlox. There are red berries on the honeysuckle. New lima beans a triumph of germination, make their growers glad. It is the month for vegetarians, with an artistic heresy of bacon in the stringbeans to make the pot likker which is best known south of the Ohio river.

Days hum contentedly. The birds and hens are moulting and mostly silent but the unseen choir of locusts and crickets weaves a song by day and night. It is a time of accomplishment. The planter who has dealt with cause, with seeds and soil and his garden tools, now deals pleasantly with effect.

The western fields are lustrous with foxgrass in the late sun. In this benignant light the gardener goes through the open path by the berrasmoni path with the gathering basket to get roasting ears, beans, beets, lettuce, icicle radishes, strawberries from the ever bearing plants and to note there is a touch of autumn in the evening air.

Many pickings are yet to come from the garden and the zinneas and asters in their prime. The nicotinia scents the air. But one remembers how the tulips went and how the flush splendor of the peony spent itself along with the delicacy of the iris and how all the thorns passed out of bloom with the cascading melody of the brown thrasher and the cat bird and how the wild rose and the reed song of the wood thrush together deserted the woods. So also will this fullness of fruition and climax of flowers pass away. The cicada will be silenced, the oak leaves color and the snows comes.

If we could importune time it would be to go with foot now at full bloom, grant a show down of the revolving circle, clog the hour glass and hold back the sands. Let the shadow go slowly on the sun dial. Give us longer hours and more capacious days when the garden is at its full and when the year it is richest.

A touch of autumn in the air is the answer. A chicadee is back in the thickets. That is a brave fellow who sings in a snow storm. He's back to spend the next summer.

WANTS TO AVOID SLACKER LIST

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: It has been a long time since I have written but have not forgotten the Corner. As I did not see my name in the roll call, I wondered if it was an oversight or had I been erased from the "good book" for being a slacker.

Now I don't want to be called a slacker so will try and add my bit a little oftener.

I attended the picnic at Twice Twenty's and had a very nice time, met a few of the old writers and a great many of the new ones. I only wish I could meet with the sisters oftener.

Papa's Boy: I think you have made a mistake in Who's Who as I do not live in the same state as you do. I have met you and know where you live. I go by your place quite often.

Aunty No. 1: Hope you and uncle are well enough to be out again.

Calla Lily: I always enjoy reading your letters.

Joan: Would like to hear from you.

I would like to extend a word of sympathy to Silent Partner at this time.

Will close with sending my favorite

Salad Dressing: Three eggs, 1 can of condensed milk, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup vinegar, 1 teaspoon mustard, 3 tablespoons melted butter. Beat eggs until light, add milk and mustard and beat thoroughly. To this add vinegar gradually and then the melted butter. Beat with an egg beater and set on ice to thicken. This is delicious and unsurpassed on fruit salads.

With best wishes for the Social Corner.

MERRY WIDOW.

(Your name was unintentionally omitted from the roll call. It is still on the list.—Ed.)

GREETINGS FROM PEGGY ALDER

Dear Social Corner Friends: I have been thinking for several weeks that I had better write a Corner letter, and now that my name has been printed in the roll call, will get into line and answer present.

To one who knows me: Have you recovered from your surprise yet?

A. Corn seems to be entertaining an unwelcomed visitor. I had one of the pests a few years ago, but I guess it didn't like me very well, for it suddenly left for parts unknown.

Twice Twenty: I have heard a very interesting account of your picnic. I live not more than a hundred miles from your home, but was unable to meet with you. I sometimes wonder if what people miss in this world will be made up to them in the next. Yes, I think it would be glorious to be a member of Club No. 4. A little bird has told me that the goat is very tame or I would not dare to join. There is a bridge near my home, but it isn't a very large one. I saw you Memorial day.

I wanted to attend the East Killingly Old Home day to count the yellow bows but it was so very hot, I stayed home.

I like to read the Corner letters and find out what other people are thinking about.

Best wishes to all.

PEGGY ALDER.

MONKEY FACE COOKIES

Dear Social Corner and All the Sisters: I think it's about time that I wrote a few lines now and then to the Corner. As I am not much of a writer the least I can do is to send a recipe.

Monkey Face Cookies: One egg, 1 cup sugar, 1-2 cup sweet or sour milk, 2 large cups flour, butter size of an egg, one teaspoon soda if sour milk is used; if sweet milk, 2 teaspoon baking powder. Drop on tin, placing three raisins on each, to make eyes and mouth. They will please the children.

Well, we had a terrible storm Tuesday. What did you think of it? They say that summer has left us but I feel that it has returned by the heat we had Wednesday.

My best congratulations to Balsam Fir on her new marriage.

I hope this letter finds all the sisters O. K. and do as I always do

HOPE.

LIKES THE BERRYING SEASON

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Just a line to let the Social Corner sisters know that I am alive and to say present, as my name was called some time ago.

Hope that you all enjoy this warm weather and love to go berrying as I do. How are the berries up your way, Black Berry Brier?

Crimson Rambler: I long to come down, but Mr. G. G. is working his teams in the city so I have to run the chicken ranch. Be sure and come over to see me. One of Social Corner sisters wanted to know what do to to drive ants away.

John Stumpfs' Magic Hoodoo Paper will do it. I have a package and I know it is good.

U. C. E.: Are you going to have a picnic at your home before October? If you do I will help you.

GOLDEN GLOW

DOESN'T LIKE CALIFORNIA

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: I want to answer present to the roll call. I was quite anxious to reply at first but it has been so long I got all over it waiting to say present. Who ever asked the editor for a roll call did not know what they were asking. I had no idea there were so many members. I stand 801 from the beginning. We have 850 names now and it doesn't seem and if there could be many more. I see quite a lot of the Rose Kind and would like to meet them all. There is Rosseland, Rosamy, Red Rose, Rose of New England, Rosamond, Rosemary, Rose of Sharon, Rosy Posy, The Last Rose of Summer, Rosalind, Rose Lee. Think we are of the Rose Kin. There may be more but this is all I know of. I had a dear cousin in Ohio who always called me Rosy Posy and seeing that name makes me think of her. She passed on long ago. She was my double, so they said. When I was in Ohio in 1921, her two daughters said it made them think of their mother. They were anxious for me to go to Ohio to live but I am still in Connecticut.

If Ola wants to know the drawbacks about California, she will have to go there the same as I did. I went there in 1920, spent the winter there and I never was so disappointed in any thing as I was in California. I had a friend there who was 150 per cent Los Angles. That is too much; 100 per cent is enough. I went there expecting to see nice June weather, left here Dec. 1, got there Dec. 4, the weather was the same there that we left here. We had been having steam heat here since Oct. 1 and in September if we needed it. When we got there there was no heat in a seven room bungalow and when one grate heats that meant one warm room and six cold ones. The thermometer hung around 30 degrees and some times it was 22 with frost every night. The bungalows are built for summer, not winter with high windows with a two foot jut to shade them. The parlor and library had two big windows but so cold you could not sit in them.

I left my bug there. I had an awful one before I went. We were near exposition park and went often to get warm for it was warm in the sun from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m. There we saw the bowling on the green with a big crowd watching them play. Every one asks you where you are from. We saw more there that did not like California than did like it but did not have money enough to get away. One woman we met, who went on lots of trips with us told us she had been there 18 years and never saw money enough to get home with. Her home was in Chicago. But Los Angeles doesn't want anyone unless they have lots of money. It has 150,000 Mexicans and more than 20,000 negroes. They are the natives and think the white man has no business there. They can do all the work there is to be done.

I see Rural Delivery speaks of the wonderful mountains you can see. We could stand on our front piazza and see Old Baldy, some said 75 miles away covered with snow, now when the wind is in that direction what kind of weather do you expect to get? Not very warm right off of the snow. Ask R. D. about the fog. I do not believe England is in it with Los Angeles. I never saw anything like it. My friend wrote me she had roses on her dining room tables the year around. She never had any while I was there, never had any leaves on her rosebushes say nothing about roses. She always said no electrical storm. Well we had a thunder shower while we were there so I said, "Thought you did not have any thunder showers?" "Well," she says, "we had one today didn't we?" And out to Hollywood that same day they had snow. We saw an auto that came from there covered with snow and the boys got up and made snow balls and threw them at each other. So they knew what it was for. All the kids had roller skates with such nice sidewalks to skate on they would go to Exposition park and have a big time with such a lot of pavements to skate on.

Then R. D. says the grass is so green, well if you don't irrigate you won't have any grass. The water is all alkali. It does not agree with any one. We heard a lot of different ones talking about the water. It did not agree with them and they had to get away.

Now if I had plenty of money and could live my way of leisure I would like California but to live the way the most of them do I rather live in Connecticut for I am more comfortable here than we were there. We hardly have more than one pair of blankets on us here and there we had a blanket, 2 comforters and a spread and we were cold. There was such a dampness. When you start the gas stove in the kitchen to get breakfast you have to open the door as the windows or your doors are all covered with water it is so damp on the other side of the door.

We had a nice trip and a nice time but are more comfortable here than in California. The house is warm and when I go out I put on my fur coat and am all right, if I had my fur coat at Los Angeles I would have been better off but I was told to leave my winter clothes in the east. There are more fur coats in Los Angeles than any thing else. Would they have them if it was a summer vacation? Now if any of the Social Corner sisters go to California be sure and take your winter clother with you for you will need them. We took one trip when it was 80 degrees. That was the first time I took my heavy fall coat off but the next morning it was down to 30 again not so great a change here as that. Lots of people don't live twoo weeks. They get a cold and have pneumonia and die we had colds all the time, could not help it is was so damp and cold but don't take my word for it, go and see for yourself, one thousand dollars will take two of you out there to stay a little while if you live as they do, all rent and nothing to eat. We paid dear for our knowledge any of you can do the same if you want to know badly.

I was at my sister's not long ago and made some corn muffins. So will pass the recipe along. She has written for the recipe.

Corn Muffins: 1 egg, 1-2 cup sugar, 1 cup meal, 1-2 cup flour, 1 cup milk, 7 tablespoon cream(thick), 1 heaping teaspoon baking powder and beat it hard with a good egg beater. Heat gem pan and bake in hot oven.

With best wishes to all Social Corner Sisters.

BREAKING LONG SPELL OF SILENCE

Dear Social Corner Sisters: It has been so long since I wrote that I hardly know what to say but as I saw my name in the roll call some two or three weeks ago I will say present, as I am still in existence. But I have been so busy with company and moving that I haven't had time to write. I met one of Della Deal's friends and a Social Corner sister and she asked for my present address. I have thought that I would call on her some time while I was out riding but haven't got there yet but am going before a great while as we have a car of our own and can go where we like. I will say my address is Uncasville, Conn., R. F. D. 136. I was just ready to go to Norwich tonight when a son of one of our neighbors was electrocuted by a fallen wire. He was terribly burned and his mother was also terribly burned as she tried to release him. I am one that can sympathize with those people. Only those that have death come in their home in such a way as they and myself can realise each others' sorrow. The people can feel for us but we can't feel as we do.

I have been to only two picnics this summer. I do want to have one at my house as I have such a lovely place and only just a little way from the water where we can go crabbing, bathing and fishing or any other good time. Well I guess I have written enough for this time and will try and sign my name oftener. With best wishes from

CATCHING UP

Dear Social Corner Friends: An automobile is purchased and it works perfectly like any other.

A man is selected to fill a responsible position. Will he do your work well? Will he be honest? Perhaps, but you cannot be sure. Why not? Because he may not have been developed morally. His training may have made him selfish and dishonest. We expect all mechanical inventions to work perfectly, but those who care for children have not understood their business as well as the machinist and have not given good results. We need that parents, teachers, pastors, lawyers all whose work is with persons shall be as accurate and thorough as the machinist is in his work. The courts have made a beginning in saying that he is a criminal through something wrong in the home. The doctors have been investigated that no one shall give physical care unless competent to give good results. The mental and moral care are just as essential as the physical.

Much public effort is being used to make sure the children receive physical care. The mental and moral training has to begin as soon as the physical care. The first impressions of the infant are forming his mental and moral character just as much as the pysical food is building his physical body, neither of which can ever be rebuilt.

A child undeveloped morally and mentally is just physical — just animal — and will conduct himself accordingly, so you should expect just animal actions from him.

A person just physically developed may be very successful in some ways, and this is what has most confused us in understanding the need of moral development in childhood. He was successful because his selfish nature caused him to walk over everything in his way, not caring how much he injured others. All his energies have gone to develop the physical body, he has little mental enjoyment and the older he gets the less the physical pleasures will satisfy him. Here is where the lawyers, pastors, teachers and others are needed to set the standard and make the right way the fashion, for we all like to do as others are doing. There is nothing more interesting than the study of persons—ruled by animal impulses, or by the mind, or in somethings deciding by animal impulses, and in some other lines, in which he was taught to use his mind, he decides by reasons.

Jim hurridly swallows his helping of vegetable, or fruit, or dessert hoping to get another helping. Dick says, "Mother I shall need another piece." His mother replies, "Yes Dick you shall have it, but eat this very slowly." Jim's mother never sees that the children are fairly used, grab what you can is their custim. So Jim is learning to be selfish, to cheat, and to be dishonest. Since most of the work was taken out of the home and we settled down to the idea that everything can be done for us, if we can pay for it, some one has to take the trouble to see that the children still get the home work and home training. If the parent prefers to hire this work done, every governess and tutor ought to know the business and do this home teaching as well as the parent could do it. It is fun to have a child for a pet and very interesting to have a child peculiar, but we are making it very hard for such children later.

Everything that occurs has an influence on the character of the child. He knows whether you are fair and just and reasonable, if you are not he does not need to be. Every little child needs to be taught in all his little actions and decisions to be truthful. To be honest—to keep his hands off of other people's property. To decide by right reasons. To do so that he will not be ashamed. To remember that others have the same right to pleasure, comfort and safety that he likes to have.

GREETINGS FROM LO

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: I saw my name in the roll call quite a while ago, so will write a few lines and say "present," or the sisters will think I am among the missing.

Lena asked me if I would write a few lines for her and say present and best wishes to all.

Auntie No. 1: I am real glad to hear that you are feeling so much better and also Uncle Will. Hope to see you soon.

Savilla: Your letter was very interesting, telling all about the picnics you attended this summer. I would like to go to more but it is so hard to get away. But I am in hopes to go to more but it is so hard to get away. But I am in hopes to go to the Buckingham when they start there again.

True Blue: How are you, read in the paper where you have been to quite a lot of picnics this summer too.

Will try and go and call on you and Savilla soon.

Will close with good wishes to all the Corner sisters.

LO.

ANSWERING ROLL CALL

Dear Social Corner Friends: It seems to be time for me to answer present to the roll call. I have enjoyed the answers of others and so many were new to me, as I have been a member only a year and a half.

Airy: I have found out who you are. You wanted another clew. South Main street where the cosmos is on the wall!

Here is something that amused me. As we were leaving church one night, I asked one of our French members about his daughter, fearing she was sick, as she was usually at prayer meeting. He said she had company and "had to guide heem to hee's home!" I though she must have reversed the usual order of things!

A friend of mine has charge of the beginners department of church school. One little boy put his feet on the table and she asked him where we were supposed to keep our feet. He said, "Why, hung on to our waists!"

Then she explained that it was not nice to put them on the table.

ROBERTA.

ABOUT THE HOME

Dear Cornerites: I was reading a letter by Rose Dale who said a woman of ninety three said to her lately, "I am so glad to have lived to see so many different things. She did not say, "Times are not what they used to be." She was glad that she lived to see so many things different, because becoming different may mean improvement.

There are a good many kinds of things thave has taoin se e asst things hat have changed in our city, and these changes we watch with pride. When the kerosene street lamps give place to gas and electric street lamps; when the dirt roads became macadam when the lawns grow green and are well watered; when the rivers have livees and bridges; when the old one story frame stores give place to two and three story houses; when the cans and quart measures in the milk wagons give place to clean bottles; when the open grocery and meat wagons change to covered automobiles; when automobile hook-and-ladder cars and fire engines displace the bucket brigade and the horses; when to library and the city hall are housed in dignified buildings—once safetly accomplished; all these changes become matters of pride and delight to all citizens.

Of course there are those who objected in the beginning. But we do not pay much attention to these any more. We know the objects are too often wrong.

Now, of all these changes, the changes in the houses in which we live are among the most marked. I don't need to tell you how. Gas ranges and gas jets and electricity, electric switches and water pipes, instead of wood cooking stoves and candle molds and kerosene lamps and water pails you know what has happened in your housein the last twenty five years and in all these changes you rejoice.

There are changes, as well in the activities of the women who spend their time chiefly in the house. Where we canned salmon and mackerel and canned corn and tomatoes used to be the chief articles procurable ready-cooked, now the gamut of vegetables, soups, fruits, spaghetti, pickles, and breakfast foods are obtainable in delicious and reasonably inspected form, so that the labor of preparing food is amazingly minimized, and in this likewise you delight and upon if you congratulate yourself.

But there is one set of changes in the community that is always feared and thought and fought. Almost every woman instinctively turn against the mention of them and flies to the side of things as they have always been and these changes about which women are instinctively conservative are changes in the home itself. I do not mean in the house, we know that changes, I mean the home.

When the home changes like everything else—women begin to be afraid. They join the objectors. They talk about the home. They remember 20 years ago. In every thing else we are glad to have lived to see so many things different. But the minute the home changes at all, women say, "The American home is not what it used to be." In spite of this the home is before one's eyes. I am asking you dear sistes, and readers only to look at what is everywhere before you, and instead of objecting to it, to accept it and see what to do about it. their time any more to preserving and canning and scrubbing and sewing rag carpets and stitching. If women are behind the times, and we are very likely to say so, every woman who is not behind the times, is beginning to watch what goes on in the world about her. She is beginning to even take part in it. I do not mean just in ministering to the poor and the sick—I mean in actual, active, constructive work.

In the home nobody's children are ever taught their lessons—or at least, in a very few homes indeed. Nor do they find there much amusement. Of course the radio is quite an addition, also the victrola—but they have had them for years, I large part of their amusement and recreation outside the average home. The mere advent of motion picture shows, band concerts, playgrounds has changed the home, because the young people get their recreation largely there.

The family in the home is becoming more and more identified with the family of the town and state. Do you know what happened or what course was taken in this long movement? The first step was free public schools and almost nobody now unless it is someone as old as myself remembers how the howl went up all over the land, that in taking education out of the home was going to be harmed, going to lose its influence, even going to be broken up.

When the kindergarten was first started, or opened the mothers of the world thought cried out this was an effort to take their children from them too young, that it would wean them away from home.

Even yet in the smaller communities, other of these steps are being fought. Medical inspection of school same grounds that all this should children is being objected to on the be seen to at home and this regardless of the fact that it is not seen to in an appalling number of homes.

Within three years I have heard a woman say regarding public schools that "girls should be taught these things in the home," regarless of the number of girls who are not taught in the home, and as a matter of fact that experts can teach these things better, just as they can teach geometry and algrebra better than they can be taught at home, for most girls will pay more attention.

One of the next steps—the socialising of recreation—is still in the stage of being fought. Schoolhouse dances and motion pictures in the schoolhouse, social centers, some of the parents feel that their children should be home and a bed. The fact is neither "ought" is universally true, and this socializing of the recreation of young people is one more step in this growing cigim of the community, instead of merely the home, as the education of the child.

Of course the home is not what it used to be. It would be a shame for use if it were the same, with the world growing and changing. Are you afraid of growth? or are you glad of growth? and in either case what are you going to do about it?

In all of which many of you will agree with me. The cultivation of the home! When was the cultivator ever afraid that changes would come to that which he cultivates? Is not the very change what he seeks? Is not the wise directing of these changes what he is for?

A HAPPY SURPRISE

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I want to thank the good sisters for sending me the nice cards and that dear little basket. They all helped to pass the time. It was a great surprise. I didn't know but they had crossed me off the list by this time as I hardly ever write nowadays. I don't seem to know what to write. I broke my left leg August 4th and went to St. Josephs hospital the next day and had it set. They put my leg in a plaster cast from my toes to above my knee. I have been home two weeks now but the doctor was here this week and said I could have it taken off next week some time. I will go to the hospital again maybe for one night as they are to put on another smaller one. I hope I wont have to stay in bed much longer as I am getting tired of it.

I have had bad luck this summer as in June I crushed my thumb badly. I shut it in an automobile door and nearly took it off. The last of the nail came off Saturday and Monday I broke my leg. I hate to be shut in up here as I love to be outdoors.

Now I want to thank you once more for your kindness and it was such a happy surprise to me. These are the ones I heard from: Rural Delivery, Papa's Boy, Katy Did, White Clover, Balsam Fir, Sweet Williams, Rose Bud, Marigold, Pansy, Olive Judge K., Pansy.

Best wishes to all as B4.

FAIRIES

Dear Sisters of the Corner: Have you ever read about Maryp Bartemale —the mother of a thousand children? Almost all of us will admit that being a mother is about the most absorbing occupation the world affords. It is a very interesting article. "Do you believe in fairies?" Gretchen Dorothea did until Aunt Gretchen asserted quite convincingly, and rather bitterly, that they no longer existed. If it hadn't been for the very wise and understanding young man who chanced upon Gretchen Dorothea in her distress, who had really talked with her and had known fairies all his life and so could reassure her, we don't know what might have happened I wish you could get the book to read. As it was, you will see if you read the story how Gretchen Dorothea and the fairies—that he not only brought back fairies into Gretchen's life but even made Aunt Gretchen believe in them, too.

CRAMPED REMEDY WORKED

Dear Social Corner Members: I want to tell the one that wrote about crossing toes that an uncle of mine tried it and his better half tells me that he hasn't complained about cramps since. They have had quite a few jokes about it.

We have enjoyed a trip to Narragansett Pier recently. We had a good day and a good time.

Rural Delivery: Didn't see you Old Home day. There was a good breeze on the hill top if it was so hot elsewhere.

Peggy Alden: Didn't we have a nice visit? We must sit in the shade of the old maple tree next time. Don't you think so. You must join Club No. 4, for you know you belong to that one. I think some of the members would be delighted to know you.

ADVANTAGES OF COUNTRY LIFE

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: How are you all this beautiful summer day? While looking out on nature and thinking I was glad I lived in the country, its advantages came home to me.

The advantages of living in the country instead of the city are steadily increasing as the years pass. Life in the country is far different from that of our ancestors. The people are intellectual and well educated. Many of the younger generation are college graduates. The home surroundings are different from years ago, for not alone the wealthy but the well-to-do enjoy the comforts and pleasures of a country home with running water, heating apparatus of some kind, electric lights, bathroom, telephone, Phonograph and a radio. I think many of the houses in the country are much more convenient than many in the cities as regards to storerooms, pantries, closets and clothespresses.

Much pleasure is taken by having a screened in piazza around the whole or part of the house and the lawns are beautiful with flowers.

The roads of today are far superior to those of years ago, and the automobiles, motors and bicycles make access to the city for entertainment schools and beaches easy and quick. In some ways living expenses are not as high as in the city. As regards rent, and one has space in the country town to breathe in. Then again the schools are different in most towns than of old. They are graded and one is promoted from the junior high in the country to the high school in near by town or city, for many towns with two or three thousand inhabitants have a high school of their own.

A large number of people in the cities are beginning to realize that the country is the more healthful and beautiful place to live in, especially in summer. Writers cannot describe country life and its charms with justice. The charm of the beautiful scenery and the exhilarating air are there in great abundance as all visitors and summer residents can testify. The residents are proud of their churches, schools, public hall and libraries, for most towns can boast of a town library where the latest books and magazines can be had each week.

Best of all we think the country people have retained the social and hospitable ways of our ancestors and enjoy visitors and callers as in olden

HELPED HER IN EVERY WAY

So Writes Mrs. Trombley of Sharon, Vt., Concerning Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Sharon, Vermont.—"I was weak and run-down, had a tired feeling and bearing-down pains. I saw an advertisement in the newspaper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and began taking it. It has stopped these bearing-down pains and other bad feelings, and has helped me in every way. I have so much faith in the Vegetable Compound that I keep it on hand all of the time and recommend it whenever I have the opportunity."—Mrs. LEWIS TROMBLEY, Sharon, Vermont.

Glad to Help Others

"I had pains in my back and sides for many months, and my work would have to be left undone at those times. My sister told me what good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was doing her, so I tried it, and from the third bottle I was well and every one thought I looked better. I am glad to help others regain their health, and you may use my testimonial."—MABEL HARTMANN, 1824 Greene Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y. You must believe that a medicine that has helped other women will help you.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

RALLY IN STOCK MARKET.

New York, Aug. 29.—Short coverings, prompted by the German reichstag's passage of legislation necessary to put the Dawes plan into effect, brought about a moderate rally of prices into today's stock market after an early period of irregularity. Trading was again of a preholiday character, total sales slightly exceeding 700,00 shares.

Industrial shares led the recovery, net gains of 1 1-2 to 3 1-3 points being recorded by U. S. Steel common, Baldwin, American Can, Marine preferred, U. S. Cast Iron Pipe and many others.

Pan-American issues, which recorded an extreme break of 4 points each, were the outstanding weak spots, selling of these stocks undoubtedly reflected speculative disappointment over the semi-annual report, which showed earnings of $2.93 a share on the common as against earlier estimates of at least $4 a share.

Copper shares were the first to respond to the favorable foreign news, buying of these issues being predicated on the belief that Germany will be a heavy buyer of raw materials in the American market soon after the flotation of $200,000,000 loan to that country shipping shares, which were heavy in the early trading, rallied briskly when the rechstag's action became known in the financial district.

Weekly mercantile reviews testified to the slow but steady improvement in most lines of trade. Speculators for the advance construed the weekly federal reserve statements as indicating continued ease in the money situation.

New high prices for the year were recorded by Associated Drygoods, which jumped more than seven points, to 121 1-2, and by the Maxwell Motor issues, North American Company and Cushman's Bakery, Union Bag and Paper touched a new low at 43 3-4.

Heavy selling of Superior Oil, which dropped two points to 3 1-2 and then recovered half of its loss, was attributed to the final disposition of the bond syndicate of large blocks of stocks acquired through warrants attached to the bonds. Tidewater Oil was run up more than three points. Most of the other oils showed only fractional changes. Speculative interest in the railroad group was confined largely to the Frisco isues, Pittsburgh and West Virginia, Nickel Plate preferred and Northern Pacific up 1 to 2 points. And in Rutland preferred which established another new top at 56 1-4 and then slipped back to 54 7-8, up 1 7-8. The Pere Marquette issues made no response to the directors' recommendation of the Nickel Plate merger plan.

Call money continued to hold at 2 per cent. Time money and commercial rates were unchanged although a growing scarcity of time funds at [illegible] per cent.

Foreign exchanges made a quick response to the favorable reparations developments. Demand sterling moved up more than two cents above [illegible] francs were seven [illegible] cents. Other [illegible] improved in sympathy.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Aug. 29.—Germany's acceptance of the Dawes reparation programme today infused fresh strength into a lagging bond market, bringing about brisk rallies, in French, Austrian and other European obligations and turning the trend of domestic issues upward.

With investment experts on preparations for flotation of the German loan, as embodied in the Dawes plan, to govern the course of the market for the next few months, the reichstag's action today was considered of prime importance. French bonds, which had been marking time pending the outcome of the legislative fight in Germany, immediately responded with gains of one to more than 3 points under the leadership of the government's issues. Belgian, Austrian and Serbian loans also were strengthened.

Discussion regarding the offering the German loan was revived, with the consensus of banking opinion holding that it would probably be placed on the market about Oct. 15. Arrangements for underwriting the issue, it was indicated, would now proceed rapidly.

While activity in foreign bonds overshadowed dealings in other sections of th elist, there was a decidedly firmer tone to railroad liens, which were aided to some extent by the completion of pending merger and the increase in car loadings, among the issues conspicuous in the trading were Frisco, Missouri Pacific, Delaware & Hudson and Kansas City Terminal bonds. Wilson & Company, Chile Copper and Virginia-Carolina Chemical mortgages were strong spots in the industrial group.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Aug. 29.—Dry weather in Argentine and firmness of the market in Liverpool were chiefly responsible for a higher average in wheat values here today. At the finish wheat was up 1 3-8 to 2c, with September 124 1-8 to 124 1-4 and December 129 1-2 to 129 5-8; corn underwent a setback of 1-2 to 1 3-4c, oats declined 3-8 to 3-4c and provisions were unchanged to 17 1-2c off.

The firmness in Liverpool was given additional firmness today because of heavy rains in England and reports of deterioration in northern Argentina. The market here was quick to respond to the action abroad, and buyers rushed into the pit, making it easy to maintain higher levels. On the bulge, however, a good class of selling was brought out which caused a moderate break. Later, predictions of cold weather in the Canadian northwest brought some good buying into the market and again sent values up. Requests for wheat for shipment to Vladivostok were taken as confirming recent reports of crop failures over a wide territory in Russia.

Corn showed independent weakness for the first time in some days, free profit taking being a factor. A fair character of buying appeared on the breaks.

Provisions were unsettled with pressure from commission houses.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Aug. 29.—Curb prices displayed a decidedly better tone in today's market although trading was again relatively light in character. Oils stiffened on short covering, which was inspired by Germany's acceptance of the dawes report. South Pennsylvania jumped two points in reflection of reports that the Tidewater Oil Company had offered producers in the Bradford district a premium of 25 cents a barrel over posted prices on a five year contract while net gains of 1 to 2 points were recorded by Cities Service, Mutual, Imperial Oil of Canada, Ohio Oil, Vacuum and Prairie Oil and Gas.

Radio shares showed mixed changes, Dubilier rallying two points above yesterday's close, Jones touching a new high at 8 3-8 and Thompson, Hazeltine and Rova showing moderate recessions. Further accumulation of Commonwealth Power sent it up, to 108, up 1 1-2 points.

The feature of the bond market was a break of nearly four points in Consolidated Textile 8s of 1941, reflecting the uncertainty over the payment of September first interest on the 7 per cent. bonds of B. B. & R. Knight, Inc., common stock of which is owned by the Consolidated.

VOLUNTOWN

The Rossie Velvet A. A. of Mystic were visitors on the local grounds on Sunday afternoon and defeated the home team 12 to 1. The game gave promise of being a close one as the locals held the visitors to a close score until the seventh, when Liberty blew up and for the last three innings was pounded all over the lot, the visitors connecting for 14 hits in the three frames, including singles doubles and triples. The home team was weakened by the absence of Dupont and L. Liberty. The visitors played a snappy game and their fielding was brilliant at times. One of the fielding features for Voluntown was a beautiful catch in centerfield by E. Dupont. Sterling will be the attraction Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Marion and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dupont were visitors to New York Sunday.

The republican electors of the town assembled in caucus at Union hall Wednesday evening when the following list of delegates was chosen to attend the various conventions: State, George T. Briggs and George R. Edmonds; congressional, Alexander Tanner, Howard E. James; senatorial, John N. Lewis, Walter C. Tanner; probate, William H. Kaufmann and Warren Tanner. John N. Lewis was chosen chairman of the caucus and Howard E. James was clerk.

The democratic caucus was held in Union hall Thursday evening. Charles Downing presiding and Leonard B. Kinnie being chosen clerk. The following list of delegates was selected: State, Michael A. Griffin, William D. Downing; congressional, Henry Young, Leonard B. Kinnie; senatorial, George A. Dawley, James F. Hall; probate, Mrs. Martial Russi and Mrs. Charles A. Downing.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Bray are visiting relatives in Pawtucket, R. I.

The severe storm of Tuesday did considerable damage to gardens and orchards throughout the town. Many shade trees were trimmed in good shape. Nearly three inches of rain fell.

SOCIAL CORNER

times for people living in towns have real neighbors, they know each other and enjoy running in and out. Happiness, as well as sorrows are shared by all. When trouble comes all are ready to help in every possible way. Then there is more freedom and time for pleasure and recreation. It seems to me country people enjoy more and have a broader understanding of things in general.

The farmer and his family have to work hard at times, for as the old saying goes they have to make hay while the sun shines. Each season brings its special work which must be done then, and there are many handicaps as the weather, insects, etc., as has been the case this season. But to those who have something even if only a little to help out, when the weather makes the crops a failure, feel that the town life is what they desire. In larger towns there are industries which provide an opportunity for work and positions for those not desiring to work on a farm.

Many people would favor living in the city in winter because it is warmer, while others believe that the cold air is bracing and invigorating and, as we have said, the autos make it easy for us to enjoy both city and country life. There are many country pleasures in winter as looking out over the fields and pastures at the carpet of the pure white snow which is beautiful and gives a peaceful picture to look upon, while in the cities it is the opposite for it is not long before it has a dirty appearance.

Taking it all in all, I think the town can compare well with the city and very many city people remain nowadays in the country throughout the year.

Of course all cannot have the modern conveniences but all can have the country itself.

Balsam Fir: Can't write you by the old name, can I?

Aunty No. 1: Am sorry to hear of your accident.

And all the sisters who are in trouble and sorrow you have my heartfelt sympathy.

HOW TO TELL CHARACTER BY THE CHIN

Dear Sisters: In reading character, physiognomists divide the chin into five separate classes, as follows: the pointed or narrow, round chin; the indented chin, the narrow, square chin; the broad, square chin, and the broad round chin.

The pointed or narrow chin signifies a nature not easily satisfied, and longing for an ideal. Many spinsers have this chin.

The indented chin must not be confounded with the dimpled chin. Women with the indented chin have a tremendous desire for affection. They are miserable unless a man is in love with them.

The narrow square chin also signifies a strong love nature. The woman with this chin will marry a poor man if she loves him, although she may have suitors of boundless wealth and far higher social position.

The broad, square chin shows tremendous strength of feeling. The woman with this chin is capable of the most devoted love. She is sometimes jealous. Her love nature is so strong that if she is betrayed she may even go mad. The broad, round chin also accompanies a capacity for ardent love and for great steadfastness. The broad chinned woman is faithful.

RESPONDS TO ROLL CALL

Dear Editor and Sisters: It is about time I answered the roll call.

Whirlwind and Olga: Thanks for the birthday cards.

What a rain we had Tuesday and the wind, did certainly blow.

Club No. 3 had a fine day for its picnic and I hope they had a large number.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

The fixing of city boundaries, redistricting the schools of the city and other local important happenings of a half a century ago interested the people of Norwich in 1874.

A few of the stories taken from the Bulletin of that year are in part as follows.

Monday, August 24, 1874—Interest is centering in the subject of the adjustment between the town and city of the expenses of the new court house. Under the acts published the town is to be left to decide the subject and if as it is probable, the town shall determine to assume the whole, the best possible disposition will be made of the matter. When, as in a few years it will undoubtedly do, the limits of the city coincide with those of the town, the city will have no interest in the building that is not participated in by the whole of the town. This question is to be decided before a town meeting because it will best decide the will of the majority.

The Arctics played the revamped Sachem nine yesterday and defeated them at the Big Plain by a score of 36 to 6.

The large beams for the new Steiner hall have arrived and the hall promises to be all that is desirable.

The Hartford races, beginning tomorrow, will attract horse lovers from Norwich. Noted horses appearing at the track include Goldsmith Maid, Lulu, Thomas Jefferson, American Girl, Judge Fullerton, Bodine, Kansas Chief, Triumph and others to the number of 60 or more.

Tuesday, August, 25, 1874—An important and powerful water privilege was recently purchased by the Wauregan Manufacturing company. The power is situated two miles south of Danielsonville and is said to have about nineteen feet fall, which will, if properly utilized, drive 65,000 spindles and give employment to 1000.

E. P. Parker of South Coventry has been expressing huckleberries in large quantities to Hartford, his daily shipments to that city reaching as high as 30 bushels daily. In all he has sent in about 400 bushels valued at $1000.

Frederick Bill and wife, of Groton, left yesterday by the steamer Celtic, for Europe, for a years absence.

Six people attended the meeting at New London to act upon the acceptance of the act of the last general assembly, authorizing the City of New London to issue bonds to the value of $100,000, to be used in paying the city debt.

Col F. B. Loomis of New London is entertaining Mayor Havermeyer of New York City, at his handsome mansion in the city down the river.

Wednesday, August 26, 1874—At a meeting of the common council held Monday evening it was voted to allow the stewards of the several hose companies an increase of $25 per year. A petition for the extension of Lincoln avenue to Oneco street was referred. On motion of Mr. Carew an amendment to the ordinance regulating the police force was adopted, providing for the performance of the duties of lieutenant of police, by the sergeant, in certain cases, and making the sergeant's pay $2.62 per day.

Captain Smith took the Ella down stream yesterday with 200 excursionists on board. A fine trip was enjoyed to Block Island and return, rough water being met with only for a short distance.

The pigeon shooting contest Friday at Norwalk, between John B. Palmer of Norwich and R. H. Banfield, resulted in favor of the former, who won by three birds.

They each shot at twenty-five single birds for $250 a side. Betting favored Banfield, 100 to 80 at the start. Mr. Palmer although said to live in Norwich, is not a local resident, but has many friends here who are pleased to hear of his success.

Thursday, August 27, 1874—A large and highly interesting gathering of the voters of the Central school district, was held this evening in the town hall, in regard to Laurel Hill school. Col. Selden introduced a resolution that the board rebuild the school at a cost not to exceed $3,100 and after considerable talk the motion was carried 44 to 27.

A. Richmond of the Richmond stove works has just returned from a western trip and it is understood has several fine orders in that line.

Governor Ingersoll is to review the troops at Camp Ledyard this afternoon and a number of Norwich people are planning to visit the camp also. Over 550 men are now in camp, not including the officers and report that they are having a good time. The camp is now fairly well under way and when things are adjusted more intensive training will be in store for the men.

The directors of the Chelsea Savings bank have declared a semi-annual dividend at the rate of 6 per cent.

Friday, August 28, 1874—J. S. Hart of Springfield, Mass., deputy of the National Council Sovereigns of Industry, gave a free lecture in G. A. R. hall last night to a large audience and after the lecture a call was made for those who would form a council. It was decided to organize the Norwich Council Sovereigns of Industry officers being elected as follows: Noyes S. Wentworth, president; Martin V. Brady, vice president; Charles H. Cobb, Jr., secretary; Titus Carrier, treasurer.

Charles D. Hine, son of the Rev. O. D. Hine of Lebanon, has been chosen as superintendent of the schools of the district. Since he graduated from Yale in 1871 he has been superintendent of schools in Saginaw, Mich. William Love, graduate of Hamilton college will be the new principal of the grammar school.

H. T. Sydleman and Osaac Sanderson have entered three horses for the Willimantic races at Horseshoe park. With other Norwich men they will go to Willimantic to watch the races.

Connell and Ryan and Holdroyd and Sheridan are to race on the Thames tomorrow after for $10 a side.

A popular Main street businessman won $500 in the Havana lottery, last drawn. He is planning to try again.

Saturday, August 29, 1874—The performance of Henry Bloodgood's company, The Comique Alliance, last night, was very good. Baby Benson, the $150 a week tiny star, highest paid child on the stage today, carried off her part in her usual good form. The Wilson Brothers, Miss Jennie Benson and Barney Reynolds, all came in for their share of the applause.

It was estimated at the beginning of the current year that the receipts of the police court would be $1500 for the year. At the rate fines were h[illegible] ed out yesterday morning the am[illegible] should have been near $500.

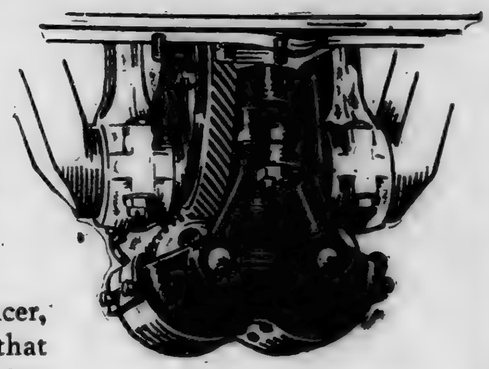
Master Improvement in a Matchless Car-

Conquers Vibration



The Lanchester Balancer, a British invention that eliminates engine vibration by absorbing it at its source, is the added refinement that gives Willys-Knight a still higher degree of supremacy among motor cars of quality.

Dr. F. W. Lanchester, F. R. S., a British engineer of outstanding genius, developed the invention to perfect one of the most famous foreign cars. In bringing it to America, by special arrangement with the inventor, Willys-Knight cures the inherent vibration that long has been an universal annoyance to car owners.

There is No Point of Vibration!

The new Balancer gives the final magic touch to Willys-Knight operation. Drive it all speeds; you never reach the "point of vibration", for there is no such point.

Perfect smoothness—perfect riding ease! And a sleeve-valve engine that improves with use! Willys-Knight advances still another step ahead of its field.

POETRY

LEADERSHIP.

To Calvin Coolidge.

I know a pine tree on a northern hill
It stands high-placed—where all the strong winds blow,
Its green boughs whisper in the summer breeze,
Or bend, still green, beneath the winter's snow.
The trees that cluster in the sheltered vale,
When painted Autumn flaunts her colors gay,
Fling all their bright leaves to the freshening gale,
And, 'neath the snow, hide their dead leaves away.
Not so the pine, it stands unchanged, self clad
In living green, when all else green has dead.
Its roots sink deep within the rock-ribbed soil,
But God's own sunshine rests upon its head.

I know a man from out these silent hills
The vigor of the north is in his veins,
Something of that gray granite of the cliff
Sustains his will, each purpose high sustains.
The storms of bitterness and rage and hate
That sweep the path to which his fate must hold
Drive weaker men down from their high estate;
They leave him calm, unshaken, self controlled.
Well grounded in the simple verities,
Untouched by taint of avarice or guile,
Deep rooted in traditions of the past,
His heart lies in the sunshine of God's smile.

—Ella M. Hasen, in The Vermonter.

A CONTENTED MIND.

I weigh not fortune's frown or smiles;
I joy not much in earthly joys;
I seek not state, I reck not style;
I am not fond of fancy's toys;
I rest so pleased with what I have,
I wish no more, no more I crave.

I quake not at the thunder's crack;
I tremble not at news of war;
I swoun not at the news of wrack;
I shrink not at a blazing star;
I fear not loss, I hope not gain,
I envy none, I none disdain.

I see ambition never pleased;
I see some Tantalus starved in store;
I see gold's dropsy seldom eased;
I see even Midas gape for more;
I neither want nor yet abound,—
Enough's a feast, content is crowned.

I feign not friendship where I hate;
I fawn not on the great (in show);
I prize, I praise a mean estate,—
Neither too lofty nor too low;
This, this is all my choice, my cheer,—
A mind content, a conscience clear.

—Joshua Sylvester.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Madam—No, it was your other arm you had in the mine yesterday.—Exchange.

Dumb—What difference does that make?—Stevens Stone Mill.

So you want a divorce from your wife? Aren't your relations pleasant?

"Mine are, but hers are the most unpleasant lot I ever met," replied the applicant for a decree. — Hamilton Herald.

Isn't it disgusting the way they permit things like this in the theater?

Yes, but it attracts the public.

Doesn't it, indeed! I had all sorts of trouble getting this box for tonight. — La Ray Blas, Paris.

Bobby—Ma, why don't hens have teeth?

Mother—They don't need them, dear, they have bills for teeth.

Bobby—Aunt Kate has a bill for teeth. Is that the reason she's called an old hen?—Boston Transcript.

On Face and Arms. Large and Red. Cuticura Heals.

"I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and got relief right away. I continued the treatment and after using two cakes of Soap and one and a half boxes of Ointment I was healed." (Signed) W. Sundmaker, 300 Monroe St., Hoboken, N. J., Feb. 9, 1924.

Strand Theatre.

A magnificent epic of the early west is James Cruze's latest Paramount production, The Covered Wagon, which will be the feature at the Strand theatre for six days beginning Monday next. This is a picturization of Emerson Hough's new novel of the same name, and it is said to be one of the greatest photoplays ever seen on the screen.

The features embraced in this story are many and varied and include among others, the start of 350 covered wagons from Westport Landing (now Kansas City), in 1848. The terrors of fording freshet rivers, prairie fires and the like are depicted with great realism. A buffalo hunt is one of the most exciting scenes. Old Fort Bridger with a night attack and fight by day with Indians, are shown. The dividing of the trails to Oregon and California at old Fort Hall, a touch of the gold fever in California, magnificent mountain shots and a culmination of the romance with the establishment of one of the first homesteads in Oregon—these are all incidents in a picture that bristles with big scenes.

Such historical characters as Kit Carson, Jim Bridger and Bill Jackson, scouts and typical western characters, are portrayed in the Paramount screen version of the novel, which is conceded to be one of the most notable literary achievements of the present decade.

The various roles are in the hands of well known screen players. The leading man is J. Warren Kerrigan, and the leading woman is Lois Wilson. Alan Hale is the villain. Others in the cast include Tully Marshall, Ethel Wales, Charles Ogle and John Fox. Jack Cunningham adapted the novel to the screen.

Besides an augmented orchestra a comedy and news will be the short subjects.

Strand Theatre.

Love and thrills both hold a prominent part in the fast-moving romance at the Strand theatre Sunday. There's Millions In It is perhaps the most thrilling of all pictures ever booked by the management of the theatre.

There's Millions In It holds your attention at all times. The scenes shift from one country to another in an amazing manner, and one dramatic situation follows another in an interesting way. The climax is a lively fight between the hero and the villain in the cabin of a burning airship. This scene is not only exciting, but has been done with true realism.

The story is one of love and adventure as it concerns vast wealth to be found in a radium field in the Balkans. It has been adapted from a Saturday Evening Post story by Roland Pertwee and Dion Clayton Calthrop.

If you like to see screen stories in which the love interest is mixed with mystery and thrills do not miss seeing There's Millions In It. Catherine Calvert, famous for her work with Valentino in Blood and Sand, gives the best performance of her screen career.

William Desmond in Beasts of Paradise and a comedy will be the other subjects.

Palace Theater

Spectacular scenes almost without number will be offered by Barney Gerard's 16th Annual Production of Follies of the Day, the highly diverting Columbia Burlesque coming to the Palace theater where it will hold the boards Monday, matinee and night, Sept 1st.

Follies of the Day is unique in a show of its kind. The Gerard shows are all noted for their gorgeous gowns and scenic grandeur. Follies of the Day stands out prominently in this respect.

Gerard has chosen well the principals as well as the chorus and still has Bozo Snyder as the leading funmaker. Bozo is undoubtedly the leading pantomimist on the American stage today and as a silent comedian he has a world of humor to offer as well as antics that keep the audience in roars of laughter.

Practically all of the musical numbers of this dashing production have been especially written with an eye to fitting the chorus as well as providing vehicles for the principals. Gerard's eye for beauty and shapeliness is notoriously well trained, and his ability to pick pretty girls is well borne out by the show.

Beside Bozo the cast of Follies of the Day includes old and new favorites, such as Sam Green, Elsa May, Harry Seymour, John B. Williams, Bert Mathews, Beth Clark, Marie Tyler, the Avalon Four, Scotty Weston, Frank JuBan and many others.

This production lives up to the last word of Columbia burlesque and has a special appeal to the ladies. Two performances will be given daily for the regular patrons and those who come with them to enjoy themselves.

Palace Theater

Last times today, Marie Prevost in Cornered, Telephone Girl, Pathe Review and comedy.

Sunday night only, double feature program, George Larkin in The Way of the Transgressor, A thrilling story of Chinatown.

Few persons have had so varied a stage and screen experience as Max Linder, international comedy favorite, whose newest laugh-producing sensation, The Three Must-Get-Theirs, a burlesque on The Three Musketeers, his first production for Allied Producers and Distributors Corporation which will be shown at the Palace theater tomorrow night only.

Having produced short film comedies since the very earliest days of the screen after marked success on the stage in classic comedy work at a very early age, he decided in 1911 to go to Spain and there appear again before the footlights. Accordingly he went to Barcelona and Madrid for stage appearances. While in Barcelona he was invited by the greatest toreador of that time, Gallito, to take part in a bull fight, in which, he killed a bull.

Unfortunately Linder was wounded and had to remain in hospital for two months. Upon leaving the hospital the King of Spain sent for him and congratulated him heartily on his remarkable feats in the bull fight.

New reals of the Pathe News. Educational comedy and Aesop Fables.

Palace Theater

Julanne Johnston impersonates the Princess with Douglas Fairbanks in The Thief of Bagdad, at Palace theater three days only, Sept. 4-5-6, wears in the picture the footwear of Zuleika, a real Persian daughter of a ruler. Miss Johnston has an interesting collection of Oriental slippers and sandals. She hopes to go to Paris some day and see the one notable exhibit in existence, formed by Jules Jacquement, now being shown in The Cluny Museum.

"Shoes were made by hand until 1809, when a patent was granted to David Meade Randolph. At the time of the Civil war, Gordon McKay had a patent on machine-made shoes for twenty-one years, and made a vast fortune before it expired.

"American inventors are foremost in creating machinery for the various operations in shoe making. The father of the modern shoe is Charles Goodyear, son of the famous rubber man.

"It is in the artistic hand created shoe, however, that my interest lies, and it is these personal, ornamented oddities that comprise my collection."

BREED THEATER

In the First National production, For Sale, which comes to the Breed theater Sunday, Monday and Tuesday Adolph Menjou interprets the part of a climber, a parvenu, who seeks entree into the Four Hundred via the matrimonial route, the object of attention being Eleanor Bates, who he later learns to love.

For Sale was written for the screen by Earl Hudson, and reveals a side of society heretofore unpictured. It shows society folk when prosperity is in their favor and exhibits them in all their nakedness when poverty has stuck their tender skins. It takes the spectator from the scenes of gayety in New York to scenes in the Latin Quarter of Paris.

Other pictures on the bill include Topics of the Day and a Sunshine comedy.

Today's bill consists of Tom Mix in The Man From Texas, William Duncan in The Fast Express the Pathe news and a sunshine comedy. Continuous show today and Labor day from 1:30 to 10:30 P. M.

WESTERLY

The regular session of Third District court was held Friday morning at the court house on Union street, Clerk M. Walter Flynn read the following:

Civil Docket

Granite Street Garage vs. Concetta and Edward Liotta. Continue one week.

Caroline Travernesci vs. Hazel Williams. Continued two weeks.

Joe Stedman vs. Earl Wills. Continued one week.

Judge Michael J. Turano came in at 9.30 and called the case of State, F. H. Brown vs. Lawrence Main. It was continued one month, Town Solicitor Ferguson asking for a trial in two weeks, but agreed to four as Attorney H. W. Rathbun will be engaged in Superior court, the trial date being set for September 26th.

State vs. John H. Higgins of the "" cottage, Boston Post road and Charlestown. This was a common gambling charge in which the state was represented by Assistant Attorney General John T. Hartigan, of Providence. Through his attorney John J. Dunn, who asked for a two day leave to file motion for dismissal, the defendant waived examination. Judge Turano denied the petition and entered judgment in the forfeiture case. Attorney Hartigan did not ask for a warrant for the destruction of a roulette wheel and poker chips secured in the "" house raid and said he would not ask for an increase of the $1,000 bail. The defendant was bound over to the September session of the superior court for Washington county.

Judge Turano asked if there was any appearance for one small bottle of moonshine, two quart bottles of moonshine, four gallons of gin and one still seized in Hopkinton, and there being none, it was declared forfeited to the state.

In the case of Elmer C. Smith vs. Walter Cekala of Hope Valley, hearing of evidence was continued before Judge Turano in a possession charge continued two weeks ago for the purpose of making an analysis of the contents of one of the bottles seized in the raid on August 2. The defendant was adjudged not guilty and an order to return the articles seized was issued by the court.

Judge Turano said that the evidence had shown that the articles seized was not fit for beverage purposes because of other ingredients in it, although it contained over 14 per cent. alcohol.

The five kidnapping cases against Revere and Boston, Mass., parties were continued one week and the case of Frank H. Brown, vs. Lawrence Main, charged with reckless driving was continued for four weeks. It was stated that the coroner's inquest in connection with the death of Ernest York, who died after being in an accident in the Main machine, had not been completed.

Coleman's shop of this town was awarded the electrical contract for $2,8445. The total of the contracts is $94,664.

Announcement.

Dances at the Lakeside Casino, South Coventry, will be discontinued during the Elks' Country Fair until further notice. The management announced that dances would be resumed next week to be conducted as long as the weather permits.

Y. M. C. A. Sunday Meeting.

At 4 o'clock Sunday, there is scheduled at the local Young Men's Christian association a discussion meeting to which men are cordially invited. The meeting will consist of hymns, scripture reading and prayer, which will be followed by a discussion on the topic, The Christian and the Unfortunate.

There are always unfortunate people in a community, and the discussion will doubtless bring out the various ways the Christian man can be of help to such. Cooling refreshments will be served.

National Paramount Week

Next week is National Paramount Week, and is celebrated by the moving picture industry and the public at large by the showing of Paramount pictures of super-quality all over the country. Paramount week has become an annual celebration ever since the formation of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, and it is the milestone by which the progress of the industry is measured. It stands for pictures of bigger and better value, both from the point of giving the public good, clean pictures of historical, educational and entertaining value, as well as endeavoring to portray accurately the most minute detail surrounding the places, peoples and things involved in the making of such pictures.

Literally, it may be said that "the Sun Never Sets on Paramount," for reports come trickling through almost daily of the progress of these famous pictures into China, Japan, Australia, South America, Mexico, every country in Europe, in fact, from every civilized portion of the world; a most recent assignment to a young American being to Siberia where a Paramount Exchange will be opened. The same leadership that has distinguished Paramount in America is apparent, therefore, all over the two hemispheres.

There must be a reason for all this!

The big element that has made Paramount the leading organization is the human element that dominates Famous Players. Its success is based on the human element existing in its relations with those it comes in contact with. The bigger the organization is the greater the necessity for a broad, human understanding, and no institution can long maintain its supremenacy without the human element. The big organization sets the keynote of an entire industry.

When Adolph Zuker and Jesse Lasky built Paramount they put into the foundation those qualities and principles which stimulate all in the organization to bigger and better ideals. That is why Paramount has become a National institution and one of which we can all be proud.

When the bids became known to Charles P. Champion of Avondale he expressed the desire that the home be a memorial to his mother, and that he would contribute the difference between the amount he had previously given and the amount required to complete the home according to the architect's specifications as submitted to the trustees.

The building will be of stucco with brick trimmings, suitable to house 25 nurses, and is considered of ample size for years to come.

The directors showed appreciation of Mr. Champion's additional gift by a unanimous vote of thanks. They also voted that the building be known as the Sarah Alexander Champion Home for Nurses.

As an inducement to divert the heavy Watch Hill road traffic, East avenue, which has recently been completed has been posted by the Westerly Police Department, which has placed signs at each end of this highway, stating that it leads to Westerly or Watch Hill.

It is hoped and expected that much of the congestion now on Beach and Elm streets will be relieved. Many Watch Hill people will come into Westerly over East Avenue, it is expected.

The distance from the junction of East avenue and the Watch Hill road to the junction of Elm, Broad and Granite streets is one-fifth of a mile longer via East avenue.

Much faster time, however, can be made over East avenue, Quarry Hill and down Granite street, as the 25 miles an hour city limit prevails the entire length of East avenue, while practically the entire length of the cemetery stretch is in the 15 miles an hour limit.

Labor Day, Monday next, will have no formal program for its observance in Westerly. Manufacturing plants, business and mercantile establishments will be closed for the day. Public buildings, town hall, public library and banking establishments with the post office will observe a holiday schedule, and there will be no deliveries by city or rural carriers. However, the stamp and general delivery windows will be open from 7 a. m. until noon. Mails will be received and dispatched as usual with the exception that the last outgoing mail will close at 10 o'clock instead of at midnight.

There have been no public celebrations planned in observance of the occasion and the majority will take the opportunity to visit the beaches before the season is closed.

For those who plan to remain in town there are several baseball games scheduled for the week-end. Saturday afternoon the Cottrells and Bradford will meet at the local grounds. Sunday afternoon the Independents will play the fast American Thread Co. team of Norwich at the park and on Labor Day afternoon the Independents will play Mystic in Westerly.

THREE NEW LONDON YOUNG MEN FINED IN WATERFORD COURT FRIDAY EVENING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Aug. 29.—Justice Thomas F. Morton had three New London young men before him this evening, at a session of the Waterford town court, in Firemen's hall, Jordan. John J. Moriarty of New London was charged with intoxication and assault upon N. A. Richards at Quaker Hill. He pleaded not guilty, but the evidence was against him and he was fined $10 and costs were assessed against him. John J. Kelly and Charles Sullivan were charged with intoxication. They were not in the scrape with Moriarty, but were at a cottage nearby. The testimony was to the effect that Moriarty went to a dance hall conducted by Richards, his condition being such that Richards ordered him from the premises. Moriarty didn't propose to go and threatened to punch Richards in the nose. Nat wouldn't stand to be punched and called State Policemen Henry A. Albright and Robert E. Anderson and they made sure that Mr. Richards was not molested and arrested Moriarty.

Morris Pouzzner, 259 Huntington street, arrested yesterday, charged with violation of the automobile laws, in refusing to show his operator's license to Bart R. Tetreault, 122 Ocean avenue, following Pouzzner's car being in collision with Tetreault's machine on State street and for not having an operator's license in his possession, found himself further entangled in the meshes of the law today. Pouzzner's car was attached in an action brought by the Sigele Furniture corporation, of Grand Rapids, Mich., to recover the face of a note. Pouzzner's car was attached by Deputy Sheriff J. H. Tubbs and was released five hours afterwards when George H. Beck qualified as Pouzzner's bondsman.

The case against Pouzzner originated from the defendant issuing his note for $6,000 in favor of the furniture company. Pouzzner negotiated the note today for seats installed in a moving picture house which he manages in Mystic and to operate which he induced Mystic residents to subscribe to stock. A portion of the note was paid, but the balance and upon which the suit is based, was not paid. The claim was placed in the hands of Attorney Thomas E. Troland and an attachment was given to Deputy Sheriff Tubbs to serve. This morning when Pouzzner was presented in court Sheriff Tubbs awaited his coming from the court room and as Pouzzner entered a Hudson sedan the sheriff served the process upon the picture house manager. The machine was taken to the rear of the Soldiers' and Sailors' monument on State street, where a keeper was placed in charge of it while Pouzzner sought to secure a bondsman whereby the car could be released. Finally George H. Beck qualified, when secured against loss. The case against Pouzzner in the police court was continued to next Monday as Pouzzner declared that he had an important business engagement to fill in New Haven. He did not get there for the second action against him keep him in New London the entire day.

Mrs. Peter Acker and infant son of Poquonoc road, Groton; Paul Taylor, Lyme; Priscilla Boardman and Winston Boardman, of Chicago, were patients dismissed at Home Memorial hospital today.

John C. Glynn, 44 Garfield avenue, has resigned as clerk in the employ of Tate & Nellan and will leave next week for Brooklyn, where he has a position with a large grocery store.

The graduating exercises at the United States Coast Guard academy will be held 10 months earlier than usual, for this year a class of 32 will be graduated next Monday morning instead of in June. The advancement of the graduation is to permit the revenue department to have all the available men possible to constitute the personnel of ships of the government that will be engaged enforcing the law against the rum-running trade.

A 10-foot sand shark was brought into port this morning by the fishing boat Aunt Edie. The shark suspended from the ship's rigging attracted a large number of people during the day.

Charles A. Ryan, a public service operator at Putnam, came to New London Thursday and parked his machine on State street, just as if there were no signs there forbidding it, while he went about affairs he had to attend to. He was taken to the police station where he was required to deposit $5 to insure his appearance in court this morning. Ryan failed to show up, so his bond was declared forfeited.

William Schmauk, for a long time treasurer of the Paty Schwartz company, a feed and grain corporation in business on Bank street, was in the police court today and was held in the sum of $5,000 for trial next week in the criminal superior court at Norwich. Schmauk is the son-in-law of Paty Schwartz. There are four counts in the complaint on which Schmauk was arraigned. He is accused of having made false entries in the books of the Schwartz company; he is charged with having appropriated money which belonged to the corporation to his own use; he is declared to have taken $900 in Liberty bonds which were in a safe deposit box of the company and appropriated them to his own use; he is further accused of having forged the name of Paty Schwartz to a note for $600.

Schmauk made a defense by pleading not guilty and the secretary of the corporation, Joseph Schwartz was called to give testimony with that of the bookkeeper, Irving L. Saunders, and the auditor, one Ipstein of Hartford that would give probable cause for holding Schmauk for trial in the superior court.

The testimony was to the effect that Schmauk drew a check on two occasions when he charged himself with $1000 less than the check called for. He was alleged to have issued the check and to have made the entries in the ledger of the corporation. The Liberty bonds he was charged with having taken from the safe deposit vault of the corporation in the City bank. A note for $600 he was accused of having made and to have forged the name of Paty Schwartz upon it. Schmauk made no defense by putting in testimony, his counsel being of the opinion that he would withhold the defense to be disclosed in the superior court. Mr. Schmauk furnished a bond of $5,000 for appearance next week, his mother, Pauline Schmauk becoming his surety.

A crook during the early hours of this morning attempted to gain entrance to the residence of William H. Reeves, 10 Prospect street. He was discovered in his operations and that he was not apprehended was because he made his getaway before the police arrived. Mr. Reeves and family retired about midnight and at the time all the lights in the house were extinguished. About 1 o'clock Mr. Reeves, who had awaked, detected a brilliant light in one of the rooms on the lower floor. He went to a window and discovered a fellow prowling about the yard with a searchlight. Mr. Reeves communicated with the police and Patrolman Clarence Martin, David Nagle and John Foley were rushed to the Reeves residence in the police speed car, but the fellow had made his escape and a search of the neighborhood failed to find him.

Theresa Berry, a young girl whom the police have been seeking to locate on a theft charge since the early part of the week, was taken into custody at Ocean Beach, late last night, by Supernumerary Officer Edward Riordan and was turned over to Policewoman Jane Cassidy, who escorted the girl to the police station. The girl borrowed a coat, blouse and umbrella from Mrs. Elizabeth DeVault, proprietress of the Fournier house, 147 Bank street, left Monday and failed to return them. Mrs. DeVault lodged complaint with the police, but not until last night were the whereabouts of the girl known. After the girl had been lodged at the police station the DeVault woman was informed of the arrest, but refused to continue her complaint against the girl and the clothing and umbrella were returned. This the girl did, so she was released from custody upon her promise to go to Providence where she has relatives.

The body of John Nolan, fireman on the New London line steamer Richard Peck, who was drowned in Block Island sound by falling from the steamer on the afternoon of July 24th, was found floating in Block Island sound late yesterday afternoon by a Noank fisherman and was towed into that port. The body was turned over to a Mystic undertaker and today the father of the man went there and claimed the body, having it forwarded to Nolan's home in North Riverton, R. I. Nolan was drowned while the steamer was en route from Newport to New London with about 1000 excursionists from New London, Norwich, Waterbury and Hartford. When the craft was but a short way from Point Judith, Nolan started to go along the rail of the middle deck and in doing so lost his balance and fell into the sound. With the cry of "man overboard" the steamer was turned about, but just as the craft reached the point where Nolan was floundering in the water he disappeared.

A New Haven resident among the passengers who witnessed the drowning lodged complaint with the United States Steamboat Inspectors at this port, alleging that Capt. James D. Pettigrew, master of the Peck, had been guilty of negligence in handling the steamer while the attempt was being made to effect a rescue. A hearing was started at the office of the inspectors a week or so ago, but "continued," and to date no further testimony, so far as is known has been taken. At the office of the inspectors absolutely no information regarding the case will be divulged, but it is understood that the inspectors have exonerated Capt. Pettigrew.

Massey, whose home is in Bridgeport, is 56, weighs 132 pounds and is about five feet six inches in height. He has gray hair.

The automobile owned and driven by Leonard E. Dunn, 33 Dell avenue and a commercial truck owned and operated by Thomas Ahearn, 41 Prest street, were in collision this morning on Huntington street, near Fremont street. Both cars were damaged.

MYSTIC

If the recent storm which visited the village early in the week is in any way responsible for the large crop of mosquitoes which seems to have been let loose from somewhere in the last few days, everybody is hoping that the next storm, which is scheduled to arrive shortly, will waft them out to sea and drown them fifty miles off shore. Evidently they have adopted the daylight saving schedule for they are on deck early in the morning and stay up as late at night as anybody else does and when they sleep—if they ever do—is a matter of conjecture for they remain on duty right through the night when weary folk would like to sleep if they would let them.

Worth More Than Gold.

The rhea of the Argentine pampas and the Patagonian wastes has been done to death in thousands and its feathers sold, says Nature Magazine. Heron feathers were worth eighty dollars an ounce, four times as much as gold; and, as man has murdered his fellowman for gold since he first stood on two legs, the bird was doomed.

Although a man may harp on one idea he may not be a born musician.

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY

Norwich Grange, P. of H. met Wednesday evening in Steiner Hall with Worthy Master Arthur W. Avery presiding. During the business meeting final plans were made for the grange fair which is to be held Sept. 24. The lecturer's hour was in charge of Miss Florence Brown. It being Auto Night, descriptions of the best 1925 models were given which was followed by a discussion of the topic, Is the Auto a Help or a Hindrance to the Farmer. The discussion was opened by John Fanning after which readings and charades were given by different members of the grange. Following the business meeting refreshments of ice cream and cake were served by the refreshment committee.

The next meeting of the grange, which is to be held September 10th at Steiner Hall, is to be an Education Night. A public reception is to be tendered to the ministers and school teachers and the principal address of the evening will be delivered by Principal Henry A. Tirrell of the Norwich Academy. Other prominent citizens will also speak during the meeting.

Denver Schools Seek Best Assistance Available

In a cirriculum revision for her junior and senior high schools, Denver is procuring professional aid from the big universities. Educators who have given practically all their time to a particular field have gone to Denver to aid the local committee and to make suggestions which it is hoped will meet the demands of modern scientific education.

Specialists from Harvard, Columbia, Michigan, Chicago, and other universities and teachers' colleges are assisting in the organization of courses in the various departments.

Beautiful Widow Bird

The whydale is a member of the finch tribe. It is a native of Africa and said to be the handsomest of its species. It is known as the long-tailed widow bird. The male of this species is rather smaller than the Canadian blackbird, but when he has donned his wedding plumage he becomes stately and impressive. He has twelve tail feathers, some of them 20 inches long, and when he erects these and, resplendent in glossy black with orange markings, struts with neck feathers muffled, he is a royal giant among finches. In Zuzuland theses beautiful birds abound. They thrive in captivity subject to one condition—that they have ample space to walk, to fly and to wash in.

Mud In Alaska.

Mud in Alaska in October is as great a shock to ideas based on the old school geography books, as is hot weather at the North pole, a condition which explorers actually report as existing during the "long day" season.

High Finance.

Teacher—"Use the word 'Egypt' in a sentence. Student—"I asked for change, but E-gypt me."

Model Home for Necessitous Chicago Boys

Normal protestant boys from broken homes who need normal home life are cared for by the Chicago Junior Home and Farm School Association, which was recently organized. These boys do not receive county aid, because they are not delinquent nor wholly dependent. The association charges fees ranging from a few dollars per month to $5, according to the circumstances of the parent. Contributions for the support of the school have come from all parts of the country. The first of a series of eight small cottages ras just been completed.

Passing the Time.

Festus Pester—When I am waiting in a city railway station for my train to leave I love to hear the announcer shouting: "All boah fuh Waw-haw-haw, Bluh-huh, Wogglespop and Humho-ha!" Puzzling over what he thinks he is trying to say helps me pass the time.

He Grows Snow Shoes.

The caribou literally grows snowshoes for the winter, says Nature Magazine of Washington. The edges of the hoofs grow out in thin sharp ridges which make him able to travel easily through the snow and on icy surfaces.

"Getting Even"

A great deal of "getting even" has at last to melt down into just grumbling.

Kills Old Divorce Law

China has abolished the old law under which a man could divorce his wife for talkativeness.

The Labor Day holiday will mean suspension of mail deliveries, so that the mail received today must last over till Tuesday morning.

As almanac day for September, Friday proved most satisfactory, with bright, clear skies and maximum temperature of 82 degrees.

Brooklyn grange is planning to visit Pachaug grange the evening of Sept. 4 and furnish three numbers of a combined programme.

MISSING ROSOFF BOY FOUND BY HIS BROTHER NEAR BALTIC

Saul Rosoff, the seventeen year old youth, who disappeared a week Thursday with a bank deposit of $550 belonging to the Motor Mart of this city was found about 3 o'clock Friday afternoon on a country road between this city and Baltic. The boy was found by his brother, Harry Rosoff, and brought back to this city. Practically all the missing money was recovered. It is understood that the youth will not be prosecuted.

The youth told of leaving the Motor Mart with $550 which was given to him to deposit in a local bank. He purchased a horse and buggy to carry him to Willimantic. From Willimantic he went to New Britain and to Hartford, remaining in Hartford for several days.

According to the boy's story the horse and buggy met with an accident in Hartford and the horse was killed. Rosoff said he intended to go into business in Hartford. Thursday Harry Rosoff learned that the youth had been seen in Willimantic. He went to that city and learned that the boy had left there as he had been seen near Baltic. Friday afternoon he located the boy and brought him back home.

Practically all of the missing money was found on the youth. Young Rosoff came to Norwich about five months ago from Springfield and entered the employ of the Motor Mart. At the time he disappeared it was thought that he was heading for Springfield.

FARM BUREAU TO HAVE EDUCATIONAL EXHIBIT

The New London county farm bureau will have an exhibit at the county fair next week. The exhibit will be located in the usual place near the main exhibition hall. The make up of the exhibit will be entirely educational and will consist of home economics work and agricultural work.

The home economics section will be a display of the work accomplished by classes under Miss Gladys E. Stratton's leadership and will consist of basket work clothing and millinery work, chair seating and rag rug work.

The agricultural section will be somewhat different this year than usual due to the fact that stress will be put onto one line of work instead of many.

It is believed that the dairy farmer must cut his feed costs every way possible in order to meet competition. A way of doing this is to grow more high protien roughage on the farm and our best roughages of this nature are alfalfa and clover. The exhibit will attempt to compare the amount of food value in alfalfa, clover and Timothy. It will also compare different dairy rations and their costs when fed with alfalfa and a low protien hay. It will show the experiments and result of feeding the grain ration with alfalfa and timothy. These exhibits will be shown by using objects as far as possible. There also will be a display of fruit recommended for commercial planting and home planting.

The Connecticut Sheep Breeders Association will have on exhibition some of the cloth which their members have made from wool grown by the members.

LOYALTY CLASS HOLDS PICNIC AT WATERFORD

About twenty members of the Loyalty Class of the First Baptist church, Mrs. Grace E. Willey teacher, enjoyed an all-day picnic, Thursday, at the home of Mrs. Willis G. Steward in Waterford.

The day was pleasantly spent and at noon refreshments of chicken and potato salads, pie, cheese, sandwiches and ice cream were served by the hostess, assisted by the committee.

The surprise of the day came when Mrs. Willey was presented a half dozen solid silver spoons by the class, the gift coming as a wedding anniversary present, as Mrs. Willey will shortly observe her wedding anniversary. Another surprise came when the class received a call from Rev. George H. Strouse of Waterford, formerly pastor of the First Baptist church.

During the business session arrangements were made to pay the $50 voted to the church to aid in defraying the costs of repairs recently made. Arrangements were also made for a rally day social to be held at the church.

The party returned home in the evening after tendering Mrs. Steward a vote of thanks for her hospitality. The picnic was one of the most enjoyable ever held by the class.

All the Year

Teachers' salaries are usually paid in 10 installments, and the teachers are expected to save enough during the school term to pay their expenses during the vacation. This usually involves no inconvenience, but occasionally instances of hardship have occurred as a result of the practice. An increasing number of cities have therefore adopted the plan of making salary payments monthly throughout the year. Among the large cities which pursue this plan are Boston, Denver, Los Angeles, Memphis, New York, San Antonio, Seattle, and Tacoma.

Legislatures Giving More Attention to Child Welfare

Child welfare is receiving a great deal of attention from state legislatures. Many legislatures have recently provided for state child welfare commissions, and in a number of states the laws have authorized the organization of county welfare commissions. A phase of welfare which has appeared in several recent laws is the "children's code commission." This is a body created by the legislature to study child welfare and suggest a revision in codified form of all the state's laws relating to children. Among the states which have recently created children's code commissions are New York, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Florida, Kentucky, North Dakota and Utah.
